SENATE REJECTS HOUSE'S CHANGES IN ECONOMY BILL

General Assault on Measure Leads to Action.

SHYLOCK BRAND APPLIED TO U. S.

Conferees Renamed to Seek Agreement; Delay Forecast.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Senate turned on the economy bill yesterday, tore into far-reaching personnel restrictions, assailed House changes in the President's furlough plan, then sent the whole $150,000,000 savings measure back to conference.

Rejection of the report came with the assent of Senator Wesley L. Jones, chairman of the Senate conferees. It followed a general assault on the bill, with Uncle Sam pictured as Shylock demanding the last pound of flesh from his workers.

The Senate rebellion was general, with members of the economy conference committee joining in. Only Senators McKellar, Tennessee; Bratton, New Mexico, and King, Utah (Democrats), held out for adoption of the report. It was disapproved without a record vote.

Same Conferees Named.

Five conferees were appointed anew. They were the same who sat in the last economy conference. The House now must name new conferees. But the House is in recess until Monday and Representative John McDuffie, House economy chairman, served notice he is leaving for the Democratic convention.

Dire predictions that yesterday's action would undo all of the work in conference and result in no economy bill at all this session were made by Messrs. McKellar, Bratton and King. Senate and House leaders disagreed with them.

"If I thought that," said Senator Jones, "of course I would not give assent to another conference. I think it will only delay the matter two or three or four days. I hope we can iron out most of these differences."

It was Senator Dale (Republican), Vermont, chairman of the Senate Civil Service committee, who struck the Shylock analogy.

Bingham Leads Revolt.

"I think we have been playing Shylock to Federal employes long enough," he said. "The only way we can remedy this matter is to send it back to conference, play Portia for awhile, and save Antonio his pound of flesh."

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, a member of the original Senate bipartisan economy committee, led the movement for rejecting the report.

Standing with him were Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, Senate sponsor of the furlough plan; Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin; Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky; Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York; Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, and Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, started the final push for rejection.

Married Worker Provision.

"The Senate is in no frame of mind to accept this report," he said. "It is obvious that we can not remedy injustices done by concurrent resolutions adopted after the report. The best policy would be to send it back to conference.

His statement was called forth by Senator McKellar's proposal of a resolution meeting criticism against the controversial married worker provision in the economy bill. His resolution provided for retention of married workers where both husband and wife are in the Government service,

Age Retirement Clause Called Crime in Senate

Senate application of the "superannuated" clause of the economy bill was made with dramatic results yesterday by Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California.

Compulsory retirement of veteran workers would be "a crime against age," he said. He pointed to Vice President Curtis, 72 years old; Senator Jones, 68, (Republican), Washington, chairman of the appropriations committee, and Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah. Then he mentioned his own case. Senator Smoot is 70, and Senator Johnson 65.

"I insist that, with me, efficiency has grown with the years," he said. "I decline to be put in the category of the superannuated who are no longer able to perform their work."

Earlier, Senator Dale (Democrat), Vermont, who is himself 65, attacked the forced retirement provision as "the most outrageous thing, when you start to analyze it, in the whole economy bill."

DIRECTORS TO FILL R. F. C. PRESIDENCY

Robinson Says President Has No Right to Name Head of Reconstruction Body.

(Associated Press.)

A vehement challenge of President Hoover's authority to name the president of the Reconstruction Corporation, made in the Senate yesterday by Democratic Leader Robinson, promptly drew from high administration quarters the reply that such action was not planned.

Robinson said selection by Mr. Hoover of a chief officer of the corporation would be a "plain attempt to usurp authority," and threatened to delay confirmation of Gardner Cowles, sr., Des Moines publisher, as a director.

A short while before Robinson spoke, the banking committee voted unanimously to recommend confirmation of Cowles, who was named Thursday and authorized Chairman Norbeck to report his nomination to the Senate for consideration.

Soon after Robinson's comment Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, told newspapermen flatly the board would select a president but that this would require a week or longer.

As for a White House statement that a president for the corporation

Los Angeles Minister Announces for Senate

Los Angeles, June 24 (A.P.).—A declaration of candidacy for United States senator was filed today by the Rev. Robert P. Shuler, Los Angeles minister, who has been active in politics. He announced himself on three tickets, the Republican, Democratic and prohibitionist. His radio station was recently ruled off the air by the Federal Radio Commission.

Senator Samuel Shortridge, Republican incumbent, and William Gibbs McAdoo, Democrat, filed their declarations previously.

ROOSEVELTIANS SPURN EFFORTS TO END DISPUTE

Farley Rejects Appeal of Harrison on Two-Thirds Rule.

SMITH PLANS FIGHT AGAINST ABOLITION

Denies Reports He Would Withdraw From Race if Governor Did So.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—"No compromise!" was the determination in the big Roosevelt and scattered opposition camps tonight on the two scraps facing the Democrats before they start the presidential nomination votes.

James A. Farley said "No" to an appeal by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, for the Roosevelt forces to drop the attempt to alter the two-thirds rule.

Alfred E. Smith laid plans to take the convention floor Tuesday against changing the time-honored rule, and predicted it would be kept.

Farley, also in a talk with reporters, was just as confident both that some form allowing for a majority vote to nominate would be approved and that Senator Walsh, of Montana, would be elected permanent chairman.

"We have the votes," he said.

Smith Firm on Chairman.

Smith also flatly turned down a suggestion of a compromise on the permanent chairmanship offered earlier in the day by Harrison. He said he would stand by Jouett Shouse as against Senator Walsh, who is supported by the Roosevelt ians.

"You can't compromise with a principle," snapped Smith to newspapermen. "There is a principle in the Shouse-Walsh fight. The principle involved is keeping your word."

"Will you quit the convention if the two-thirds rule is abrogated?"

"I never quit."

"What will you do if it is abrogated?"

"I don't think it will be."

Smith was asked about his views of abolishing the two-thirds rule if a deadlock developed.

"That is worse than abrogation at once," he retorted. "It sounds like I'll take a chance but if I'm not winning you will have to help me."

Smith Won't Withdraw.

Smith said there was "absolutely nothing" to reports that he would withdraw if Gov. Roosevelt would.

The 1928 presidential nominee said James M. Cox, of Ohio, the 1920

Gerard Answers Attack Of Hague on Roosevelt

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—An old Democratic stalwart, James W. Gerard, war-time Ambassador to Germany, today took up the cudgels for Gov. Roosevelt and answered the charge of Mayor Hague of Jersey City, N. J., that the New Yorker could not carry the East.

In a formal statement, he said "any one of the Democrats who have projected their hats into the ring can carry New York on a platform sincerely and undoubtedly wet." He pointed out that Roosevelt was re-elected governor by a plurality of "about three-quarters of a million" and said he carried up-State New York for the first time in political history by 164,000.

Siamese Coup Ends Absolute Monarchy

Most of Royal Family Captured as Army and Navy Revolt; Ship Sent to Seize King and Queen.

Bangkok, Siam, June 24 (A.P.).—One of the world's few remaining absolute monarchies toppled today when the army and navy of this picturesque land suddenly revolted and set up a "constitutional monarchy."

The coup was almost bloodless. The army chief of staff was believed shot to death by his own men when he resisted their demands for surrender.

Most of the royal family was captured immediately by the soldiers and sailors who invaded the principal royal palace. Several government officials and cabinet ministers were also taken.

The navy commanders ordered a warship to bring back as prisoners King Prajadhipok and his consort from Hushin, where they are spending a royal holiday.

The mass of the people apparently took no part in the movement, and the main city was quiet.

In fact, the capital was taken completely by surprise when the uniformed lines poured into the city afoot and in army tanks. Many had machine guns. They marched on the palace and took over control, imprisoning designated high personages in their quarters there.

The army and navy leaders announced they intended to deliver the country from the government of princes.

Later some of the prisoners were reported to have been released, but other high officials and princes were still held prisoners in one of the royal palaces by troops.

Dispatches relayed through Paris and Berlin differed in some respects from direct word from Bangkok. These advices said the king and queen had been captured, and that the military were carried about the city on the shoulders of the cheering citizens.

A diplomatic official in Paris recalled that King Prajadhipok had no

HUGE CROWDS CHEER RITCHIE AT CHICAGO

Three Bands in Parade to Hotel; Repeats Views on Prohibition.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—To the martial music of three bands, Albert C. Ritchie paraded through cheering crowds today on his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His arrival brought to Chicago the first touch of the vigorous campaigning of past years. In the crush at the station he lost a shoe. During the tuneful, tumultuous journey to his hotel he stood in the back of his automobile, smiling and waving to the crowd. His first press conference had to be postponed for an hour to clear his headquarters sufficiently to permit the usual exchange of questions and answers with interviewers.

A wave of cheers swept the crowd as he reached his headquarters behind a drum and bugle corps and marching men and women. They carried banners flaunting the legends, "We Will Win With Ritchie," and "Get Rich With Ritchie." So great was the crush inside the hotel that police had to force a passage for him through the lobby.

When he attempted later to hold his press conference, several hundred persons pushed to the front of the room, crowding newspapermen out of hearing distance.

"Will all the Marylanders leave so

Mrs. Schafer Held For Jury in Death

Wife of Representative From Wisconsin Free on $750 Bond.

Mrs. Elsie W. Schafer, wife of Representative John Schafer, of Wisconsin, was held for action of the Prince Georges County grand jury after an inquest last night into a fatal automobile accident which occurred on the Defense highway on June 14. Mrs. Schafer was released on $750 bond.

Mrs. Schafer was the driver of the automobile which was involved in a collision with another machine driven by Murray H. Boyer, of 4612 Forty-eighth street northwest, on the Defense highway near the Ardmore road. Mrs. Mina Dennis, Boyer's mother-in-law, was killed, and Boyer and his wife, Doris, were seriously injured.

Mrs. Schafer, who lives at 800 North Carolina avenue southeast, is a native of Washington, and was Miss Elsie Webster until her marriage to the House member in 1923.

Farmer-Labor Group May Select Gen. Coxey

Omaha, Nebr., June 24 (A.P.).—Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, Mayor of Massillon, Ohio, is the latest prospect for the Farmer-Labor party's presidential nomination, Roy Harrop, chairman of the national executive committee, said today. Col. Frank E. Webb, choice of the April convention here, was ousted last week.

Harrop said a movement is afoot to draft Coxey with Andre Nordskog, of Los Angeles, as his running mate. Nordskog is already vice presidential candidate of the Liberal party and Coxey vice presidential nominee of the Farmer-Labor party. The presidential nomination was offered to Senator Huey Long, Louisiana Democrat, after Webb had been ousted, but he declined after announcing he favors Gov. Roosevelt of New York.

HOOVER PICKS ALLEN TO DIRECT PUBLICITY

Nutt, G. O. P.'s Treasurer, Completes Plans for Financing Drive.

(Associated Press.)

The Republican campaign ship yesterday lifted anchor and set sail for its November port.

Henry J. Allen, former senator from Kansas, became publicity director of the campaign at the request of President Hoover. He handled Republican publicity in 1928.

Meanwhile, Joseph R. Nutt, of Cleveland, treasurer of the Republican national committee, completed plans for raising funds to carry on the work.

In a round of conferences at committee headquarters and the White House, the general course of the campaign was charted as far as possible without knowledge of who the Democratic nominee for President will be.

Nutt talked at length with President Hoover before conferring with Everett Sanders, the newly elected chairman of the Republican national committee.

The Cleveland banker said that while he did not expect as large a campaign fund as in 1928, he saw evidences that contributions would be more liberal than he thought possible before the national convention.

Questioned by newspapermen as to the foundations of this belief, Nutt said that "the sane course of the

Oliviera Cabinet Quits in Portugal

President Carmona Asks Leaders to Remain Till Posts Are Filled.

Lisbon, June 24 (A.P.).—After a cabinet meeting tonight the government presented its resignation to President Oscar Carmona, who accepted and requested the ministers to remain in office until their places had been filled.

The Portuguese government has been headed by Gen. Domingos de Oliviera as premier since January 21, 1930.

The Carmona regime, declared by its critics to amount to a dictatorship, promised a new constitution to Portugal last month. Under the new constitution, it was said, the president would be elected by the people instead of by the Parliament. President Carmona intimated in a speech last February that he intended to leave office in a few months.

"Deliverymen" Sleuths Kill Hijacker of Wagon

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Disguised as deliverymen for a large New York department store, two detectives today killed one bandit and wounded another as the pair attempted to hijack the delivery van in a residential neighborhood.

The shooting was the first positive result of a plan to combat a growing epidemic of delivery holdups. About a dozen detectives have been assigned to vans.

Britain's Labor Parties Split Under Long Strain

London, June 24 (A.P.).—The long strained affiliation between the Labor party of Great Britain and the Independent Labor party was broken tonight. The Independent Labor party decided at a conference to operate as an independent political group.

TOKYO'S NAVAL STAND BLOCKS GENEVA WORK

Position Prompts Parley of U. S. and Japanese Delegations.

REVISION OF TREATY RATIOS MADE ISSUE

Activities Are Postponed as Instructions Are Awaited From Far East.

Geneva, June 24 (A.P.).—The Japanese attitude that the naval ratios 10-10-6 in the London treaty must be reviewed by 1936 was believed to have inspired an informal Japanese-American naval conference today. Both American and British circles have been reported somewhat uneasy over this Japanese position.

Hugh Gibson and Hugh R. Wilson, of the American arms delegation, called on Tsuneo Matsudaira and Naotako Sato, of Japan, today to discuss the naval features of the Hoover reduction proposal.

To Ask Instructions.

The Japanese received them cordially, but said they lacked instruction on the point. They promised to telegraph Tokyo for an elucidation of the views at home.

The British and French governments are undertaking intense studies of the latest Hoover armament proposals, it became known today when their delegates here held up proceedings over the week-end.

Thus the tripartite conversations among Great Britain, France and the United States were postponed until Monday on the initiative of the British and the French.

Support Is Promised.

Congratulations and promises of cordial support for the Hoover plan were given to the American delegation today by leaders of the Americans' interorganization council.

The spokesman said they were willing to go even further, desiring abolition of battleships, all military aircraft and establishment of an international disarmament commission with wide powers of control.

Germany and Canada Agree on Tariff Pact

Berlin, June 24 (A.P.).—Germany and Canada today reached an agreement in principle on a new tariff pact under which protective tariffs will be modified for mutual benefit, providing that details of a most-favored-nation treaty can be arranged within six months.

At present German goods entering Canada pay the full tariff and the German government has been considering levying a substantial tax on imported Canadian goods.

Martial Law in Germany Is Demanded by Hitler

Berlin, June 24 (A.P.).—Political clashes in Germany that have cost ten lives within the week today brought a public declaration from Adolf Hitler demanding martial law throughout the country.

The document, coming from Nazi headquarters at Munich, also declared for suppression of the Communist party and purging of the police, especially in Prussia, of their Socialist and Centrist members. He concluded: "The hour is at hand. It is 5 minutes before 12."

HOOVER RENEWS ATTACK AS RELIEF BILL IS ADVANCED

Text of President's Relief Bill Statement

The full text of President Hoover's statement on relief for the unemployed follows:

I am glad to see the adoption by the Senate and House of the principle of generous relief to unemployment.

They have adopted the major provisions for which I have been contending by proposing to extend the authority of the Reconstruction Corporation to use its credit to make advances on adequate security up to $1,500,000,000 for construction work of the type which will pay for itself, and for which plans are immediately ready and therefore can begin the employment of men.

The Senate has also adopted the principle for which I have asked $300,000,000 loans from the Reconstruction Corporation to the State Governments who are not able otherwise to finance their relief of distress.

While these features in the Wagner and the Garner bills are not in the form and are not as well safeguarded as they should be, they are

FACTIONAL STRIFE HITS BONUS FORCES

Encroachment of Radicalism Also Is Threat; Police Watch Intensified.

Factional strife and the encroachment of radicalism appeared last night as a serious threat to the hitherto orderly organization of the bonus army encamped here.

Despite the weeding out of approximately 150 men with alleged communistic tendencies from the camp at Twelfth and D streets southwest and the election of a new commander there, discension was auguring ill toward the disciplinary set-up of the tattered hosts.

Early last night all police personnel of the city was ordered to keep in close touch with the precincts, to guard against trouble among the bonus marchers or demonstrations in the city.

A show of defiance earlier in the week when health authorities indicated Camp Meigs should be evacuated by the handful of bonus marchers there, was lessened by the action of the executive committee of the army which voted not to assign further units to the Florida avenue reservation.

The action of the executive committee was explained as not constituting a reprimand to Commander W. W. Waters, who, Thursday, said he

Corner Stone Is Laid For New House Building

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Garner yesterday laid the corner stone of the new $6,000,600 House Office Building.

Photographs of himself and the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth were placed in the corner stone along with those of Representatives Fou, of North Carolina, and Bacharach, of New Jersey, members of the House Office Building commission, and David Lynn, the Capitol architect. The building is to be completed next winter.

Hits 'Waste' in Plan as House Sends It to Conference.

HE STRESSES BUDGET PERIL

Veto Looms if Measure Is Not Drastically Modified.

(Associated Press).

Striking out vigorously against public works provisions of the Garner-Wagner relief bill, President Hoover yesterday asserted that many of them were "pork-barrel" and "wasteful" expenditures.

His statement, issued to newspapermen a few hours after the House sent the gigantic $2,300,000,000 measure to conference, was freely interpreted on Capitol Hill as foreshadowing a veto unless it is drastically modified.

Saying the bill commits the Treasury to the expenditure of from $500,000,000 to $1,200,000,000 for "nonproductive public works," the President added:

"These provisions have the triple vice of being a charge on the taxpayer, of unbalancing the budget and of providing only a small amount of employment and that to a large extent in localities where it is not needed."

Food Bill Approved.

Meanwhile another relief bill to provide 50,000,000 additional bushels of Farm Board wheat to the Red Cross for the needy was approved by the Senate a short while before it returned the national economy bill to conference for further adjustment of differences between the two branches of Congress.

President Hoover said "any study of many of these public works provisions will indicate plainly their pork-barrel characteristics. A large part of the expenditures proposed are wasteful in the present times.

"They impose tremendous future costs on the people for maintenance; they are not economically needed. Much of it represents a squandering of public money," he added.

The President estimated these expenditures would create a deficiency in the budget of from $500,000,000 to $1,200,000,000.

Recalling the struggle in Congress to balance the budget and "maintain the integrity of Federal credit," he said:

"To start now to break down that credit and stability will result in the eventual unemployment of far more men than this comparatively few who are benefited."

Lauds Relief to Idle.

Mr. Hoover said he was "glad to see the adoption by the Senate and House of the principle of generous relief to the unemployed" and added that the other features of the bills while not in the form he wished, "are in line with major objectives I have been advocating."

He characterized as disheartening, however, that the $300,000,000 fund for emergency relief loans to States had not been made available on the basis of need.

"It has been transformed into a pork barrel operation," he said, "by being apportioned amongst all States according to population, irrespective of their needs."

Despite his many objections to the legislation, the President expressed

15 of U. S. Employes Union Ousted for A. F. of L. Aid

Group Suspended for Alleged Activities in Working for Labor Organization, Officials Say; Healing of Breach Appears Blocked.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

A significant and important breach in the ranks of organized labor was emphasized yesterday when the National Federation of Federal Employes announced suspension of fifteen of its members because they had continued to work with the American Federation of Labor after the employes' federation had voted to sever connections.

Announcement was contained in a letter addressed to all members of the employes' federation in the course of which the employes' federation voiced caustic criticism of the leadership of the American Federation of Labor for "violating its professed cardinal principle of voluntary association," and for carrying on an organization warfare at a time when the Nation-wide drive to reduce Government salaries and to deteriorate Government working conditions demanded entire attention of those interested in the welfare of employed workers.

The action apparently made impossible any healing of the breach between the two organizations so long as the American Federation of Labor is controlled by its present leadership. The council coupled with its announcement a warning that punitive measures would be taken against any other individuals or local unions which continued to go against the will of the majority of the organization and consort with the American Federation of Labor.

How important was the disaffection of the employes' federation can be gleamed from the frantic efforts of William Green, president; Frank Morrison, secretary, and other officers of the American Federation of Labor to force the Federal employes back into affiliation.

The A. F. of L. lost some 60,000 odd members, but of greater significance,

Mayor Walker Hailed As Hero by Chicagoans

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Jimmy Walker may be "only a local politician," as he has often said, but he blocked traffic today when he came to Chicago to attend the Democratic national convention. A huge parade, sponsored by the Chicago Federation of Labor, greeted the New York mayor as his train pulled into a station literally filled with musicians and standard bearers.

The signs of welcome were both formal and informal. One read "Chicago Federation of Labor Welcomes Hon. James J. Walker," but another tossed dignity aside to say, "The Chicago Federation of Labor extends a loving welcome to 'Jimmy Walker.'" Scores of smaller signs yelled: "Hey Jimmy."

Court Presentees' Queue On Mall Abolished by King

London's Great Free Show Ends as Limousines Go Directly Into Palace Yard; Eight American Women Curtsey at Final Audience.

London, June 24 (A.P.).—One of London's greatest free shows—the queue of motors when the king and queen hold court—went suddenly into oblivion today.

And there were signs of protest from the public and from the presentees alike.

Nevertheless, George V abandoned entirely a usage hallowed through the reigns of Victoria and Edward.

There was no wait at all on the mall in front of Buckingham Palace. Instead the limousines of presentees and their sponsors were admitted directly to the palace courtyard as they arrived.

The discreet protests—in whispers so their majesties could not hear—from the presentees were rather strange.

Heretofore the beplumed presentees have declared their embarrassment at the queue ordeal, when they have been forced to undergo hours of inspection by any and all who cared to look.

The protests appeared to be based on the fact that many had made appointments to have their friends stop by their limousine windows during the long wait on the mall.

Besides, it is much nicer, one was led to believe, to wait under the trees along the mall than on the graveled parade ground of the palace.

Eight American women bowed before the last court of the year tonight, each taking her curtsey under the sponsorship of Mme. de Pieuriau, wife of the French Ambassador. They were:

Miss Louise de M. Dewey, Chicago; Mrs. Eben S. Draper, Hopedale, Mass.; Mrs. K. Paul Ramsay, Las Vegas, N. Mex.; Mrs. Alexander Johnston Robertson, New York; Mrs. W. Alex Spencer, Topeka, Kans.; Mrs. James G. Wents, Washington; and Miss Jeanne Wingfield, Reno, Nev.

G. P. O. WILL ADOPT PLAN OF 5-DAY WEEK

140 Employes to Be Let Out Also to Meet Cut in Appropriation.

Dismissal of 140 employes and the adoption of a five-day week will be made effective by the Government Printing Office to bring it within a $3,000,000 cut in the departmental printing and binding appropriation, according to a schedule made out by Public Printer George H. Carter in anticipation of the passage of the economy bill.

Of the employes to be dropped, 109 are superannuated workers, 17 are married persons whose wives or husbands also work at the printing office, and the others are asking separation from the service to take advantage of the retirement arrangements, it was said.

The five-day week will go into effect after Congress adjourns, and will affect all workers except guards and a few others who cannot be spared. Nearly all employes, however, including the Public Printer himself, will work only the first five days of the week, giving a full holiday on Saturday.

Married persons are not being dropped except where both are employed at the printing office and where one gets more than $2,500 per year. The families are allowed to choose which member will remain in the service.

It is expected the 140 dismissals will be all that will be necessary during the next year, Mr. Carter said. If there is a later change in the economy bill which makes further savings necessary, the decreased appropriation may be met by the usual voluntary separations from the service and by economies other than in personnel. If these are not sufficient, the furlough plan may be extended.

$15,000 Damages Voted Actress Upheld by Court

San Francisco, June 24 (A.P.).—A $15,000 damage verdict won by Lila McComas, actress injured in the filming of "Sunrise," from the Alliance Investment Co., was upheld today by the State Supreme Court. The trial court found Miss McComas had suffered injuries when the howdah in which she was riding slipped off an elephant's back and she was catapulted to the ground.

The Supreme Court dismissed the action against the Alliance company's codefendants, the William Fox Studios and the Al G. Barnes Shows Co., finding that the Alliance company was sole owner of the elephant and employer of the animal's trainer.

Boston, June 24 (A.P.).—Senora Leonor Calles, wife of former President Plutarci Elias Calles of Mexico, who was operated on for a brain tumor yesterday, was reported today to be "holding her own very well." Her husband and other members of the party which accompanied her here were more cheerful today after receiving word from Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

The sympathy of President and Mrs. Hoover was expressed today in a dispatch of flowers to the sick room of Senora Calles. Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, who previously had called upon Senor Calles at his hotel, also sent flowers to the patient's room.

Thousands Cheer Veterans Of '61 in Richmond Review

Remnant of South's Heroes Parade Through Monument Avenue, Lined With Statues of Their Leaders; Reunion Comes to End.

Richmond, Va., June 24 (A.P.).—Gray-clad heroes of the Southland today paraded through the capital they once defended, and passed in review in the shadows of bronze figures of their great chieftains.

They came in automobile-borne ranks, but aged bodies shook aside the ravages of time, and every back was erect, and every head was turned aloft in a courageous salute, as 1,000 veterans passed the statues of Lee, Jackson and Stuart—the climax of the forty-second United Confederate Veteran reunion.

From the Virginia Capitol, which to them is still the Capitol of the Confederacy they knew, down Richmond's Monument avenue—a boulevard famed for its statues of Southern heroes—the veterans came in a 5-mile parade, led by Maj. John Crowley, of New Orleans, who insisted on walking to carry the general's colors.

Lee, astride Traveler and facing his beloved South; Jackson, the scout, looking to the North which never knew his back, and the bushy-bearded Stuart, dashing cavalier of the Confederacy, naked sword in his hand, might well have been alive for the aged veterans who thundered an ovation as they paraded once more in the city which they defended.

And Jefferson Davis, hand raised in characteristic pose, also received their cheers as the parade wound past the monument to the only president of the Confederacy.

It was a colorful spectacle, with military organizations of vivid history, gay with the panoply of war and the festoons of peace, pretty maidens—sponsors and maids of honor, the escorts of those stanch survivors of the gallant armies of Tennessee, transmississippi and northern Virginia.

The streets were literally lined with thousands jamming every standing place along the line of march.

Lieut. Gov. James H. Price, who acted for Gov. Pollard, who was out of the city, said it was the greatest crowd he had ever seen turned out for an event in Richmond. He estimated the spectators at 200,000, many of them visitors.

Everywhere were the banners of the Confederacy. The stars and bars, and the battle flag were fluttering in the glory that was theirs in the Confederate capital 70 years ago, not in defiance, but in proud kinship to the Stars and Stripes under whose folds sons and grandsons of Confederates fought in the Spanish-American and World Wars.

At the entrance to Monument Avenue were Gen. Homer T. Atkinson, new commander in chief, and Gen. C. A. DeSaussure, his predecessor, as the veterans returned after looping the double tracked boulevard. First before them came the survivors of the Confederate navy, then Forrest's famous cavalry, the Tennessee department, then the trans-Mississippi, and finally the Army of Northern Virginia.

Following the veterans were members of the Confederate Southern Memorial Society, and Sons of Confederate Veterans, who were concluding their meetings which were held simultaneously with those of the veterans.

There were a dozen or more bands in the line, and music was constant. The Mississippi State Teachers College, the Clarksville boys and girls, the Augusta Police, the Charlottesville Municipal and the Quantico Marine bands, all were in line.

The parade preceded entertainment features during the afternoon and the grand ball in two sections tonight. At one section was the old-fashioned Virginia reel, and swing-your-partner music, and at the other was the modern jazz. The veterans found amusement at both.

Tomorrow, accompanied by the Sons of Confederate Veterans, the "boys" will go to Washington for reception and review by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

With the balls tonight, the forty-second annual reunion was officially closed. The place for the next one has not been chosen, but is to be announced at some later date by Maj. Harry Rene Lee, of Nashville, adjutant and chief of staff.

Bent by the years, the remaining members of the Confederate army will parade up Pennsylvania avenue this morning. The gray-clad veterans will arrive here from Richmond shortly before 10 o'clock, following their annual reunion in the Virginia city, and will be joined in the march by patriotic organizations here.

The Confederate marchers will gather at the zero milestone in Potomac Park immediately after the parade and will be transported to nearby Virginia, where luncheon will be served them. Fielding M. Lewis, chairman of the transportation committee, has requested all those who can furnish cars to gather at the same spot.

After luncheon the veterans and guests will go to the Manassas battlefield. Refreshments will be provided there for the veterans.

Western Pacific Loan Authorized

I. C. C. Approves Third Application; Another Line Requests Funds.

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday approved a loan of $2,264,000 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Western Pacific Railroad Co. This is the third approved, the road having previously borrowed $2,102,000 to assist in meeting its fixed charges and to pay expenses.

Receivers for the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad yesterday asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve a one-year loan of $575,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The application was an amendment to one filed June 2 in which $1,250,000 was sought. Officials said they had been advised that the commission "could not see its way clear" to grant the original application.

Receivers' certificates were offered as security. The money would be used to pay taxes due in Arkansas and Missouri, wages, open accounts, to buy supplies and to pay off a portion of existing receivers' certificates.

Paris, June 24 (A.P.).—The International Chamber of Commerce today called on the governments to act boldly and courageously in reaching a definite settlement of the problem of war debts and reparations.

(Associated Press.)

Those who buy pleasure boats will pay from $10 to $200 per vessel under the new revenue bill and the Government expects to receive $500,000 a year in taxes by this means.

Announcing regulations for this tax, the Internal Revenue Bureau said yesterday that purchasers of yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, sailing boats and motor boats would pay taxes as follows:

Length between 28 and 50 feet, $10; between 50 and 100 feet, $40; between 100 and 150 feet, $100; between 150 and 200 feet, $150, and over 200 feet, $200.

Vessels used exclusively for trade, fishing, national defense and by charitable organizations, are exempt. The tax becomes effective next Friday.

Irish Reject Thomas' Demand.

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 24 (A.P.).—After a three-hour discussion the cabinet agreed tonight to reject the demand of J. H. Thomas, British Dominions secretary, that the issue of payment of land annuities by the Free State to Britain should be judged before a tribunal composed of arbitrators from members of the British Commonwealth only. The cabinet decided to take no action about payments which become in default June 30, until the money has been formally demanded.

SENATORS REJECT CHANGES BY CONFEREES ON ECONOMY

except that in future appointments preference would be given to other than this class of workers.

Then Senator Jones cleared up the situation.

"In the interest of time," he said, "and recognizing the force of the suggestions made by my colleagus, I am willing that the report should be rejected.

"I can imagine what the attitude of the House may be with reference to the matter, but in the hope of harmonizing some of the differences now existing and in the hope of straightening out some of those provisions about which there is disagreement, I am perfectly agreeable to a new conference. I hope we can do this without further delay."

Other Points at Issue.

He then asked a vote on his motion to accept the report. The motion was defeated. He next moved that the Senate insist on its amendments and appoint new conferees. The motion was adopted, and Senators Jones, Bratton, Smoot (Republican), Utah; Broussard (Democrat), Louisiana, and Hale (Republican), Maine, were named. Finally he moved that the Senate disagree to the House furlough amendment. This was done, and the same conferees were named on the furlough issue.

Points at issue in the debate, which extended through most of the afternoon, included the married workers clause; the provision requiring impounding of money which under the President's plan would be used to retain workers in the service; the section giving department heads right to furlough employes indefinitely; forced retirement of superannuated employes, and limitations of annual leave.

Senator Dale and Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, led the fight on compulsory retirement of superannuated employes. Under the provision, Senator Dale declared, 800 employes who have almost served out their retirement period would be forced from the service without benefits. He said 1,500 employes fit for duty would have to retire.

Senator Bingham centered his attack on House changes in the impounding clause. Under the plan as formulated by the President, no Government worker would have lost his job, he pointed out. With the House change, thousands of employes would be forced from the service by appropriation cuts, he said.

When Senator Jones objected that the House furlough amendment was not up, Senator Bingham insisted on being heard:

"I have no desire to be put in the position of being euchered out of such an important provision, and that is just what will happen if we approve the report and take up the furlough amendment in a hurry to get away."

Senator McKellar insisted that no economies would be effected if an exception was made for salaries in the impounding clause. Senator Bratton argued the clause as now worded would prevent discharge of workers. Senator Logan said the Comptroller General was of the opinion that wholesale discharges were inevitable under the House clause.

McDuffie Is Dubious.

Provision for discharge of married workers was attacked by Senator Bingham as "an unprecedented change of policy under the guise of specious economy."

"It will cause untold suffering and will not save one cent of money," he said.

In the face of the Senate vote, Representative Henry T. Rainey, House Democratic leader, predicted the economy bill will pass "if we have to stay here another month." He said new conferees will be appointed Monday, with Representative McDuffie probably at their head.

Representative Rainey was confident that House and Senate conferees will be able to harmonize their differences. Representative McDuffie, who was present in the Senate chamber during most of the debate, was not so confident.

"The House voted almost unanimously for the report and will not yield," he said.

D. G. S. NOT TAKING SHAPIRO FOOD SCRIP

Builder and Grocery Head Issue Statements on Redemption of Vouchers.

Food vouchers issued by the Shapiro Construction Co. to its workmen employed in the erection of several houses at Twentieth street and Park road northwest, are not redeemable at stores of the District Grocery Stores, Inc., J. B. Shapiro, president of the company, said last night.

Isaac Jacobson, president of the grocery chain, also denied the scrip issued by the Shapiro company could be cashed at stores under control of his organization. Mr. Shapiro explained that workmen on the Park road project were paid half in cash and half in scrip, good for groceries. He also said that the credit of $50,000 extended by the store cashing the scrip was not given by the grocery chain.

Mr. Shapiro's statement said, in part:

"The men have been paid with half cash and half food vouchers—a plan to which the subcontractors agreed. The $50,000 credit was granted by and the vouchers are redeemable at an independent grocery store—not, as was erroneously stated, a member of the D. G. S., although it formerly belonged to this association, which is in no way connected with the plan."

Mr. Jacobson's statement, also issued last night, said:

"The District Grocery Stores, Inc., denies that the store which is honoring scrip issued by the Shapiro company to its employes is a member of the District Grocery Stores, Inc. The store at which this scrip may be exchanged for groceries has not been a member of the District association for many years.

"The District Stores have no connection whatever with the Shapiro company, and have not given it any credit, or made any other business arrangement with it. My first knowledge that scrip was being honored by any store was when I read Mr. Shapiro's statement in Friday's Post.

"The District Grocery Stores, Inc., want it clearly understood by all of its friends and patrons that it has never at any time extended any credit to the Shapiro company."

Bureau of Census To Discharge 800

Temporary Clerks Notified to Take Leaves by July 8.

A further reduction of 500 will hit the ranks of the temporary employes of the Census Bureau July 8, it was revealed yesterday, when this number of employes were notified to take all their annual leave due them before this date.

After July 8, according to William H. Steuart, director of census, 800 employes will be dismissed in weekly detachments. By January 1, 1933, it is expected that all those 10,000 employes who came here to tabulate the 1930 census will have been dropped from the Government service.

It is expected the 1930 statistics will be published in book form by the end of the year. Many of the bureau's permanent staff have been transferred to new quarters in the Commerce Building, and the old offices in the temporary building at Sixth and B streets will be abandoned soon.

Dallas, Tex., June 24 (A.P.).—Refreshed by baths at El Paso, more than 1,000 bonus marchers from California progressed slowly through the cattle country of west Texas by train and motor cars today. Commander R. W. Robertson, with 753 veterans, arrived in Big Spring on a freight train.

19 Bicycle Policemen Get New Assignments

The bicycle has gone the way of the horse in the Metropolitan Police Department.

Upon being informed that there is no provision in the 1933 appropriations for maintenance of the bicycle squad, the District Commissioners yesterday ordered eighteen of the nineteen policemen heretofore assigned to this group to return to patrol duty. The nineteenth was transferred to the motorcycle squad.

The eighteen former bike riders lose $50 a year under the new arrangement, whereas Robert H. Furlow, the nineteenth, gains $70 as a motorcycle policeman's compensation is $120 a year more than that of a patrolman. Six other policemen were named to fill vacancies on the motorcycle squad.

KENTUCKIAN WINNER OF ORATORICAL TEST

James R. Moore Is Awarded Bicentennial Medal in Finals Here.

Speaking on the subject "Washington, Nation Builder," James R. Moore, of Somerset, Ky., student at Washington and Lee University, representing the east central region of the United States, won the George Washington Bicentennial national oratorical contest held last night in the auditorium of the Department of Commerce Building.

He was presented with the official George Washington commemorative gold medal of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission by Representative Sol Bloom, associate director.

Following a reception for the contestants in the lobby of the building, Moore broadcast the winning oration over a Nation-wide hook-up to his mother, who was listening in at her home. It was his seventy-second victory in oratorical contests.

Judges were Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, member of the Bicentennial Commission; Miss Anne Madison Washington, a descendant of the Washington family; Ira E. Bennett, editor of The Washington Post; William Tyler Page, secretary of the Bicentennial Commission; and Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, authority on the life of Washington.

Other contestants and their scores were:

Felicien Lozes, Loyola University, New Orleans, "First in Peace," 19 points; Bryson Haya, Columbia University, Portland, Oreg., "George Washington's Understanding of Men," 19 points; Martin J. Tracey, Fordham University, New York City, "The Spirit of Washington," 20 points; Margaret G. Dak., "Washington, Nation Builder," 42 points.

Each contestant received an award by the Bicentennial Commission following the announcement of the winner. The decision of the five judges was tabulated according to the low point total system. Each contestant was entitled to enter the national contest by winning the regional oratorical contests.

Hoover's Budget Slashed $37,380

Senate Pares President's Estimate of White House Expenses.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's office expenses yesterday felt the weight of the governmental economy move.

Appropriations for the executive office were reduced by the Senate $37,380 below the President's budget estimates, which were accepted by the House.

The cuts, all recommended by the appropriations committee, were: Personal services in the office of the President, from $96,180 to $90,000; traveling and official entertainment expense of the President, from $25,000 to $20,000; other traveling expenses and repair and maintenance of the Executive Mansion and grounds, $142,000 to $125,000; printing and binding, $2,700 to $2,000; contingent expenses, including stationery, books, telephones, automobile and garage expenses, $43,500 to $35,000.

INDEPENDENCE DAY PROGRAMS PLANNED

Joint Observance by Colored Civic Organizations Is Being Considered.

Combination of colored civic organizations in various sections of the city for Independence Day celebrations in connection with the George Washington Bicentennial program, on motion of W. H. Lewis, was proposed by the Federation of Civic Associations last night at a meeting in the board room at the District Building. The proposal would include a celebration in the Garnet-Patterson Auditorium for the Northwest; one at the Lovejoy School for the Northeast; one at the Birney School, in the Southeast, and another at the Randall Auditorium, in the Southwest.

J. C. Wright appeared before the federation requesting it to investigate the ownership and management of Woodlawn Cemetery, with a view to having such management improve and modernize the burial grounds.

The federation directed that an invitation be extended to Miss Fay L. Bentley, of the attendance department of public schools, to address it next October. The federation also established a scholarship fund.

A committee was named to provide a loving cup for a civic association whose work is adjudged most outstanding during the ensuing year.

A communication from the Commissioners stating that a crosswalk for pedestrians over the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad tracks from Meade street in Eastland Gardens to the same street in Deanwood could not be given favorable consideration because of the urgency of projects of greater importance to the city, caused appointment of a committee, consisting of W. H. Lewis, J. C. Payne and H. L. Bowser, to take the matter up further with the Commissioners and other agencies.

FACTIONAL STRIFE HITS B. E. F.; POLICE WATCH IS INTENSIFIED

would march men there. It was said to have been concurred in by Waters and was the result of a desire to cooperate with residents of the vicinity of Camp Meigs who had become alarmed at reports of sanitation hazards.

First signs of Waters' weakening hold on his men became apparent after a demonstration he ordered yesterday to take place on the plaza of the Capitol fell flat. His order for the marchers to mass in front of the Capitol came after a spontaneous movement of several hundred who had first gone there.

Waters then sent verbal orders to the camps to march toward the Capitol. "Come to the Capitol. Show the Senate we are here," was his edict, but only a scattered few obeyed.

The regular detail of police on hand near the Capitol since the coming of the bonus army was deemed sufficient during yesterday afternoon by officials to cope with anything that might take place. Last night only a few of the veterans were near the Capitol, most of them listening peacefully to a band concert.

Waters yesterday delivered an impassioned address to the men quartered at Twelfth and D streets southwest. Later John Pace, of Detroit, area commander there, was deposed and William Detert, of Kenosha, Wis., was elected in his stead.

Pace admitted his sympathy for the policies of the Workers Ex-Servicemen's League. He said that it was for the "rank and file to decide if they were to starve."

Police said an unidentified man shouted during the meeting at Twelfth and D streets southwest that "if the food is stopped, I will go out with twelve men and break the B. E. F. by insulting all of the women and merchants in town until the police run the whole B. E. F. out."

Forced by Officials.

Election of the new commander at the Twelfth and D streets camp was forced by veterans officials as was the ejection of the alleged Communists. Food was stopped until the action was taken. After five hours, the men capitulated, word was sent to headquarters and food was forthcoming. The rations were received with cheers by the contingent.

A movement was reported on foot early last night in the Anacostia camp for a large group of veterans to move toward the White House last night. The reported plan was to have the group attempt to sleep on the Executive Mansion lawn, thus giving President Hoover visual evidence of their plight and pleas. The attempt, however, was not made.

Funds of the army were dwindling with donations not coming in as fast as at first expected. However, full rations were issued and under the clement skies, the veterans generally appeared to be satisfied. The beginning of next week is expected by police here to see exhaustion of supplies with little hope for the arrival of more. The veteran leaders contend the Federal Government will then have the responsibility of caring for the marchers squarely put to it.

Interest Cut Bill Pushed.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, yesterday entered a motion in the Senate to discharge the finance committee from further consideration of a bill which would reduce from 5 to 3 per cent the interest on loans on World War adjusted service compensation certificates.

"It seems to me that under the existing law the Government is making a profit on money loaned to veterans," Norris said, adding that the bill has been before the committee since May 4. His motion, if approved, would bring the measure before the Senate for action.

Police last night were instructed to be on the lookout for veterans in the act of panhandling.

"These headquarters are in receipt of complaints," the order read, "that there is a group of men working in the Sixth and Tenth precincts representing themselves as members of the B. E. F. and making a house-to-house canvass for donations. Where there is a bona fide case of panhandling, arrest the offender."

Message From Germany.

A message of felicitation to the bonus marchers last night was received at bonus headquarters from Eugene Bumiller, believed to be a veteran of service with the German army during the war.

The message was on a postcard stamped at Jungingen, Hohenzollern, Germany. It was in German, and, translated, read:

"With thousands of hearty greetings and best wishes for your heroic action before Congress in Washington. Think of us when you have achieved your objective."

A poem of inspiration was attached. It read:

"We're not fighting for the Fatherland,
We're not fighting for bread,
We're fighting for the wealthy.
The poor men are shot dead,
And crippled and the blind,
The lame and weak and sick
Get the iron cross and hungerpangs—
Such is the Fatherland's thanks."

Treasury Probe Demanded.

An immediate investigation of the Treasury Department was demanded last night following a meeting of the veterans' legislative committee.

The veterans charged that as long as Congress was delaying appropriation bills, something "must be wrong" in the Treasury Department.

W. G. Cox, acting vice chairman of the committee, said that the veterans weren't sure where the trouble was, but intended to learn as soon as possible.

"We don't know what it is," he said. "Maybe they haven't got the money. But we want to find out."

Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and Representative A. L. Bulwinkle (Democrat), of North Carolina, were chosen by the committee to launch the investigation.

GRIEF OF GIRL SUING HUTTON UNDER FIRE

Los Angeles, June 24 (A.P.).—Attempting to break down the story of Myrtle St. Pierre that she was overcome with grief when David Hutton forsook her after a proposal of marriage, defense counsel drew admissions from her today that she had attended parties with other men during her period of "sorrow."

She seeks damages of $200,000 from Hutton, now the husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, for alleged breach of promise.

Once, as Hutton's lawyer, Mark Jones, questioned her about alleged illicit relations with the choir singer, she began to cry and quickly collapsed, forcing a recess.

On another occasion, Superior Judge Lester Roth warned her against unsolicited answers to cross-examination questions, remarking, "The Court is not convinced all of these voluntary statements are unpremeditated."

Again she matched wits with Hutton, who as he sat at the elbow of his counsel, fired questions through his attorney at the attractive brunette nurse about a love song which she claimed he composed for her. Later, she said she heard him sing it over a radio for Aimee. Asked about the words, she said:

"Well, I don't remember exactly."

Questioned about treatments she claimed she gave Hutton in her health salon in Pasadena, she told of giving him alcohol rubs.

Another Dies in Crash Of Auto Near Culpeper

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 24.—Death today ended a ten-day fight in University Hospital of Miss Cornelia Major, 21 years old, of Culpeper, who was severely burned in an automobile wreck near Elkwood, ten miles north of Culpeper.

Miss Major's death brings the fatality total of the accident to three persons. Two of her companions, Edward Amiss, 23, and George Thompson, jr., 24, both of Culpeper, were killed outright as the roadster in which they were driving the night of June 14 crashed into a truck and burst into flames. Miss Virginia Sclater, who was dragged from the blazing car by a marine from Hoover's camp, is recovering from her injuries at Warrenton Hospital.

Two More Lindbergh Suspects.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 24 (A.P.).—New Jersey police today asked for samples of the handwriting of Charles Atkins, 43, and Dorothy Berry, 25, held in the Cheyenne jail, apparently to compare with the writing in ransom notes in the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr. The couple was arrested at Thermopolis, Wyo., on Mann act charge. They said they were from Camden, N. J.

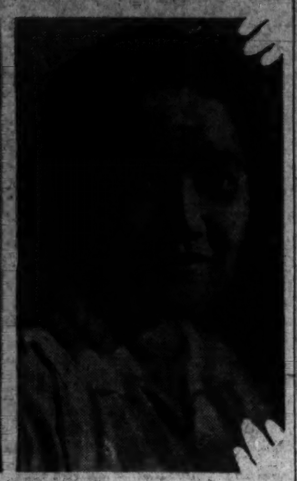
Ancient Legend and Hunger Inspire Revolution in Siam



King Prajadhipok of Siam and his queen, Rambaibarni, for whom a warship has been sent by the Siamese rebels. An old prophecy doomed their dynasty for extinction in 1932, its 150th year.

One of Last Monarchies Victim of Prediction Dynasty Must End.

(United Press.)

Revolt yesterday gripped the throne of one of the world's absolute rulers, King Prajadhipok of Siam, scion of the Chakri dynasty and "possessor of the four and twenty golden umbrellas."

The outbreak seemed to have two causes—a weird bit of folklore and stark hunger.

A prophecy, handed down from father to son for many decades, doomed the Chakri dynasty to extinction in its 150th year. The king celebrated the sesquicentennial anniversary of his line last April.

Siam's peasants are suffering from the world economic depression. Two months ago, in an effort to balance the budget, the Siamese government decreed new and heavy taxes on income and lands. These fell as heavy yokes on the necks of the farmers. On April 25, more than 1,500 destitute peasants petitioned vainly for a government loan. Lack of bread, seemingly, united with the age-old superstition about the Chakri dynasty to fan the fires of revolution and discontent.

Prajadhipok, although the descendent of an ancient line of absolute royalists, has become imbued with modern political ideas. He was educated in England and has traveled widely. Last year he and his young queen, Rambaibarni, spent several months in the United States. They visited Washington and were received by President Hoover.

Already Prajadhipok has given evidence of political liberalism. Shortly after ascending the throne of Siam he restored the supreme council of state, composed of five princes, to advise him and coordinate the work of the various ministries.

So it would not surprise informed observers here if the king willingly relinquishes his absolute status and becomes a ruler whose power is based on the consent of the governed.

Should Prajadhipok do this, only one of the ancient clan of personal monarchs would be left—Emperor Haile Selassie I of Ethiopia, "Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Select of God, Emperor of Ethiopia."

And even he, according to recent reports, is having trouble with some recalcitrant underlings.

SIAM'S ABSOLUTE MONARCHY FALLS IN ARMY AND NAVY COUP

children, and suggested the rebellion possibly was intended to place on the throne a dynasty more likely to continue.

The announcement of the military chiefs would not seem to bear out this deduction, however, and appeared to be more susceptible to the interpretation that perhaps Prajadhipok would be allowed to stay if he granted a constitution.

The king is responsible to no one under present law, and himself initiated the idea of selecting advisers in the cabinet and privy council, both of which bodies meet weekly.

While in the United States for an operation on his eye last year, the king told interviewers he intended to set up a constitutional monarchy when his country was ready for it.

Siam has a population of about 10,000,000 persons and all males are subject to army service. The present monarch has introduced many Western modernizations during his short rule.

He succeeded to the throne on the death of his brother, Rama VI, in 1925, and became the seventh monarch in the present dynasty.

Paris, June 24 (A.P.).—The revolt in Siam was caused by sweeping economy measures put into effect during the last week by King Prajadhipok, the newspaper Le Matin will say tomorrow.

Numerous functionaries and officers of the army were dismissed because of this economy program, according to the newspaper account.

The king recently convoked a meeting of officers in an attempt to justify the drastic cuts but failed to placate them, with the result that a revolutionary conspiracy developed.

Information reaching Paris was that a "Peoples party" had been formed to carry out the movement.

Endeavorers Hear Baltimore Pastor

Thirty-third Convention of Virginia Union Will Be Continued Today.

Norfolk, Va., June 24 (A.P.).—"Greater things through citizenship" was the topic of the Rev. Harold Cheney, of Baltimore, chief speaker at tonight's session of the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor Union of Virginia.

This session, over which Miss Margaret Richards, of Winchester, State president, presided, followed a series of discussions. During the afternoon the entire convention moved to Ocean View for a recreational program. Echoes from the allied youth for prohibition convention in Atlantic City, N. J., came at the night session from George Earle Owen, president of the southwest district of Virginia.

Sessions will continue through the day tomorrow with the annual banquet and election of officers at 6:30 p. m. The convention will close with a consecration service Sunday night.

2 Killed as Plane Crashes on Farm

Son, 30, of Millionaire and War Flier Victims in Indiana.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 24 (A.P.).

Paul Cox, 36, and William R. Root, 30, both of Terre Haute, were instantly killed tonight when Cox's plane crashed on a farm 14 miles south of here. The two were returning home after having flown to Owensboro, Ky., this afternoon to visit friends.

Cox, partner with his father in an automobile parts wholesale firm here, was considered an expert pilot, having been credited during the World War with bringing down two enemy planes in combat.

Root was the only son of C. J. Root, millionaire glass manufacturer. Witnesses to the crash said the plane was flying low when it suddenly nosed up and then turned nose down and crashed.

Boy, 4, Turns Bedroom Into 1,600-Gallon Pool

Tucson, Ariz., June 24 (A.P.).—The adobe walls and cement floor of 4-year-old Ralph Montijo's bedroom proved just what young Ralph was looking for today when he sought a wading pool.

A garden hose through the bedroom window, while his father was attending a service station next door and his mother was shopping, put 4 feet of water in the room in almost no time at all.

Ralph had ceased wading and was thinking seriously of how a little boy could learn to swim when his mother found him. The bedroom was rapidly becoming a storage tank.

Except for the fact Ralph would be taking his meals off the mantle now, if he could reach that high, the tale ends with a laconic report of City Gardener Jack E. Coleman: "Pumped 1,600 gallons of water from residence."

RETURN OF GERMAN THRONE HELD LIKELY

Secret Conferences Being Held With Former Crown Heads.

London, June 24 (A.P.).—The Daily Herald today said conferences have been going on in secret for a week among the former kaiser, German bankers and monarchist politicians with a view possibly to restoring the Hohenzollerns.

The dispatch, dated Amsterdam, added that the former crown prince had made his first visit to Holland in seven years to attend one of the conferences at Zandvoort, Holland, where the former kaiser is spending a short vacation.

"With the arrival of the former crown prince, the gathering was complete for hearing reports on the situation in Germany and developments in the monarchist movement," the Herald went on. "The private talks between the bankers and politicians and secret emissaries continued until late last night."

Berlin, June 24 (A.P.).—Although the Hohenzollern family issued its customary denial of plans to restore the former kaiser today there was a deal of evidence that his family stock is on the rise in Germany.

This is indicated by the fact that the former monarch's sons now appear regularly in parades and demonstrations by war veterans, where they usually review troops beside officials of the former soldiers' organizations.

Der Aufrechte, Berlin Monarchist organ, currently expresses the opinion that, following the downfall of the Breuning cabinet, the "monarchy is the necessary final goal."

The Left Radical paper, Berlin an Morgen, said that Gen. Franz von Epp, the Bavarian National Socialist, and reichstager, visited the former kaiser at Doorn recently to discuss the possibility of his return to the throne.

London, June 24 (A.P.).—J. D. M. Gray, Toronto aviator, who plans to fly from here to New York next month by way of Greenland, sat in a refrigeration chamber for half an hour today in preparation for the cold weather he expects to meet.

It was a test of a specially made cold-resisting flying suit. He emerged from the ordeal "as warm as toast," he said.

Father Confesses "Plot" To Kidnap Son, 5, False

Lancaster, Pa., June 24 (A.P.).—Why Malcolm A. Reiser concocted a story about extortionists threatening to kidnap his son, Malcolm, jr., 5 years old, and caused police to guard his home for two weeks was a puzzle authorities sought to solve today. Reiser, a jeweler, was held on charges of false pretense, sending threatening letters through the mail and misinforming the police. He was declared to have confessed the hoax.

All Americans Held Out of Kwangchow

Peiping, June 24 (A.P.).—The American Consul at Hankow reported to the United States legation here today that all Americans have been evacuated from Kwangchow, in southeast Honan Province, where six members of a Lutheran United Mission were staying when the city was attacked by Communists.

The headquarters of the mission are at Minneapolis.

PLANE PLUNGE KILLS PILOT AT AIR RACES

Motor Believed to Have Exploded; Illinois Flier Day's Chief Winner.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—One flier was killed at the international air races that opened here today. Richard Bennett, 35-year-old manager of the Binghamton Airport, plunged earthward in a burst of flames as he was rounding the second pylon in a race for small-motored planes.

Pilots who viewed the wreckage said Bennett's motor had exploded in midair.

Two other pilots experienced mishaps while flying to the meet, but escaped serious injury. Charles Thompson, of Baltimore, was forced into a river near Olean by a downward current of air. His plane was wrecked beyond repair, he said. He suffered only a bruised leg. His 15-year-old son, Charles, jr., flying with him, suffered a bruised cheek.

Charles W. Brown, of Baltimore, another passenger, escaped injury.

Addy Halford, of Lansing, Mich., was forced down near Sandusky, Ohio, by a broken rudder cable. Temporary repairs enabled him to reach Erie, Pa., where the repairs were completed.

The race in which Bennett was killed was won by J. Thropp, of Trenton, N. J.; Harvey Hughes, of Lansing, Mich., was second; H. Neuman, of Moline, Ill., third, and L. Musgrave, of Grand Rapids, Mich., fourth.

Another race for small-motored planes was won by Neuman, with Art Chester, of Joliet, Ill., placing second.

Neuman also won the race for planes with 800 cubic inch motors. Roger Rae, of Lansing, was second; Arthur Davis, of Lansing, third, and John Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., fourth.

Livingston won the spot landing contest.

Jimmy Doolittle, former Army ace and speed flier, was not here today, but race officials said he entered and was expected to arrive before the end of the meet.

HAVANA POLICEMAN EXECUTED IN PLOTS

Prisoner Is Shot to Death Under Flight Law; Bombs Found in His Home.

Havana, June 24 (A.P.).—Daniel Buttari, a policeman under more than twenty years' sentence, was taken to Atares Castle today and shot to death under the so-called law of flight.

More than 200 bombs, as well as a stock of rifles, revolvers, fuse caps, dynamite, T. N. T., machine guns, machetes and uniforms were found in his house and in another residence where a raid was made.

The law of flight provides that guards may shoot any prisoner seeking to escape.

Documents discovered by the authorities were said to have implicated numerous persons with the ammunition stores. Among these, the authorities declared, were public employes, soldiers, members of the professional classes and more than 80 policemen.

Expropriation Injunction Refused.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 24 (U.P.).—The first application for a writ of amparo, or injunction, against Vera Cruz's new expropriation law was filed by a group of Vera Cruz land owners with the second district court and promptly refused. The application requested an injunction against possible application of the law. The court ruled that a writ could not be granted against an unconstitutional law for a wholesale number of cases, but must be confined to individual applications on individual cases.

Justice's Attackers Sentenced.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 24 A.P.).—Luis F. Velazquez was sentenced to one year's imprisonment today after his conviction on a charge of assault and battery lodged against him by Chief Justice Emilio del Toro, of the Puerto Rican Supreme Court. The defendant attacked the jurist because he resented a Flag Day speech in which the chief justice said time would bring full realization of the benefits of the American flag to Puerto Rico. Pending appeal, Velazquez was released.

Sandino Defeat Claimed.

Managua, Nicaragua, June 24 (A. P.).—National Guard headquarters today announced another victory in a skirmish with rebel followers of Gen. Augustino Sandino. A guard patrol, it was said, met a rebel group under Pedro Altamirano near Consuelo yesterday afternoon, killed five of them and captured arms and ammunition without suffering any casualties.

Santiago, Chile, June 24 (U.P.).—All gold expropriated from foreign exchange and jewelry shops in a series of spectacular raids by agents of the short-lived Grove government two weeks ago is to be returned to the owners by the Central Bank, a special commission investigating the seizure ruled today. The agents seized 3,000,000 pesos ($180,000) of gold in their raids.

Mexico City, June 24 (U.P.).—Complete suspension of copper mining and refining operations in Mexico by the Cananea Consolidated Copper Co. as a result of the recent imposition of a tariff of 4 cents a pound on the metal by the United States appeared likely today when the concern presented a request for a general shut-down to the federal board of conciliation.

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 24 (U. P.).—President Ricardo Jimenez announced today that within two days he would send a project to Congress providing for a moratorium on the country's $22,000,000 foreign debt. He refused to discuss details of the payment suspension other than to state that it was based on an arrangement already consummated with the "creditors." His references to the creditors was interpreted to refer to the New York Association of foreign bondholders, as most of Costa Rica's bonds are held in the United States.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, June 24 (U.P.).—Gov. Paul M. Pearson of the Virgin Islands, returned here by airplane from New York today to find the island Legislature and the local administration deadlocked over plans to balance the budget.

Detroit, June 24 (A.P.).—Police reserves were summoned to the juvenile detention home at 7 a. m. today to quell a disorder in which 90 girls between 14 and 17 years old fought for more than 15 minutes in the second-floor dining room of the home.

Foreign News in Brief

Rome, June 24 (A.P.).—Heavy storms, unprecedented at this time of year, pelted most of northern Italy last night and today with snow, hail and rain driven by cold winds. Three persons were drowned near Trento and two at Viella, near Turin, as rivers overflowed their banks. Near Pistoia a man was killed by lightning during a snow storm which blew down from the mountains on the Austrian border. In Venice gondola traffic was tied up by a tempest which lashed the canals into foam and wrecked several houses on the mainland.

Ottawa, June 24 (A.P.).—Hanford MacNider, returning from Chicago, where he was runner-up for the Republican nomination for the Vice Presidency, denied today that he had any "present intention" of resigning as United States Minister to Canada. MacNider made his statement when asked concerning reports of his impending resignation which emanated from across the border.

Geneva, June 24 (A.P.).—The committee of nineteen of the League of Nations assembly decided today to recommend an extension of the time limit on returning a report on the Sino-Japanese conflict. This extension would be indefinite in order to permit examination of the report that will be made by the commission headed by the Earl of Lytton, which is conducting an investigation in the field. The assembly meets next Wednesday to approve the proposed extension.

Amiens, France, June 24 (A.P.).—The courts today dismissed a farmer's suit against former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, claiming damages for the death of his daughter during a wartime bombardment. French law does not provide a pension to the parents of victims under 12 years of age, and some time ago the father's plea for French compensation was rejected. Today the court ruled that the kaiser had lost his status as a representative of Germany, and there was no ground for naming him as defendant.

London, June 24 (A.P.).—Maude Royden, widely known social worker and pacifist, headed a demonstration at the West India Docks today against a shipment of arms from England to Japan. The deputation went to the waterfront in a long procession of automobiles, carrying the banner of the recently formed "Peace Army." In front of the dock they made speeches in protest against the departure of a steamship loaded with arms for the Japanese.

Panama City, June 24 (A.P.).—Dr. A. H. Compton, noted physicist of the University of Chicago, said today recent investigations by his cosmic-ray expedition showed a ray which penetrates 18 feet of lead. It is definitely affected by the earth's magnetic field, he said, and added this indicated it was not light, but a stream of electric particles. Dr. Compton, a Nobel Prize winner, planned to sail today for Peru to continue his studies in the Andes.

PLATFORM WRITING IN ROOSEVELT HANDS

Boosters of Governor Take Command of Resolutions Group.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Leaders for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt took command of the Democratic platform-writing committee today and prepared to draft a party declaration for 1932 calling for submission of prohibition repeal and a new economic deal.

An impressive array of Democratic leaders was named on the resolutions subcommittee charged with drawing a tentative platform. A proposal of William G. McAdoo that the subcommittee be named was adopted and he was made a member. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, the chairman, headed the subcommittee, whose members included Senators Wheeler, of Montana, and Hull, of Tennessee; A. Mitchell Palmer, Washington, D. C.; Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, and William A. Comstock, of Michigan—all of the Roosevelt group. Others on the subcommittee are Senators Glass, of Virginia, and Walsh, of Massachusetts, Roosevelt opponents.

Hitchcock said the group would endeavor to get together tomorrow morning to lay out a program.

John T. Dooling, of New York, temporarily serving on the resolutions committee in place of Mayor Walker, tried unsuccessfully to gain reconsideration of the resolution setting up the subcommittee, and said he might renew his request tomorrow. Dooling thought New York and New Jersey should be represented.

Threat of a third party, voiced by Robert M. Hutchins, youthful president of Chicago University, and an attack upon the Farm Board and the Republican agricultural policy by the Chicago Board of Trade enlivened the long day of hearings by the provisional platform group.

Prospects of a repeal submission plank became more certain with an announcement by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, in favor of it. He proposed a "clear, concise" statement in favor of submitting the question to the States. However, he emphatically opposed moves to commit the party in favor of repeal.

Prohibition will headline tomorrow's hearings. Radio stations have asked permission to send the wet-dry fight over the air. The organized wets and drys—the same organizations that appeared before the Republicans—are on hand for the contest.

Tariff, labor and immigration also are on tomorrow's program.

Substitute Juror Bill Sent to White House

(Associated Press.)

Something new in Federal jurisprudence—substitute jurors—would be provided under a bill passed yesterday in the Senate and sent to the White House.

A judge would be permitted, under the measure, to direct the calling of one or two jurors in addition to the time-honored 12, when he thinks the trial is likely to be protracted. The alternate jurors would hear the case along with the others and if one of the regulars should die or become ill a substitute would take his place.

Amendment to Restrict Hiring of Aliens Urged

(Associated Press.)

A constitutional amendment to allow States to restrict the employment of aliens within their borders was proposed yesterday by Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona.

Ashurst said he was introducing the joint resolution because the courts had held unconstitutional an Arizona law providing that corporations in that State must maintain a proportion of at least 8 per cent of qualified electors among their employes.

World Wheat Shipments On Level With 1930-31

Ottawa, Ont., June 24 (A.P.).—World shipments of wheat and flour in the present crop year are on a level with the volume of the 1930-31 season, the Canadian Bureau of Statistics reported today.

From August 1, 1931, to June 12, 1932, shipments were listed at 711,617,000 bushels, compared with 712,304,000 in the same months of the 1930-31 season.

convention on the prohibition question has inspired confidence in the American business man."

In addition to a general finance committee in the national organization, Nutt said there will be set up a group of State committees to fix and raise quotas.

He hopes to have Silas Strawn, retiring president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, head the Illinois committee and Jeremiah Millbank the one in New York. Both these men served in that capacity in 1928. Other State leaders have not been selected.

The President also conferred separately with Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire; Senator Hastings (Republican), Delaware, and Wilson Mills, of Detroit, but they would not say what was discussed. Moses was Eastern director of the Hoover campaign in 1928.

At the same time, Walter Newton, one of the White House secretaries, and Ray Benjamin, of San Francisco, were canvassing prospects. Benjamin came from the West Coast more than a year ago and has had a desk at the national committee headquarters, although occupying no official position there. He is known to be one of the President's most trusted advisers.

Allen, in a tentative outline of his publicity campaign, said general headquarters would be in Chicago, with offices probably in Washington and New York. He said he hoped to have James L. West, the director of publicity, at headquarters here, take charge of the Washington office.

"There won't be the big staff this year that we had in 1928," Allen said. "The major reason for that will be that we won't have the money for it. The other reason is that the Hoover record is pretty well written already."

Nutt and Allen both talked late in the day with Sanders on finances and publicity.

DRY LAW TO BE ISSUE IN CAROLINA RUN-OFF

Morrison in Drive to Pass Reynolds, Wet, Who Led First Primary.

Raleigh, N. C., June 24 (A.P.).—Prohibition will be the issue of a second Democratic primary in North Carolina, July 2.

Interest will center in the contest for nomination for United States senator between the incumbent, Cameron Morrison, wealthy dry leader of Charlotte, and Robert Rice Reynolds, avowed wet, who led Morrison with a margin of nearly 10,000 votes in the first primary.

Three other candidates in the senatorial race polled approximately 60,000 votes, which both run-over candidates will seek to corral.

Morrison, a veteran campaigner, will study the returns from every county with the practiced eye and mind of a seasoned politician. He will have a corps of able leaders and ample funds for a month of whirlwind campaigning.

Observers Are Surprised.

Reynolds, a 6-foot, genial mountaineer, will wage a militant campaign to hold the votes he has and capture the 27,000 given Frank D. Grist, whose main issue was the payment of the bonus to former service men. Reynolds promised to vote for the bonus in addition to declaring for outright repeal of the prohibition amendment.

Surprised by the heavy vote polled by Reynolds, political observers of the State are unwilling to predict the outcome of the second primary. Morrison, a former governor, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Max Gardner upon the death of Senator Lee S. Overman. The appointment was hailed as a wise one, and Democrats expected Morrison to be elected for a term in his own right without difficulty.

On the other hand, Reynolds' popularity in the rural districts was not counted on to give him such a large vote, as generally the rural sections were considered dryer than the cities.

Record-Breaking Vote.

The primary vote, June 4, was a record-breaking one for the State, however. Opponents of Reynolds say many votes were cast for him by disgruntled voters who were incensed at Morrison's vote to confirm Frank R. McNinch for the Federal Trade Commission. McNinch was leader of the anti-Smith faction in the State in 1928.

One of the first States to outlaw the saloon, North Carolina has been regarded as a stronghold of prohibition since 1907, and in 1928 cast her electoral vote for a Republican President, presumably because of Alfred E. Smith's views on the liquor question.

Meantime, Republican leaders are watching the Morrison-Reynolds fight with interest, ready to make a determined effort to elect a man to the Senate on a dry ticket if Reynolds should win in the second primary. The State Republican party has already adopted a dry platform.

Utah's Delegates Plan To Make Silver Issue

Salt Lake City, June 24 (A.P.).—Utah delegates to the Democratic national convention left for Chicago tonight on a "Dern for Vice President" special, determined to make silver their major issue. Gov. George H. Dern, almost fully recovered from a recent sinus operation, was on the train. The Utahans will be joined at Green River, Wyo., by other Western delegations. The special will arrive in Chicago Sunday.

W. J. Halloran, of Salt Lake City, a delegate, declared: "We propose to insist and keep on insisting that the convention give satisfactory recognition to silver in the platform."

that I can talk to these gentlemen?" asked the State's governor.

There was a slight movement toward the door, but most of the crowd held its ground and the conference was deferred.

Later he expressed confidence that in the event of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the States would guard against a return of the saloon. Pending repeal, he urged liberalization of the Volstead act to allow the manufacture of light wines and beer.

At his later press conference, Ritchie opposed change in the two-thirds rule.

"Personally," he said, "I do not think the two-thirds rule ought to be abrogated on the eve of a convention fight."

TILSON ASKS VOTERS TO SUPPORT HOOVER

Warns Against "Dangerous Proposals" If Democrats Gain Control.

(Associated Press.)

A warning against a flood of "unsound and dangerous proposals" if, "in a moment of temporary aberration on the part of the voters, the Democratic party should be given control of the Government" was sounded last night by Representative Tilson, of Connecticut.

In a radio address, he said President Hoover was the obvious choice of the electorate.

"There should be a great turning of thoughtful people toward President Hoover," Tilson said, "to the end that he may continue to stand as the Nation's bulwark against the threatened flood of unsound and dangerous proposals which might delay for a decade the return of normal business activity and employment."

The Connecticut Republican defended his party's recently adopted platform as "conservative in its tendency, though in no sense reactionary;" one which "keeps a firm hold on those things that have proved themselves good, while looking forward toward those things that may prove themselves to be better."

"Letty Lynton" Pirated, Authors Charge in Suit

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Alleging that the talking picture, "Letty Lynton," is an "elaborate piracy and infringement upon the unique play, 'Dishonored Lady,'" of which they are authors, Margaret Ayer Barnes, of Chicago, and Edward Sheldon, of New York, instituted suit today asking an accounting, an injunction and surrender of the positive and negative films. Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, described as "manufacturer;" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corporation, Loew's, Inc., and Culver Export Corporation are the defendants.

The suits sets forth that the defendants agreed to pay authors of the stage play $30,000 for the privilege of making a picture, but that instead the play was plagiarized without compensation.

Absence of Huey Long Affects Garsaud's Status

(Associated Press.)

Marcel Garsaud, hoping that Huey Long will return to his senatorial duties soon, is attending informal meetings of the Power Commission, but he is no longer a member. Confirmation of the reappointment of Garsaud, whose two-year term expired Wednesday, has been blocked by Senator Long, his Louisiana political enemy, and the nomination has been returned to committee.

Long is in Chicago for the Democratic convention. If the Senate adjourns without acting on the reappointment it is possible for the President to give Garsaud a recess appointment, but he would be forced to serve without pay until the Senate passes on his case next December.

Furs and Feathers Lead At Fashion Show Race

Auteuil, France, June 24 (A.P.).—Furs and feathers ruled today's fashionable Prix des Drags, famous French steeplechase here. Double fox scarves worn crossed over in back instead of in front, and short jackets of summer ermine featured the outstanding pelts, while colored and black ostrich boas, coq feather capes and feather crowned hats lead the feathered mode.

Velvet was the outstanding fall fabric for dark coats, brilliant coatees, fur-trimmed suits, and hats. Brilliant red was evidenced everywhere, in wool suits, coats, crepe frocks, hats, and gloves. Purple also was prominent. Crinkled fabrics such as quilted velvets and muslin were noteworthy.

Texas Delegates Leave Dallas for Convention

Dallas, Tex., June 24 (A.P.).—The main body of Texas delegates to the Democratic national convention left here on a special train for Chicago about 6 p. m. today. The Old Gray Mare Band, famed for its enlivening music at many Texas gatherings, was aboard.

Delegates included Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt. The route was from Dallas to St. Louis and thence to Chicago, where arrival was scheduled for 8 p. m. Saturday.

Wife of Bonus Marcher Hurt.

Mrs. Margaret Rosencrans, 36 years old, of York, Pa., wife of a bonus marcher at the Anacostia camp, was treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday for a sprained ankle, received earlier in the day when the automobile in which she was riding was in collision with another machine on Baltimore boulevard.

Child, 8, Bitten by Dog.

Louise Wilkins, 8 years old, of 904 Hamlin street northeast, was treated at Children's Hospital yesterday for a severe laceration to her left wrist, received when attacked by a dog while visiting friends in Capital Heights, Md. Her condition is not serious.

ROOSEVELT GROUPS WIN IN COMMITTEE

Long's and Hoidale's Delegations Are Placed on Temporary Roll.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—With Roosevelt leaders in the saddle, the Huey Long delegation from Louisiana and the Einar Hoidale delegation from Minnesota, both favoring Franklin Roosevelt for President, were recognized by the Democratic national committee tonight over contesting delegations and placed on the temporary convention roll.

The committee also voted unanimously tonight to seat the Puerto Rican delegation of six headed by Mrs. Jean S. Whittemore, of Mayaguez. W. R. Bennett, of San Juan, pleaded that his organization be recognized so it could go ahead with important educational work under way.

The contests were heard in an atmosphere that alternated between near physical combat and high humor, shouts and laughter, and the word "lie" rang through the hall. Several times peacemakers grabbed their spokesmen to prevent fights, and John J. Raskob, chairman, pounded his gavel to drown out the chorus of protestants.

Another Fight Monday.

The same fight will be carried to the credentials committee when it is appointed Monday by the convention, and it is not unlikely that at least one of the contests will reach the floor of the convention hall for decision by the delegates.

The hand of the Roosevelt organization was clearly apparent as Arthur Mullen, of Nebraska, and J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, Roosevelt leaders, took the floor in behalf of the Hoidale and Long delegations.

The Roosevelt Minnesotans won recognition by 71 to 14 and Long's Louisiana delegates by 55 to 32.

The Minnesota case opened in a wrangle and closed in the same temper. John E. Regan, of Mankato, representing the opposing Smith delegation, charged that the Democratic manager in the last campaign had refused to send the campaign funds to him because he "wouldn't trust him."

"Dirty Crook" Is Hurled.

"You are a liar," said Joseph Wolf, Democratic national committeeman, from his seat on the front row.

"They sold out to the Republicans, too," shouted Regan.

"You are another liar and a dirty crook," replied Wolf with a movement as if to rise. Some one held him in his seat and Jed C. Adams, national committeeman from Texas, appealed to the chair to restore order.

The Roosevelt delegates charged that the Smith delegates held a rump convention because they lost out in the State convention and the Smith delegates charged the others had "corrupted Democracy in Minnesota."

In the Louisiana dispute Jared Sanders, former governor and chairman of the anti-Long faction, said the contest was between "elected" and "selected" delegates to the convention and was a struggle against Huey Long "bossism."

Pennsylvania Seat Is Given to Mundy

Democratic National Body Decides Contest in Twelfth District.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Leo C. Mundy, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was seated by a viva-voce vote as delegate from the Twelfth Pennsylvania District, after a brief hearing by the Democratic national committee tonight.

Peter J. McCormick, of Wilkes-Barre, produced proof to show Dr. Mundy was registered as a Republican. Warner J. Van Dyke, chairman of the Republican State committe of Pennsylvania, admitted Dr. Mundy's Republican registration, but asserted the Mundy family and Dr. Mundy were Democrats and the cross-party registering was good "bushwacking" practice in Wilkes-Barre, where one party commonly raided the ranks of the other.

In the Pennsylvania election Dr. Mundy defeated McCormick, 9,804 to 5,902, Van Dyke testified.

might be chosen from outside the board, it was indicated officially this course was open if the group so desired, and that the directors probably would do so. Robinson said he doubted they could do this.

Cowles was appointed to fill the vacancy on the board left by Dawes' resignation, but not to succeed him as president.

Robinson, basing his attack on news dispatches that said Mr. Hoover intended to select from outside the board another person to fill the post as president, shouted "The President of the United States has no authority, under the law, to select the president of this corporation."

"He had no authority to name Gen. Dawes as president of the corporation," he continued. "His authority was limited to designating the appointee as a member of the board of directors."

'TWO-THIRDS RULE' JUST CENTURY OLD

Jackson's "Kitchen Cabinet" Devised It to Put Van Buren Over.

Baltimore, June 24 (A.P.).—The troublesome "two-thirds" rule which is bothering leaders of the Democratic national convention opening in Chicago next week originated a century ago at the party's convention in Baltimore.

Andrew Jackson had been nominated as the presidential candidate by action of the State Legislatures under the system which prevailed then. The party convention was called in Baltimore late in May, 1832, for the purpose of naming its candidate for Vice President.

Martin Van Buren was Jackson's choice for the Vice Presidency and he called the convention for the purpose of overcoming opposition to Van Buren. The two-thirds rule, credited to Jackson's famous "kitchen cabinet," was adopted without causing any discussion.

Text as Formally Adopted.

At the party convention four years later, also in Baltimore, when Van Buren was Jackson's choice as his successor, the rule was adopted as follows:

"Resolved, That the delegates from each State in this convention be entitled to as many votes in selecting suitable persons for the offices of President and Vice President as such State is entitled to in the electoral college for the choice of the officers by law and that two-thirds of the whole of votes given be required for the nomination and all questions connected therewith."

On a motion of Mr. Allen, of Massachusetts, the word "majority" was substituted for "two-thirds" but Mr. Saunders, of North Carolina, chairman of the rules committee, succeeded the following day in having "two-thirds" replaced in the resolution.

Rule Suspended in 1860.

Van Buren failed to be renominated in 1840 because he could not muster two-thirds of the vote. Champ Clark in 1912 got a majority, but not the two-thirds and Woodrow Wilson was nominated.

The rule was suspended in 1860 when a party quarrel at the Charleston (S. C.) convention resulted in a large part of the delegates leaving the gathering. Stephen A. Douglas could not get a two-thirds vote so another convention was called, the rule suspended and Douglas nominated. John C. Breckenridge was named by the bolters and Abraham Lincoln by the Republicans.

Saunders in the 1836 convention suggested that a "majority" of the convention could at any time change the rule.

Threatening Letter Bill Passes Senate

Measure Would Punish Senders of Unlawful Demands by Mail.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday amended and passed the Cochran House bill to punish sending threatening letters through the mails and ordered conferees named to speed action so that it might be enacted into law soon. The bill provides for sentences ranging up to 20 years and fines of up to $5,000 in addition.

The major Senate change provided that the defendant be tried in the judiciary district in which the threatening letter was mailed, if sent from within the United States. The House measure would have permitted trial either there or wherever received.

The measure would apply to those threatening to injure the property or reputation of the person receiving the letter or demanding ransom for a kidnaped person, or threatening kidnaping. Action was held up several weeks by the Senate judiciary committee before the Lindebrgh baby was found dead in the fear that passage of it might interfere with the search for the child.

Shortridge Seeks Hearing on Bailey

Attempts to Call Up Resolution on Contest, but Drops Effort.

(Associated Press.)

Another unsuccessful effort was made in the Senate yesterday by Chairman Shortridge, of the elections committee, to call up the resolution for consideration of the contest brought by George M. Pritchard against the election of Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader said the record showed the contest was "trivial" and served notice he would seek to substitute a resolution dismissing it. "The public money ought not to be spent on the prosecution of this contest," Senator Robinson said.

Senator Shortridge pointed out the committee had taken the position "the pleadings were sufficient to justify going forward," but withdrew his attempt to call the resolution up.

Bands Break Into Welcome As Leaders Reach Chicago

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—Emphasis with abandon on trombones, tubas and bass horns today made a field day for musicians and suggested that the Democrats will insist upon being heard.

More band music is on tap for tomorrow and before the formal start of the convention Monday a lot of bandsmen promise to be all out of breath.

The first musical demonstration was for Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, the band struck up "Maryland, My Maryland," when his train arrived and then switched to "Anchors Aweigh," the football song of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. "How Dry I Am" was played in mournful notes.

Jimmy Walker was greeted by a blare of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and "The Sidewalks of New York." The bandsmen did not have the music of "Will You Love Me in December as You Did in May?" for which the New York mayor was grateful.

Early tomorrow a band will welcome the California delegation with "California, How I Love Your Sunny Skies," and later in the day the big Texas delegation will bring its band with it. The Old Gray Mare Band of Fort Worth, well remembered at the Houston convention in 1928.

It is certain the Old Gray Mare group will play "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," to the rollicking tune of "I've Been Working on a Railroad."

Another band is on its way from Oklahoma to do some tooting for Gov. Murray. It struck a sour note in Missouri, however, when the drivers of the bus in which the band was traveling were arrested for operating a motor vehicle without Missouri license plates.

The guardians of the public peace finally relented, however, but furnished an escort to see the musicians across the State line.

Interruption of Roll Calls Held Convention Menace

Democrat Parliamentarian Tells Peril of Oratory Swaying Crowd.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—"Don't interrupt a roll call."

That is the admonition that Representative Clarence Cannon, of Elsberry, Mo., will give the chairman of the 1932 Democratic convention, as he gave it to the chairmen of the 1920, 1924 and 1928 gatherings.

It is his privilege to give it. He is the party parliamentarian by right of selection and knowledge.

His reasons for telling the chairmen to let the roll call go on are simple. In the first place, the rule is that nothing can interrupt it once it has begun. Next, he has seen that rule violated and has witnessed the tangle which resulted.

"Bryan," Cannon reminisces, "frequently got recognized during a roll call. It was hard not to give him the privilege and once he got the floor, his influence was an astounding thing. That voice of his influenced the emotions like music.

"I recall that a chairman who recognized him during a roll call got uneasy as he watched the delegates begin to sway to Bryan's oratory. He wanted to get him down and appealed to me. But I told the presiding officer that while Bryan should not have been recognized in the first place, that once he was up, he was entitled to his full time."

Rules, and strict ones, in Cannon's opinion, are the only things which permit a national convention to function at all. The delegates are a huge and unwieldy group and the routine must be arranged beforehand.

Only on the controversial questions

CLARENCE CANNON.

—contested platform planks, the selection of the nominees themselves and the like—is there room for expression of opinion.

"Otherwise," Cannon says, "we'd probably be in session all year."

Convention chairmen in the past have kept Cannon at their elbow, ready to turn to him when a puzzling question of procedure arose. The black-haired, soft-voiced Missouri Democrat knows parliamentary law and its precedents. His writings on the subject are regarded as authoritative. He has been House parliamentarian under both Democratic and Republican leadership.

He is serving his fifth term in the House.

ROOSEVELT MEN SPURN STEPS TO END TWO-THIRDS BATTLE

nominee, had called him today from Dayton, Ohio, and told him he was opposed to abrogation of the two-thirds rule. He said he also had advices from New York that John W. Davis, the 1924 standard-bearer, is against a change at this time. Davis is reported en route here.

Again asked whether he would support the nominee of this convention, Smith replied:

"That is not a question to be asked or answered at this time because I don't know what the convention will do."

If Smith succeeds in the strategy that delegate circles attributed to him this afternoon, the bitterness will be carried over into roll call after roll call on the nomination proper. How to avert another Madison Square Garden debacle, especially since they are confronted with a situation that might bring one, occupied more than one neutral Democratic mind tonight.

"Favorite Sons" Hold Key.

It was a conference between the two principals in that hot and long battle—Smith and William Gibbs McAdoo—that led to the belief today that the former was heading up the forces against Roosevelt.

One of the recourses is to have the "favorite son" blocks of votes stay put, so long as the New York Governor is in the running. To what extent the States affected would abide by that remains to be seen.

Much speculation was aroused by the declaration of John F. Curry, heading the formidable Tammany delegation, that it would "fight to the last" the attempt to abandon the rule. Care was quickly taken to pass the word, however, that this did not necessarily mean the Tammany vote would be against Roosevelt on the nomination call.

This declaration, the first by Curry since his arrival, was generally interpreted as meaning he would throw all his strength into the controversy in order to maintain a dominant position in the convention.

Curry Avoids Commitment.

For months Tammany has remained silent while the contest for delegates waged. Every attempt to get Curry to indicate his choice nominee has been met by the silence for which he is noted.

It has long been an open secret in Tammany circles, however, that Curry would attempt to get control of the convention by not committing his delegation of 45 or 50 until the last moment.

Farley, Roosevelt campaign manager, this week took cognizance of Curry's position by saying that if the New York vote were added to Roosevelt's pledged, instructed and claimed total, it would give the New York Governor virtually two-thirds of the delegates.

Aids of the Tammany leader, who sit at his elbow when vital decisions are made, said tonight that Curry saw in the proposed abrogation of the two-thirds rule a loss of this commanding position. They asserted it was this fact which prompted his decision to oppose the change.

Glass for Two-Thirds Rule.

While conflicting and unsubstantiated rumors flew through crowded hotel corridors that the organization's support would go to Ritchie, Garner or Baker, it was authoritatively stated that no decision had been reached and that Tammany's attitude might not be made known even after the New York caucus Sunday.

J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, was selected by the Roosevelt people to head the rules committee which will get to work Monday on the proposed shift in the nomination requirements.

As an example of the intensity of feeling, such a regular Democrat as Senator Glass, of Virginia, declared today:

"I wouldn't support any man who takes the short cut that way. If the Democrats want to recommend abolition of the rule at the next convention, that's different but to pull a snap play like this in the middle of the game is not playing the game, as I see it."

He is backing former Gov. Byrd of Virginia for the nomination.

Meanwhile, those in charge of the Democratic "victory fund" campaign reported $719,587 of the million and a half dollars sought had been contributed. Some $200,000 more has been promised to defray convention expenses.

Democrats Now Using Hoover 'Coins' of 1928

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—In the inner sanctum of Democracy, on the convention headquarters desk of Jouett Shouse, chairman of the party's executive committee, stands a box filled with Republican campaign ammunition.

In the collection are hundreds of the "Hoover Lucky Pocket Pieces," the size of a quarter dollar, distributed by Republican managers in 1928. They bear the promise: "Good for four years of prosperity."

"Have a handful," says Shouse to his visitors.

Reformed Church Votes For Women in Pulpits

Akron, June 24 (A.P.).—Women may become pastors of the Reformed Churches in the United States, the General Synod decided in approving a change in its constitution during session here today. The constitutional amendment gives women the same right as men to hold office.

Another amendment was passed to allow a minister of any other denomination to preach the opening sermon at a meeting of local classes. The synod received a report upholding prohibition, declaring for unemployment insurance and kindred measures, and urging definite stands on marriage and divorce.

8 Banks in Arizona Close Their Doors

Five Cities Left Without Depositaries Through Phoenix Failure.

Phoenix, Ariz., June 24 (A.P.).—The Arizona bank here, and its branches at Flagstaff, Kingman, Winslow, McNary, Chandler and Williams, closed today. The State banking department said constant withdrawals and inability to meet demands were the reasons for the closing.

The First National Bank of Mesa also closed its doors on order of the board of directors "for protection of depositors."

In its statement of December 31, 1931, the Arizona bank listed total resources of $4,178,815.83, capital stock $250,000, surplus $50,000 and deposits $3,847,117.64.

The First National Bank of Mesa in its statement of December 31, 1931, listed total resources $741,631.82, capital stock $100,000, surplus $1,484.77 and deposits $451,743.55.

The closing of the Arizona bank left five of the smaller cities without banking facilities.

William E. Conley Chosen to Succeed Babcock as Commander.

San Diego, Calif., June 24 (A.P.).—William E. Conley, of Los Angeles, was elected national commander to succeed E. Claude Babcock, of Washington, D. C., at the convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War today. Cincinnati, where the veterans' national headquarters are located, was chosen over Grand Rapids, Mich., as the 1933 convention city.

Shortly before the election began the convention reiterated its demand upon Congress for immediate and full cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates. The D. A. V. Auxiliary also elected today, unanimously agreeing upon Mrs. Frieda Mooney, of Los Angeles, to remain as national commander.

In addition to the election of Conley, the D. A. V. elected: Senior vice commander, A. B. Powell, of Birmingham, Ala.; first junior vice commander, S. H. Salonen, Walla Walla, Wash.; second junior vice commander, Dr. Paul C. Hartig, Minneapolis; third junior vice commander, Peter Nugent, New Haven, Conn.; fourth junior vice commander, W. J. Righetti, Phoenix, Ariz.; national chaplain, Joe J. Murray, Dallas, Tex. Vollmer Mooney, of Los Angeles, was reelected judge advocate.

HOPPER RELIEF PUT UP TO HOUSE AGAIN

Provision Only One Delaying Accord on Agriculture Appropriation Bill.

(Associated Press.)

The question of whether Federal funds will be sent to Northwestern States to rid them of grasshoppers again yesterday was put by the Senate squarely up to the House, which three times has rejected the idea.

Acting on the motion of Chairman McNary (Republican), Oregon, of the agriculture committee, the Senate refused to yield its contention the Government should aid in controlling the pests.

In approving a partial conference report on the remaining disputed sections of the $175,000,000 Agriculture Department appropriation bill, the Senate instructed its conferees to insist on the bill carrying funds for grasshopper control.

Ready to Compromise.

This is the only provision on which they now are disagreed. As approved by the Senate the bill carries $1,450,000 to fight grasshoppers, but the Senate and sponsors in both houses are ready to compromise for about half that sum.

The bill, and grasshopper section, require the approval of both House and Senate and the signature of President Hoover before the money can be set aside for use.

Meanwhile, Secretary Hyde, who recently agreed to support a $600,000 fund urged by House sponsors, said entomologists reported the menace had been reduced.

Blamed on Hyde.

Responsibility for House refusal to pass the fund in the bill was placed on Hyde yesterday by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, in Senate debate, and McNary said "it is hoped the House will recede."

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, asserted "many members of the House do not understand what this means," explaining "they have never had any experience with grasshoppers, and some look on the whole thing as a joke."

The Senate conferees, who will discuss the control fund with a like group of House members, are: McNary, Jones (Republican), Washington; Keyes (Republican), New Hampshire; Kendrick (Democrat), Wyoming, and Hayden (Democrat), Arizona.

Two Held in Plot To Extort Money

Former Police Chief Puts Blame on Erstwhile Carolina Mayor.

Wilmington, N. C., June 24 (A.P.).—Parker Quince Moore, former mayor of Wilmington, and J. J. Furlong, sr., former police chief and county recorder, were bound over to Superior Court today on charges of attempting to extort money from Mrs. Jessie Kenan Wise, wealthy philanthropist.

Furlong took the stand in his own defense in a preliminary hearing before Judge Henry A. Grady and charged Moore with sole blame for the alleged plot. He said Moore asked him to send for a package of whisky at a filling station on Newbern road and that he did it. Furlong declared he believed the package which contained "bait money" planted to trap the alleged extortionists, actually contained whisky.

Moore and Furlong are accused of having written threatening letters to Mrs. Wise demanding first $25,000 and then $20,000 under pain of bodily injury or her life. Furlong was arrested after police took into custody several Negroes who were said to have received a package containing money at a filling station about seven miles from here. Moore was arrested several days later.

Two Men Are Arrested By Police in Rum Raid

A raiding party headed by Policemen B. F. Day and W. D. Perry of the Fourth Precinct liquor squad last night entered a home at 221 Ninth street southwest, and arrested William Henry Clark, 38, and George Myers, 32, on charges of possession and maintaining a gambling establishment.

Twenty bottles of beer and two pints of alleged liquor were found and held for evidence. A quantity was destroyed by breaking bottles before the raiders gained entrance, policemen said.

Home Robbery Nets $23.

A pocketbook containing $23 was stolen from the home of Frederick W. Lostach 3619 Fulton street northwest some time Thursday night.

U.S.-BRITISH ACCORD ON ARMS REPORTED

Gentlemen's Agreement to Bolster Geneva and Lausanne Actions.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

London, June 24.—The United States and Great Britain have reached an unwritten "gentlemen's agreement" that they will follow the same disarmament policy and that reparations payments must cease, it was declared tonight upon the most reliable authority.

The agreement would be effective only in event of failure of the Geneva disarmament conference and the Lausanne reparations conference.

This authority said the agreement also provides for the United States to grant Britain special debts reductions, or a moratorium, to be announced after the United States elections—provided, of course, that the present administration is returned to office.

Official Denial Expected.

The news of this understanding probably will be vigorously denied in official quarters but it was given to the United Press by an excellent source. The negotiations were conducted chiefly in London by American Ambasssador Andrew W. Mellon, acting upon cabled instructions from Washington.

Mellon conferred with Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon and other high officials of the foreign office. The chief object of the negotiations was to prevent a European collapse, which was feared in event of failure of the Geneva and Lausanne conferences. The negotiations were understood to have been proceeding for some time, but they have been pressed in the last few days.

Significance of Agreement.

The significance of the agreement is that, in event a general agreement to abolish reparations and reduce armaments can not be achieved by the nations, Britain presumably will undertake to abandon reparations payments due her from Germany. She would do this even if other European nations, such as France, decline to make similar renunciations.

This, together with the united Anglo-American front on disarmament, reportedly was one of the conditions on which the United States is prepared to reopen separate negotiations with Britain for a readjustment of war debt payments.

Meanwhile, the cabinet, called into special session by Acting Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, discussed the new American plan for debts reduction, as presented by Simon.

Murderers Hidden From U.S. Official

Louisiana Sheriffs Hope to Forestall Trial on Kidnaping Charge.

Murfreesboro, Ark., June 24 (A.P.).—Three Louisiana sheriffs and a posse hurried from Murfreesboro today with two bank bandits accused of murder and kidnaping to forestall any effort by federal authorities to try them under the new interstate kidnaping law, signed Wednesday by President Hoover.

The sheriffs said they would take the prisoners to a jail in Louisiana, but they refused to denote their destination. Louisiana authorities intend to try the men on a charge of murdering Deputy Sheriff Elmo Ferguson. The sheriffs made it plain they were not taking any chances on the Federal officials getting prior custody.

The United States district attorney, W. N. Ivie, announced last night he would prefer charges under the kidnaping law and would send officers to Murfreesboro for the prisoners today.

Ferguson was shot as he and a posse chased the bandits from Baskin, La., after a bank robbery there Tuesday.

Yesterday the fugitives kidnaped Clyde Taylor, a planter, and his wife and fled from Louisiana in their automobile, meanwhile holding the Taylors as hostages.

Bank Improvement Continues in May 17 of 77 Institutions Closed During Month Are Reopened.

(Associated Press.)

The general improvement in the banking situation during recent months was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board to have continued during May. In that month, there were 77 bank failures with aggregate deposits of $36,084,000, compared with 71 the month before involving $31,924,000, and 91 the same month last year with deposits of $43,210,000.

The net loss in the banking structure was 60 institutions and $14,091,000 in deposits, as seventeen banks were reopened, restoring a deposit of $21,993,000.

During the four months which have elapsed since creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation there have been 318 failures, as compared with 342 in January and 358 last December. The peak in suspensions was witnessed last October when 522 institutions closed their doors, involving deposits of $471,000,000.

Two Ordered Held In Thurman Death

Wife of Accused Logan Official and Lodger Are to Be Questioned.

Logan, W. Va., June 24 (A.P.).—L. P. Hager, Logan County prosecuting attorney, today said he had ordered Mrs. Harry Robertson and Oscar Townsend, lodger in the Robertson home, held for investigation in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Mae Thurman, wife of a Logan patrolman.

Mrs. Robertson's husband, president of the Logan City Commission, and his odd-jobs man, Clarence Stephenson, Negro, have been charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Thurman. Robertson told State police he had known her for several years.

"Both Mrs. Robertson and Mr. Townsend," Mr. Hager said, "are being held for investigation. We are convinced from the circumstances and evidence heard that the murder was committed by some one connected with the Robertson home, or some one employed by them."

Arms Cut Plan Emphasizes Huge World Cost of Wars

Nations Spend More Than $4,000,000,000 Annually Upon Armaments; Big Powers, Except Germany, Have Boosted Outlay Since 1913.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's proposal to reduce the arms of the world by nearly one-third spotlights the tribute that Mars has levied upon the peoples of the earth.

Between four and five billion dollars are the estimates by economists of the total annual world expenditure upon armaments, the exact amount depending upon whether pensions, special war charges, civil expenditures and similar items are included.

On the basis of figures supplied the League of Nations council, and estimates published in the armaments year-book for 1930-31, the total armament expenditures of 57 countries are about $4,500,000,000.

7 Powers Biggest Spenders.

Seven great powers absorbed two-thirds of the total world armament expenditure in 1930. The national defense expenditures—including all those of the army and the navy, excepting war pensions—of Germany, France, Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Soviet Russia and the United States, are placed at $2,154,000,000 in 1913 as compared with $2,958,800,000 in 1930, an increase of about 37 per cent.

Excluding Germany, whose national defense bill in 1930 was 63 per cent under that of 1913, the other six nations spent $1,690,700,000 in 1913 and $2,788,400,000 in 1930, an increase of approximately 65 per cent.

Economists estimate the average general rise of price levels in these countries since 1913 was not more than 26 per cent.

The following table, compiled by the Foreign Policy Association, shows the national defense expenditures of the seven nations in 1913 and 1930, with the percentage of increase or decrease and the index of wholesale prices:

(In millions of dollars.)	1913	1930	Pct. of increase or decrease.	Index of wholesale prices.
Great Britain	376.1	336.0	+42	116
France	346.7	455.3	+30	106
Italy	179.1	258.9	+44	100
Japan	98.6	272.1	+142	183
Russia	447.7	*779.4	+30	183
United States	244.6	727.7	+197	118
Totals	1,690.7	2,788.4	+65
Germany	463.3	170.4	—63	122

*1928 figure.

Budget estimates for the fiscal year 1930-31 disclose that Great Britain apportioned about 13.8 per cent of its total budget to the maintenance of the army, navy and air forces, including ordinary pensions.

Executive of pensions, France applied 21.9 per cent of all its expenditures to the three military branches, and the United States, on the basis of appropriations for the same fiscal year, employed 16.5 per cent of its total budget for the Army and Navy.

Economists estimate that if the annual debt charges growing out of the World War, together wth war pensions and veterans' compensations, are added to the current defense expenditures to show the proportion of the total budget attributable to past wars and military preparations, the French budget for 1930-31 would show the application of 60 per cent of its total for pensions, debt service, and the army, navy and air forces.

Britain's budget would register 85 per cent and the United States would reveal 60 per cent attributable to past wars with attendant preparations.

Pronounced has been the increase of national defense expenditures during the last five years. The expenditure for 1930-31 of the seven powers discloses a 30 per cent gain over the fiscal year 1926-27, although the average level of prices in the countries declined.

Great Britain is the only government with a reduction, expenditures falling from 116,000,000 to 110,000,000 pounds.

Statement by President On Idle Relief Measure

in line with major objectives I have been advocating.

On the other hand, I intensely regret that these major provisions for relief of unemployment in both the Garner and the Wagner bills should have been made the vehicle for committing the Federal Treasury to the expenditure of from $500,000,000 to $1,200,000,000 for nonproductive public works, as these provisions have the triple vice of being a charge on the taxpayer, of unbalancing the budget and of providing only a small amount of employment and that to a large extent in localities where it is not needed.

Any study of many of these public works provisions will indicate plainly their pork barrel characteristics. A large part of the expenditures proposed are wasteful in the present times.

They impose tremendous future costs on the people for maintenance; they are not economically needed. Much of it represents a squandering of public money. Much of it is mechanicalized work.

The reports of the different technical bureaus of the Government show that they would produce direct employment during the next year to an average of less than 100,000 men out of the many million unemployed.

These expenditures can not be recovered; they must be met by the taxpayer now or in the future. In order to execute them appropriations must be made to different departments and thus a deficiency created in the budget of anywhere from $500,000,000 to $1,300,000,000.

Such a deficiency can not be disguised by accounting phrases. We have worked for four months in a heart-breaking struggle to bring about a balanced budget.

We have imposed $1,100,000,000 in taxes upon the people; we have reduced Government expenditure by $600,000,000 or $700,000,000 through which many Government employes will have lost employment all in order that we might maintain the integrity of Federal credit.

To start now to break down that credit and stability will result in the eventual unemployment of far more men than this comparatively few who are benefited.

We can not restore employment in the United States by these methods.

It would be far better to increase the authorizations to the Reconstruction Corporation to make loans for reproductive works which will be repaid by the additional amounts proposed for nonproductive public works than to resort to these dangerous courses. It also would give more actual and continued employment.

There is another phase of the bill as passed which is disheartening. The $300,000,000 which I recommended should be loaned to such States as are unable to finance care of their own distressed were to be made on proper loan terms, and the whole sum was to be available for application to the points of need.

It has been transformed into a pork barrel operation by being apportioned amongst all States according to population, irrespective of their needs.

The amounts assignable to States which have major burdens of unemployment are insufficient for their purpose, and the great majority of States which have the ability and will to take care of their own are now invited to dip into the Federal Treasury.

It is unfortunate also that the provision for agricultural relief through the Reconstruction Corporation was omitted. Authority is needed to assure term credits for storage and carrying of these commodities so as to restore orderly marketing in the normal way.

That proposal is the most fundamental of all in agricultural relief and could stop the debacle in agricultural prices. These products are today stagnant because of the fear of manufacturers, processors, and dealers that they can not be sure of continuous credits at fixed rates to carry their stocks in normal fashion; and thus the burden of carrying national reserves is thrust on the farmer, with the result of demoralization of prices.

There is, however, a possibility of immediately rectifying these destructive factors and delinquencies of the bill. The Senate bill and the House bill differ totally in text. I am advised that it is within the power of the conferees to rewrite the bill perfecting the fine, constructive provisions and eliminating these wholly destructive proposals. I earnestly hope that this may be done.

though possibly not so apparent on the surface, is the fact that the organized labor movement lost in one fell swoop the only large group of organized brain workers—"white collar" workers, if that is preferred—which ever has been affiliated with the organized labor movement. The Federal employes' union included in its membership scientists, artists, historians, economists, administrators charged with expenditures of millions, engineers, physicians, lawyers, as well as stenographers, clerks and men and women earning their bread through more muscular jobs. Spread of the employes' federation had brought into the organized labor movement, headed by the A. F. of L. thousands of persons who, a few years ago, felt themselves outside the realm and interests of the organized labor movement. Incidentally, the separation of the white collar organization from the A. F. of L. was brought about by representatives of the overalls and muscle workers independently affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Thirteen of the fifteen who were suspended from membership were parties to the suit which was filed some months ago to compel reaffiliation with the A. F. of L. That suit, it was said by Luther C. Steward, president, and Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer, of the N. F. P. E., was financed by the A. F. of L. and prosecuted by A. F. of L. attorneys.

The suspended thirteen who filed the suit were David R. Glass, Veterans Bureau, Clarendon, Va.; George Kearney, Justice; Sophie J. Bergner, U. S. Tariff Commission; William S. Douglas, Navy Department; Willis E. Hurd, Agriculture; John R. Newman, Treasury; Alvin T. Griffith and Frank A. McNicol, St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane, under Interior Department; George L. Jeffrey and James P. McKeon, Bureau of Standards; Elmer H. Bailey War; Sophie Weber and Ada L. Simmons, Treasury. The two additional persons suspended were J. Arthur Shaw, Labor, and C. W. Browning, Navy.

The suit filed by the thirteen members, Mr. Steward and Miss McNally said, was discussed at a meeting of the executive council of the A. F. of L. before it was filed and was financed by that organization at a cost of thousands of dollars. The decision of Justice Adkins, of the District Supreme Court, throwing the suit out of court, confirmed the majority decision of the N. F. P. E. and made their position legally impregnable, the leaders said.

The "amazing fact" had been disclosed that the A. F. of L. had sought to use courts to impose their will despite their professed cardinal principle of voluntary association, the letter continued. The campaign of the A. F. of L. to disrupt the Government workers' union, Mr. Steward and Miss McNally said, had included the employment of three former employes of the N. F. P. E. who had been dismissed for inefficiency and they cited "as substantial evidence of the inefficiency of the present executive officers of the A. F. of L. the fact that five former employes of the N. F. P. E., dismissed for inefficiency, for the use of narcotic drugs, or for financial dishonesty," were employed in the effort.

The letter did not even infer that any of the fifteen suspended from the N. F. P. E. were included in the criticism of former employes of the union and Mr. Steward made it plain in a supplemental statement that they were not referred to.

DEBT STANDS TAKEN BY BERLIN AND PARIS

Compromise Planned After Opposing Positions Are Stated in Parley.

Lausanne, June 24 (U.P.).—In the friendly atmosphere of a conference room, Germany today indirectly informed France why it seems impossible for Germany ever to resume reparations payments and, in turn, France explained why the Reich should pay more after recovering from the present economic crisis.

Then, with the two countries most vitally concerned having laid down their opposing views, their economic experts decided to meet again tomorrow and prepare a plan to be discussed on Monday by French Premier Edouard Herriot and German Chancellor Franz von Papen.

"The conference was held," Herriot said, "in a good atmosphere and on a good tone."

Herriot and Col. von Papen were on the most friendly terms, the French premier accompanying the chancellor to his hotel when the morning session was concluded.

A German spokesman said Col. von Papen informed Herriot that Germany was willing to join France in economic reorganization of Europe, in cooperation with Britain and Italy, and with political guarantees in the form of a consultative pact which the Germans proposed tentatively several days ago.

Later the Belgian delegation presented to British Prime Minister MacDonald a tentative project for economic and financial reconstruction of Europe, providing for:

Reorganization of German public utilities to assure the monetary stability of the Reich.

Organization of a credit institution, probably under the International Bank, to aid central and eastern Europe.

Reform of tariff systems to revive trade with a view to gradually lowering entry schedules.

The Belgians also actively discussed a scheme for mobilization of the world's gold resources to restore credit.

Ziegfeld Is Recuperating From Influenza Effects

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Florenz Ziegfeld, theatrical producer, was recuperating tonight from the effects of an influenza attack which he suffered last February and from which he did not completely recover. He was placed under the care of nurses when overwork brought on a relapse.

His wife, Billie Burke, said his condition was considered critical for a time last night, but he was much improved today. His physicians ordered him to take a long rest.

State Troopers Sent To Coal Strike Zone

Charleston, W. Va., June 24 (A.P.).—Thirty State troopers were ordered to the Fairmont coal mine strike zone today by Superintendent R. L. Osborn of the State police.

Minor violence has occured in the area since the strike was called by the United Mine Workers of America last week. The union is seeking wage contracts with companies operating non-union mines in the field.

Alternate Gets V. P. I. Award.

Purcellville, Va., June 24 (Special).—The $300 scholarship to Virginia Polytechnic Institute, given by former Gov. and Mrs. Westmoreland Davis, has been transferred to Gardner Case, graduate of Lincoln High School, alternate in the county contest. The winner of first place in the contest, Lewis Keyes, graduate of Leesburg High School, has been awarded a four-year scholarship to V. M. I., Lexington.

HOOVER RENEWS ATTACK AS AID BILL IS ADVANCED

the hope that they might be eliminated.

"I am advised," he said, "that it is within the power of the conferees to rewrite the bill perfecting the fine, constructive provisions and eliminating these wholly destructive proposals. I earnestly hope that this may be done."

The President's statement drew an immediate retort from Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

"From my standpoint," he told newspapermen, "the measure is not fairly subject to criticism as 'pork barrel' legislation. It is to be hoped that when the bill finally passes the President will approve it even though it may contain some features which he feels are subject to criticism."

After sending the relief bill to conference, the House, with nothing else to do, adjourned until Monday to await the outcome of negotiations for a compromise on the measure between the two branches of Congress. The conferees will meet today.

The wheat bill was approved in record time without debate and by unanimous consent.

The Senate substituted the McNary bill, providing 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, in place of the House measure advancing 40,000,000 bushels and 500,000 bales of cotton. The two will go to conference for agreement.

Congress last winter authorized turning over 40,000,000 bushels of wheat from the board's overflowing bins to the Red Cross for distribution to the destitute, but this almost has been exhausted.

Garner Plans Fight.

There were indications on the House side that Speaker Garner was prepared to make a vigorous fight for his bill when he sought to shatter precedent by serving himself as one of the conferees.

Garner brought on a warm discussion in the House when he announced he had intended to appoint himself, Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, and Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, as conferees, but that he had been compelled to abandon this plan, because the latter "declined to accept the responsibility."

Obviously irritated, Snell denied that he was shirking responsibility, but insisted that members of the ways and means committee, which handled the legislation, should serve as usual.

Garner finally appointed Chairman Collier, Representative Crisp, of Georgia, and Rainey, Illinois, Democrats, and Representatives Treadway, Massachusetts, and Bacharach, of New Jersey, Republicans, all ways and means committee members.

Rainey predicted no agreement would be reached until late next week, and added that "Congress can't adjourn until some time after that."

Relief Loans to States Are Urged by Chamber

(Associated Press.)

Loans to States through the Reconstruction Corporation to relieve unemployment, and greater cooperation between Government and business to improve economic conditions were urged yesterday by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"In striving to carry out its program," Henry I. Harriman, the president said, "the chamber will enlist the active support of its member organizations throughout the country * * * The program centers upon measures designed to hasten business recovery and contemplates the establishment and carrying out of national policies which will give in the future a more orderly direction to national economic forces."

The board urged that the power of the Reconstruction Corporation be enlarged to permit lending $500,000,000 to States which have exhausted their resources in caring for the unemployed. The loans would be allocated on the basis of needs and requirements, as advocated by President Hoover, and not on a basis of population, as provided in the Wagner bill.

The board again went on record in favor of decreased expenditures by Federal, State and local governments, and recommended that the President be given authority to veto separate items in appropriation bills instead of being forced to accept all or none.

"The chamber will seek the cooperation of Government in improving the agricultural situation," the board statement said, "as one of the most important factors in bringing about more normal conditions; in the amendment of antitrust laws; in removing the Government from competitive business; in improving our banking laws to strengthen our banking structure, in bringing about a coordinated national transportation system, in solving the prohibition problem as an economic measure."

Europe May Balk at Arms Cut, If Uniforms Must Go

By JOHN J. DALY

WHEN President Hoover proposed that all the powers make a cut of one-third in their armaments he forgot about the uniforms worn in foreign countries.

On the face of it the proposal to reduce armaments proportionately would leave all nations as secure as they are now, with an immense load lifted from the backs of the common people. The President plans to lift the burden of ships and cannons from the backs of the toilers of the world.

Eheu, the toilers of the world! If they had their way they would rush pellmell into the world disarmament conference at Geneva and bid the nations lay down their arms. The toilers, the spinners, are not arrayed like Solomon. They wear no gold braid, no plumes, no enameled blades, no embroidered gloves. But their appeal to the delegates would be in vain. The delegates personify Europe, and Europe is wedded to tradition and the unwritten law—the law that prescribes the embellishment of the male for the conquest of the female.

Some of the military and naval uniforms in the old countries were designed by Michaelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, the Count-Duke of Olivares, the Duke of Angouleme, old John of Gaunt, Francois Premier and other worthies. These uniforms have behind them a long history of mighty conquests of beauty, resulting in the overturn of crowns and states.

* * * *

SWASHBUCKLING cavaliers in heart-breaking uniforms, their fortunes at their swords' tip, have won and lost crowns in boudoir intrigue. Fair favorites, smitten by a cavalier's feather or bewitched by his horsemanship, have toppled down thrones and set kingdoms at war. Mars conquers Venus by his dazzling uniform, and not by dirty trench warfare.

Americans are a drab, humdrum, commercialized folk. Their warriors wear plain blue or musty khaki. There is not a coup d'etat in a carload of khaki heroes. The buck private in a Balkan army wears a uniform more gorgeous than a major general or an admiral of the United States.

Until the President can devise a plan whereby Europe can retain its uniforms, it will be useless to cry disarmament.

Blow, bugle, blow!
Stand in a row,
Dressed in a uniform
Fit for a show.

GOLD STRIKE LURES YUKON PROSPECTORS

Trucks and Airplanes Used in Rush Toward Finlayson River.

White Horse, Y. T., June 24 (A.P.).—Gold fever has spread again over the north, and prospects are figuratively shouldering their packs for extended stays on the Finlayson River and its tributaries, near Frances Lake, northeast of here.

But, instead of negotiating long, hard miles afoot, the prospectors are moving by airplane. One party from Vancouver, British Columbia, brought at 2-ton truck and headed overland for White River.

The Mitchell Exploration Co.'s five flying boats from Detroit already have taken twelve veteran placer miners into the Finlayson River area.

Word from prospectors who have entered the upper reaches of the Liard River district said good paying gravel had been found in many of the creeks.

Veiled rumors of a rich strike in the Carmack district north of here, where glacial action has ground the mountains into huge domes much like those in the famous Klondike district, have stirred White Horse residents. Pilot E. L. Wasson, Livingstone Wernecke, manager of the Tradewell Yukon Mining Co., and Joe Walsh, a veteran miner, headed into that region Tuesday.

Officials of the Mitchell Co. reported deposits of native copper had been found in many of the creeks, the nuggets ranging from a few ounces to 50 pounds each.

Rebuilding of Bilboards Allowed.

Upon recommendation of Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, the District Commissioners yesterday authorized the General Outdoor Advertising Co. to rebuild fourteen billboards on O street and Florida and New York avenues. Maj. Gotwals said that the boards would not conflict with the District sign regulations.

AMEND IT OR KILL IT.

The two unemployment relief bills now in conference are the subject of an analysis by President Hoover, who lays before the country the good and bad features of the bills. In many respects this legislation is the most important business of this session of Congress. It affects the unemployment situation most directly, and if its destructive features can be eliminated it will be a powerful restorative of confidence and business activity.

The country is prepared to stand the temporary burden involved in the advance of $1,500,000,000 by the Reconstruction Corporation for construction works which will pay for themselves, and in the loan of $300,000,000 to the States for emergency relief; but the country can not be expected to stand for the squandering of $500,000,000 to $1,200,000,000 for pork-barrel purposes. Although the President does not say that he will veto the bill if it should contain the pork-barrel feature, there need be no doubt that he will do so. He would become a party to the disruption of Federal finances and the consequent increase of public distress if he should accept the pork-barrel grab for the sake of putting through the other parts of the measure.

Legislators are anxious to end the session, and the country would like to know where it stands, which it can not know until Congress adjourns; but this legislation is of vital importance, and should be perfected. It can make or break the country. If it becomes law with the pork-barrel provisions included the credit of the United States Government will suffer a shock. Government bonds will tumble, and there is no telling what will tumble with them. The quick and terrible collapse of public confidence would immediately increase unemployment and thus nullify all the relief provisions of the law.

The country is in a state of dangerous tension, holding out desperately for a turn toward better conditions. Congress has the power now to call a halt to the depression by enacting the genuine relief features of this legislation. It also has the power to change the depression into a panic by demoralizing the nation's credit and loading the people with another debt of $500,000,000 to $1,200,000,000 to be squandered for the political benefit of members of Congress.

Congress, in all its history, has never pushed unconscionable legislation as far as it has pushed the Garner-Wagner pork-barrel bills. Legislators have never before joined in such a gigantic attempt to divert public money to political uses. The effort is peculiarly vicious in that it is cloaked under the pretense of helping the unemployed. The public as a whole is still in ignorance of the proposed misuse of the taxing power. It is still supposed that Congress has been engaged in an honest effort to relieve unemployment by extraordinary but justifiable use of money derived from taxation. The public does not know that the Senate proposes to divert $500,000,000 and the House $1,200,000,000 from legitimate relief and employ it primarily for the political benefit of the legislators themselves.

If this legislation should pass, taxpayers will not only be forced to carry the initial burden, but the works to be constructed will be a continuing burden upon them for maintenance. The tax law recently passed will be insufficient to balance the budget. A later Congress will be compelled to lay additional taxes. These fresh burdens will paralyze every arm that is now striving to push business forward. National discouragement and increased unemployment may precipitate national collapse.

Patriotism and fidelity call upon Congress to abandon the wicked and ruinous attempt to misuse the public money for pork-barrel purposes in this time of national distress. If Congress does not do its duty, the President must veto the monstrous legislation that will be presented to him.

VETERANS SHOULD GO HOME.

The veterans encamped in Washington to lobby for enactment of the defeated bonus bill are becoming a danger to themselves and the city. Disorder has been prevented thus far by extra precautions on the part of the police and by the peaceful disposition of the veterans themselves. But events are moving steadily to a crisis.

When the veterans first arrived, their efforts to secure enactment of the bonus measure were persuasive. Their cause was fully presented to both the House and Senate, but the bonus was decisively beaten. Still the veterans' army refuses to disperse. Yesterday 500 veterans descended upon the Senate Office Building to demand reconsideration of the bonus. Their tactics have passed the persuasive stage and begin to be coercive.

Leaders of the bonus army have taken occasion to defy the District authorities who are trying to maintain sanitary conditions in their camps and prevent an epidemic. Residents of the District are not to blame for the inadequate and unsuitable quarters that are available to the veterans. If veterans insist on coming here against the advice of all responsible officials they will have to face conditions as they find them. But the public health must be maintained. If it becomes necessary for Government authorities to evacuate the bonus army to prevent the spread of disease, they should not hesitate to do so.

Leaders of the army are making an appeal to the public for help. Food and money have been sent from many States to relieve their condition. In fact, the men here have been saved from hunger only by the public generosity. Now gifts of food and money are lagging. That is natural. The only excuse for the assembly of the veterans in Washington has been demolished by the decisive action of Congress. It is unthinkable that the public will contribute funds in these hard times to maintain an army of nearly 20,000 idle men in Washington. There is no sensible course for the men encamped here to take, except the road home.

Talk of a special session to approve the bonus is heard. Every veteran must know that it is utter nonsense designed to encourage the unfortunate recruits of the bonus army to remain here. No special session could be held, except upon call by President Hoover, who is unalterably opposed to the bonus. If a special session were called, it would be the same Congress that has just killed the bonus. No group can browbeat Congress into legislating in its favor. Any attempt to do so would bring about a clash between the authorities and the veterans.

The emergency unemployment bill as passed by the Senate contains a provision making immediately available a portion of the $300,000,000 to be lent to the States. If this bill should become law, the Governors of States can notify veterans from their States to come home, and can send them transportation.

If the veterans are wise they will individually decide to avoid danger of disease by making their way home as quickly as possible. Some of them have already started home. Those remaining are merely inviting hardship and danger.

THE ECONOMIC PLANK.

Senator Hull and other economically-minded leaders of the Democratic party are urging the platform makers at Chicago to concentrate on economic issues. Democratic hopes for winning the election this year are based on the economic difficulties which the country has experienced during the last three years. Some loose-thinking Democrats hope that the depression will automatically maneuver them into power; but the more astute and experienced politicians realize that they stand a poor chance unless they can offer something better than the Republican program.

An effort will be made to have the Democratic plank on economic policy clear, concise and emphatic. If the resolutions committee is to carry out that objective it will indeed have to concentrate.

Presumably the tariff will occupy a prominent place in the economic plank. Democratic abhorrence for the Smoot-Hawley act suggests a definite statement in favor of lower duties. But the Democrats in Congress recently approved tariffs on four basic commodities which the Smoot-Hawley act left on the free list, and Senator Barkley, the keynoter of the convention, voted for most of them. Some of the most prominent Democrats in Congress have gone on record as opposing lower duties at this time because the country is in no condition to withstand a deluge of cheap foreign imports. Virtually every Democrat favors tariff protection for his home State. Consequently, an unequivocal statement of policy on the tariff at the Chicago convention seems impossible.

What remedy will the Democrats offer for the depression which they attribute to Republican policy? Nearly every constructive step that has been taken toward recovery has been initiated by President Hoover. Democratic members of Congress deserve credit for aiding the enactment of the President's program, but their responsiveness to Mr. Hoover's leadership will not make campaign material. No constructive Democratic plan for restoring prosperity is known to the public.

Governmental finance will be a hard subject. At the very time when the whole nation is demanding economy in government, and all private agencies are endeavoring to write off their burdens of debt, the Democrats of both the Senate and House have committed themselves to pork-barrel legislation of the most extravagant kind.

The platform makers will have a good deal of waste lumber to work into the economic plank. There are, for example, the House vote in favor of debasing the currency, the Goldsborough bill to fix prices at the 1926 level, and the attempt of Democratic representatives to guarantee bank deposits. Whether the platform makers at Chicago approve or repudiate these "economic achievements," they will certainly enter into the campaign.

About all that can be said of the Democrats who are trying to secure the adoption of an economic plank that will be clear, concise and honest is that they deserve high commendation for their optimism.

PERSISTENT SILVERITES.

The Pittman bill authorizing the Mint to buy the silver produced in the United States and paid for at the market price with silver certificates has been recommended for passage by the Senate banking committee. In the House a resolution was adopted approving the idea of an international conference to consider general economic and monetary conditions.

While the informal exchange that has passed between Washington and London has referred to an economic conference, the House resolution included the monetary issue, and the debate on its adoption centered almost exclusively around the silver question.

The House committee, however, has no such puny measure as the Pittman bill in mind. The Senate proposal merely contemplates the purchase of the American silver output, not to exceed 5,000,000 ounces a month. The addition of possibly $1,000,000 a month to circulation could have no appreciable effect upon the monetary system and the purchase of such limited amounts of silver would not greatly influence its world price. In principle there is no more justification for buying silver than there is to continue purchases by the Farm Board of surplus wheat and cotton.

The House plan, looking to stabilization of the price of silver, which is apparently considered favorably by members of the coinage committee, differs radically in scope and method from the Pittman bill. While holding absolutely to the gold standard and avoiding anything in the nature of bimetallism or a fixed ratio between gold and silver, the proposal considered in the House does provide for the issuance of silver certificates with the full gold value of silver behind them. Every dollar would be redeemable in the amount of silver which a gold dollar would purchase on the day of redemption. This, in a word, is the plan presented at length to the coinage committee by John Janney, chairman of the executive committee of the American Society of Practical Economists.

Mr. Janney holds that his plan would result in the stabilization of the price of silver, improve commodity prices and provide a useful medium of exchange with silver-using and producing countries.

Summarizing his explanation of the plan in connection with the conference debate, Representative Feisenger said: "In brief, we would add silver to our metal reserve at the gold price of silver and invite nations similarly interested to do likewise. We would keep it in the form of silver bullion and issue silver certificates against it, redeemable at any time at the gold price of silver."

It is evident that the widely divergent silver measures before the Senate and House will result in extended debate before differences are reconciled.

ANOTHER NICARAGUA?

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The Hawes-Cutting bill would make the Philippines the Nicaragua of the west Pacific by erroneously designating as intervention the inherent right and duty of the United States to preserve in the islands the essence and incidents of American sovereignty. Every time the United States exercises its obvious obligations in the premises the cry of intervention will cut the Philippine air, and the ugly word will reverberate throughout the world.

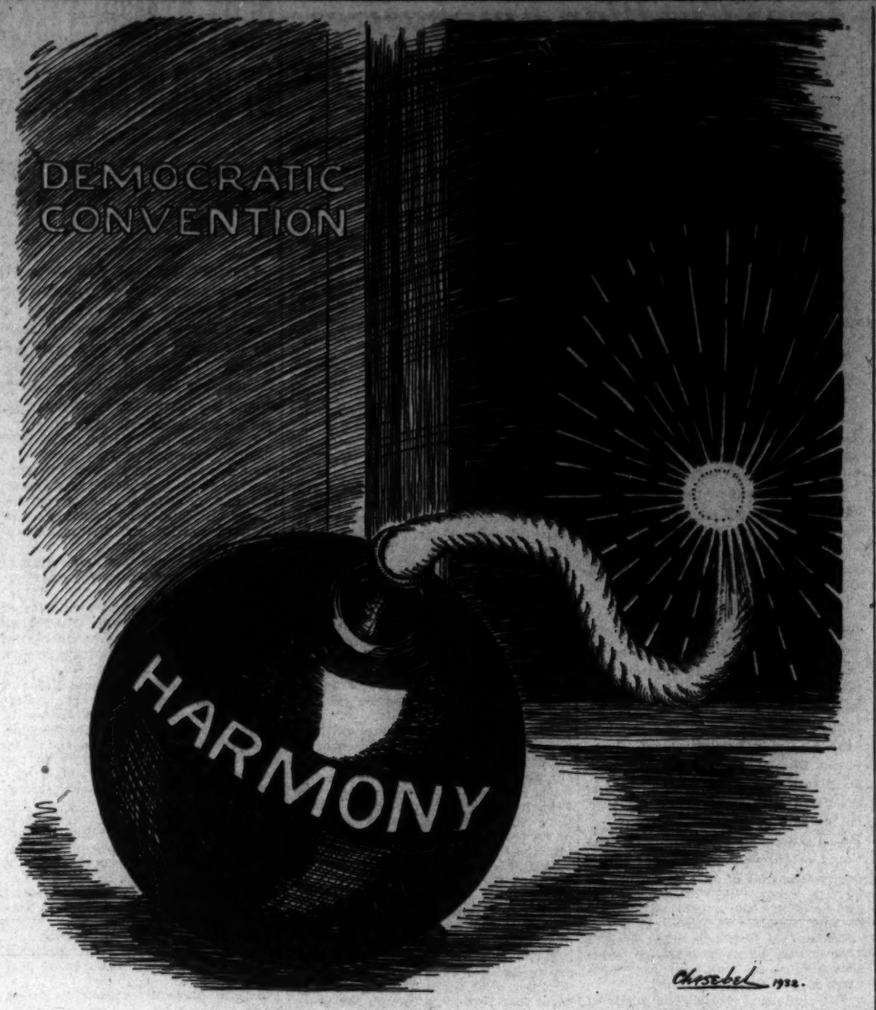
The idea of intervention will disturb the political equanimity and self-respect of the Filipinos, weaken the moral position of America in the Orient and set up a mischievous object lesson in inter-Oriental relations. The unrealism and chimera which the Hawes-Cutting bill gives to Philippine-American relations places the projected Philippine commonwealth in the general category of the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchoukuo with its synthetic independence.

The pertinent provision, which is a superfluity, says that "the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of the government of the commonwealth of the Philippine Islands and for the maintenance of the government as provided in their constitution, and for the protection of life, property and individual liberty and for the discharge of government obligations under and in accordance with the provisions of their constitution."

As this provision merely changes the right of control to the right of intervention, the object may have been to stress the transfer of authority from the United States to the Philippine commonwealth by locating that authority in a twilight zone. But one thing is certain—the responsibility of the United States for and in the islands is not to suffer the slightest diminution.

Under the bill the Supreme Court of the United States acquires additional duties by making Philippine cases involving the constitution of the Philippine commonwealth appealable to it.

Section 2 (j) carries the implication that the Philippines may conduct foreign relations under the "direct supervision and control of the United States." As the very name "commonwealth" is taken from the British political lexicography it may be the intent of the bill to grant the Philippines a modified diplomatic independence akin to that set forth in the statute of Westminster governing British interimperial relations. This, with other vital matters, needs clarification.



All Set!

POST HASTE.

It was not difficult at Lausanne to develop interest in the principle of indefinite postponement of principal and interest.

The Roosevelt proposal to force two contests, on which even Roosevelt supporters can not be united, before there is a vote on Roosevelt himself, may be good politics, but——

What's the matter with Chicago? It raises great sums to attract political conventions and is building a world's fair, but can't collect back taxes to pay school teachers. Better appoint Gen. Dawes dictator.

The bonus-army method is going to prove the worst boomerang that veteran legislation ever encountered.

Carrying firearms is a criminal offense in New York, and the city proved it by taking 5,000 gats away from criminals in the last twelve months.

If you don't think the automobile has become the No. 1 world necessity, try to find some other article that did not fall off more than 1.5 per cent in ownership last year.

If it is important Mr. Borah might be asked to begin collaboration now with his favorite author, the senator from Idaho, on the 1936 platform.

Old friend Viscount Ishii calls it Japan's "pacific and natural expansion." A frank war might have been less fatal to the Chinese.

Even if it could get the corners away from the drug stores and filling stations, every one now opposes return of the old-time saloon. Anyhow, habits change, and it might be the lonesomest place in town.

We can even hypotheticalize the contingency in which reincarnated breweries might have to secure injunctions against Ben Bernie and others who tout the ingredient delights of home brew at almost nothing a quart.

If Senator Pittman can get his silver bill over it will seem that the bonus was unfortunate in being sponsored by a Patman.

That Democratic snarl in Chicago is a natural prelude to the dogmatic contest which starts Monday.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AFTER TOIL.

There isn't any happiness in happiness itself,
There isn't any knowledge in the books upon a shelf.
You may buy them by the dozens, but unless you read them through,
All the wisdom of their pages will be just dry rot to you.
For the only lasting lesson is the one you work to learn,
And the only worth-while pleasures are the ones you have to earn.

If never care disturbed us none would value peace of mind.
Gold becomes a precious metal just because it's hard to find.
If it weren't for stern old duty we should never value play.
It takes three long months of labor to make sweet a holiday.
So be patient through your trials and be brave in times of doubt,
You will reap new fields of gladness when you've worked your problems out.

'Twas an Irishman I'm certain who this quaint assertion dropped:
"I'm glad my tooth is aching. 'Twill be grand when it is stopped."
There's philosophy for trials. It's the cold and driving rain
That sets us all rejoicing when the sun comes out again.
For if hearts were never troubled and if none a burden knew,
We should all go 'round complaining there was nothing left to do.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise: Yesterday I heard a lady some 20 years your senior advising you to be selfish. You must disregard others and grab what you can, according to her theory, for everybody else is doing the same thing and nothing is left for the timid and the backward.

I don't know what impression she made on you, but I hope you will be wise enough to judge her theory, as you do others, by the kind of people it develops.

Do you remember the Forrest girl and her evening wrap? She borrowed yours and wore it to a party because the clouds were heavy and her own wrap was too nice to wear in bad weather.

As an example of "enlightened self-interest" that scheme was flawless, but I seem to remember that you described it as some kind of gall.

Where, then, was the profit? Selfishness saved the young lady's wrap at your expense, but it cost her your good will and respect. What is the advantage in selfishness if it gets a nickel advantage by sacrificing a dollar?

That is the point always overlooked by the selfish.

Their eyes are fixed on the immediate gain and they never realize how much they sacrifice to achieve it.

Look at Tom's wife. When she and Tom were newlyweds, his idea of a good time was to take her down town and watch her pick out frocks and hats and jewelry. He enjoyed being generous.

But he soon discovered that he had a monopoly of the family's generosity. She took all and gave nothing. One winter she bought a $500 fur and called him a "perfect darling" when he gave up smoking to cut expenses.

She still gets everything she wants—except one. She greatly desires Tom's love, but that is gone. Men can't love unfairness, and selfishness is always unfair.

The lady gave you poor advice, my dear.

It would be good advice for pigs, for their one concern is the swill in the trough, and the disapproval of a neighbor costs them nothing more than a bump in the ribs.

But it doesn't pay outside a sty. Selfishness can grab the biggest piece of chicken, but it can't get another invitation to dinner. Love,

DAD.

Democrat Beans.
Judge.

Now it looks as though everything will come out all right, after all. Next winter we can feed the unemployed on the beans the Democrats are going to spill.

Drink Yourself Rich.
Hibbing (Minn.) Tribune.

We respectfully suggest this slogan for the wets: "Drink yourself rich!" Boiled down to three words, this slogan is the argument which is being urged in high places for the restoration of intoxicating beer as a legalized drink. Millions of us haven't the price of a meal, but make beer lawful and we will drink so much of it that the tax on it will amount to $2,000,000,000 a year. The budget will be balanced, the Government's difficulties will vanish and prosperity will be upon us again almost in one swallow. In other words, we shall "drink ourselves rich."

Resubmission Logic.
Los Angeles Times.

It is idle to deny that "a Nation-wide controversy over the eighteenth amendment now distracts attention from the constructive solution of many pressing national problems." To maintain that under such circumstances the public itself shall not be arbiter of its national policy would be a controversion of the fundamental principles of popular government. In the presence of sufficient public demand there can be no reasonable objection on the part of any one to resubmission. If, as is to be hoped, America is still predominantly for prohibition, the dry cause would gain immeasurably by such a test and the country would be vastly better off for the definite removal of an increasingly vexatious issue. If, on the other hand, a fair and representative vote of the country's qualified electors shows a majority against prohibition as now enacted, a change would be mandatory.

The Siege of Washington.
Kansas City Star.

The encampment of the so-called "bonus army" has created a difficult problem for the Washington authorities but one with which the National Capital has had previous experience. Nearly 40 years ago Coxey's army and other groups of unemployed men marched on Washington, to seek relief from Congress. Their proposal was for road construction, to furnish employment, and from an economic point of view it was far sounder than the present demand for the full cash payment of the bonus, to be financed by the issuance of Governmental bonds or fiat money. But the presence of both armies, camped in or about Washington, has involved the same possibility of disorder and the same menace to health.

In 1894 the marchers, many of whom, like Mark Twain on his "Tramp Abroad," did not actually walk, camped in the vicinity of the Capital through the summer and then slowly dispersed. Despite the anxiety of the local authorities, they seem to have abided by the regulations and there was little disorder. So far the bonus army also appears to have conducted itself well in Washington. Nevertheless, irrespective of the merits of their cause, these veterans by announcing their intention of remaining in the Capital until Congress grants their demand have adopted a threatening policy that is likely to cost them many sympathizers. The right of petition and the right of intimidation are two different matters.

And Lots of Pretzels.
Topeka Capital.

In these times, says Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, "we must keep our heads and keep our feet on the ground." We suppose the governor means until we get the brass rail back.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Praise for Gov. Roosevelt's Back-to-the-Farm Movement—Mr. Golden Thinks Other States Should Try It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gov. Roosevelt's back-to-the-farm unemployment relief plan has been applied to about 600 families. The families have been placed on farms that were more or less borrowed by the State from the original owners due to mortgage foreclosures. The banks of the State are cooperating in the movement by allowing temporary use of the farms to provide the means of a livelihood to the people who have been thrown out of work because of the present depression.

There were some people outside of the State who wrote to the governor asking permission to become residents in order that they might take advantage of the farm plan. Undoubtedly the jobless relief plan conducted by Gov. Roosevelt will prove a success, so far as it goes. Overcrowding of the cities means that there are many people who are unable to find employment. If these people take advantage of the governor's back-to-the-farm plan, it will mean that they will at least be able to obtain a decent living and also have a decent place to sleep.

I think that if other States followed this plan it would go a long way in relieving the suffering of the unemployed. There has been a tendency for farmers to leave their land and move into the cities. Now the depression is causing a movement in just the opposite direction. When the proper balance of farm dwellers and city dwellers is established the depression will be a thing of the past.

Six hundred families does not seem a large number, compared to the urban population of New York State, but it is a very good start in the right direction. When it is definitely established that the plan is proving beneficial to those who have moved out to the farms, many other families will follow the lead of the first 600.

Reader Says Department of Commerce Alligators Should Be Dealt With Before They Grow Up.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can not see why such a fuss is raised over the fate of the three alligators in the basement of the Commerce Department Building. If it is true that they are roaming at will through the corridors of the basement, it is not surprising that the blonde stenographers in the building are giving this portion of the place a wide berth; for they say that alligators prefer blondes.

At present there seems to be a lack of housing facilities for the 'gators in the building. Why should the Commerce Department go to the expense of building cages or tanks for three unsightly alligators? They should be shipped back to Florida and turned loose to roam their native haunts, or else disposed of here to be made into handbags or footwear. If these three specimens were a rarity or something quite novel, I would suggest keeping them in the basement for the public to see, but with so many real specimens of alligators at the Zoo, I can not see the sense of keeping the saurians in the Commerce Building.

Look to the future; what is to be done with them when they get to be twelve feet long? When they reach maturity they will scale the inclosure in which they are placed and some day the Secretary will walk into his office to find that his easy chair is occupied by Mr. Alligator. It is best to get rid of them while they are small.

Mr. Parsons Discusses Finance Corporation Loans to Protect Public.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every person and every group of people who seek a handout of money through the assistance of congressional legislation back up their argument with the remark that "the bankers received a dole." This argument is based upon the fact that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has lent money to different banks to protect what is known as frozen assets. It is true that money has been lent to the banks, but this is not relief for the bankers. There is a marked distinction between banks and bankers, though some congressmen and some of the public fail to see this distinction.

The money in the banks does not belong to the bankers. It belongs to the public, the depositors, who have the right to withdraw their deposits whenever they feel like it. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation money is not handed out to the banks to protect the banker against loss, as many people seem to think. It is handed out to protect the public, the people who place their hard-earned money in these institutions. When a bank fails it is not the banker alone who suffers. The bank failure may take the banker down, but it also takes the depositors down and causes harm to the community in which the bank is located.

There is one more point to make, and that is the money that goes to the banks through the Finance Corporation is not a dole, for the corporation does not give money away. It is lent on the basis of very sound security.

Mr. Ferguson Believes Speaker Garner Has Committed Political Blunder.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Speaker Garner has made a political blunder. Perhaps his recent illness is to blame. In any case, he has done his cause irreparable damage. A declaration in behalf of repeal, with no mention of any substitute, was neither called for nor can it be helpful. No aspirant for the Democratic nomination is obliged to make himself a tail of the kite of the liquor interests. The people require no such sacrifice. All they ask is intelligent consideration of the problem. Mr. Garner has thrown himself overboard.

Reception from Dublin was excellent, but there was some difficulty when an experiment was made in transmitting to the Irish capital. Another test will be made tomorrow to determine whether it will be possible for the Pope to broadcast a message to the congress Sunday.

Dublin Eucharistic Service Heard by 100,000 Women

Crowd Park to Hear Scottish Archbishop Laud Their Religious Sacrifice; Appeal Made for Renewal of Faith in Crisis.

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 24 (A.P.).—Irish women, who have sent forth many sons to serve the Catholic Church, and women from many parts of the world assembled more than 100,000 strong tonight before the Eucharistic Congress altar in Phoenix Park and heard themselves praised for their religious sacrifices.

Speaking from a tiny white pulpit, the Most Rev. Andrew Joseph McDonald, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, told them that the "destiny of the human race lies largely in the hands of women."

Citing the Pope's recent encyclical concerning the spread of the forces of antireligion, the archbishop assured his hearers that "evil is not cast out except by prayer and penance."

He urged daily communion as the only means of combatting the powers of darkness and pleaded with the women to renew and increase the fervor of their faith in this crisis in the world's affairs.

"In the present crisis," he said, "none can render to God the homage he deserves as can the maidens and the mothers of the Catholic Church.

"I call upon you women to respond whole-heartedly to that call wrung in anguish from the Pope."

Long before the hour for the assemblage, great streams of pious women converged on the high altar in the park.

Some spent most of the day there to be sure of places nearest the altar, and Dublin's streets were thronged with the most exhilarated crowds the congress has yet brought forth. Trolley cars going to the park were jammed full and many thousands of the women made the 3-mile uphill pilgrimage on foot.

Mills Says His Speech At Harvard Misquoted

Secretary Mills stated yesterday that he had been misquoted in newspaper reports of his remarks made Thursday on the occasion of receiving an honorary degree from Harvard University. He was quoted as describing the behavior of Congress on the tax bill as a "dastardly performance." The words used by him were "tragic performance," and no reference was made to particular legislation.

His statement was: "The disintegration of House organization was a tragic performance, but was a dramatic culmination of a movement long under way, and that is the break-up of party responsibility."

Stock Market Hearings Postponed Till Autumn

No more hearings in the Senate stock market investigation are planned until next fall unless unforseen developments arise. Chairman Norbeck, of the banking committee, yesterday told newspapermen this had been agreed to by his group.

Investigators, however, will be kept at work during the summer amassing data. Norbeck said that if any evidence should be produced that requires immediate action he could call a meeting to determine whether a hearing was necessary.

WOMAN INFLUENCE IS FELT AT CHICAGO

Democrats Study Problem of Which Candidate Will Lure Votes.

Chicago, June 24 (A.P.).—A milling mob of women today had full share of the Democratic preconvention scene, serving as testing crucible in a destiny-shaping question—what will prove best bid for the woman vote in November?

Everywhere it was evident as Democracy fenced and feinted for the delegate votes which eventually must produce a candidate and a platform capable, perhaps, of pulling that woman majority Herbert Hoover piled up in 1928, and which his cohorts still claim for him.

No less an authority than the mathematically-minded Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, who yesterday tallied what she considered the delegate strength of her candidate, Al Smith, pronounced the woman equation a fundamental factor on the chances of the aspirants.

Mrs. Ross' Work Apparent.

Testimonial to the year-around work of Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of women's activities, for woman representation, 35 faithful committeewomen, each outstanding in her State, were here for today's meeting of the national committee.

Dean among them was Miss Elisabeth Marbury, colorful New Yorker, gazing with satisfaction upon the place won in national committee councils—scene today of Louisiana, Puerto Rico and Minnesota contests.

In the Louisiana group was a feminine factor, a former governor's wife, Mrs. Ruffin G. Pleasant, who, having recently come to personal and publicized tilt with Huey Long, has been campaigning unceasingly among individual committeewomen against the seating of the Long delegation.

Jane Addams Pleads.

Other women also play their varied roles in the political piece. Powerful among those who plead for a cause was Jane Addams, who asked as a peace plank adjunct a commission to revise war debts.

Men rose as the aged, plain gowned, plain-spoken Nobel prize winner took her place behind a chair, and, using its back as pulpit-desk rather than support, said the world was moving rapidly away from wars, and toward "overwhelming good will."

Hyattsville Gains In New Buildings

Report for 1931-32 Shows Value of Structures Totals $163,000.

An increase of 71 per cent in new buildings constructed in Hyattsville, Md., during the tax year 1931-32 over the new construction during 1930-31 was reported by the board of assessors of the town, according to Herbert J. Moffatt, town building inspector.

New structures during 1930-31 were assessed at $95,500, while the 1931-32 figure was $163,000. The tax year ending in 1931 showed a decrease from the preceding year, when new buildings valued at $110,000 were erected. Mr. Moffatt said that the number of inspections made was about the same in all three years, but that much of the improvement during 1930-31 consisted of cheaper buildings and additions to houses, while last year's work was mostly new houses.

He also said that a representative of a builder's trade paper had told him that Hyattsville was the only town in the State to show an increase in building work recently.

Fairfax School Addition Job Goes to Burkholder

The Fairfax County, Va., school board, at a special meeting Thursday, awarded the contract for the construction of an addition to the Fairview School at Fairfax Station to Lloyd B. Burkholder, of Falls Church. The board had asked for bids for the construction of a two-room brick addition to the Lee-Jackson School, near Alexandria, but no bids were received. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids to be opened at the regular meeting on July 5.

A number of vacancies on the county teaching staff were filled as follows: Roberdeau Allison, of Fairfax, to the Lee-Jackson School; W. B. Knight, of Alexandria, to the same school; Catherine White was appointed to the Clifton School; Frances Lancaster, Mildred Williams and E. P. Orr to the Herndon School; Virginia Showalter to the Pohick School, and Miss Wrenn Biller to the Potters Hill School.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Food Looks More Tempting When Offered in Pretty Baskets; Peaches Much Cheaper So Far; Berries Appealing; Alligator Pears Choice.

Just so truly as roses look prettier in a rose bowl than they do in a jelly glass, so do lettuce and tomatoes and our daily bread look more appetizing in a real market basket than they do in a prossaic half-bushel basket that came with last summer's peaches. Probably more roses will continue to be in their proper containers than lettuce will repose in picturesque market baskets, unless those who do the marketing see some baskets that charmed the Meanderer in a shop on Connecticut avenue.

Marketing for the family food need not be an arduous, workaday task if the shopper sets out on her rounds with one of these newly found baskets on her arm. Sturdily framed and woven of reed, many of them varicolored, these new baskets for Washington housewives sell for very little. With 50 cents to $1.50 to spend in this basket shop, one can surely find an enticing food carrier. There is a rounded, commodious type known as a watermelon basket; there is a deep four-sided basket known as a fish basket; a deep open-work egg basket of strongly woven reeds, and that lidded longish basket, closely woven, and interwoven with brown and black and white reeds, one so much like a basket the Meanderer's grandmother used to carry when she came for Sunday dinner, bringing chicken and jars of cream and jellies, that "Grandmother's Basket" will be the only name listed here for it.

The low prices on these basket discoveries are possible because they are being sold for charity. The baskets come from the Virgin Islands, where the natives are in a pitiable state of poverty. The basket exhibit is presented to the public by twelve Washington women, who serve on a steady working schedule, without pay, in the Connecticut Shop.

Mango relish and gooseberry papaya jelly are other offerings from the Virgin Islands in the shop with the baskets. The relish and jelly sell for 25 cents a jar, respectively.

Not only for marketing, but for picnics, for motoring lunches, for seaside outings, the baskets suggest themselves. And while the baskets known as "watermelon baskets" could scarecly hold the fully rounded, big watermelons now on the market, those same melons should certainly go along somehow on the festive expeditions. Because from now on watermelons should not be expensive in any market. One wholesale food dealer in a big market in the Southwest section of Washington—who, by the way, is president of the market association and one of the most important dealers in wholesale quantities of food in Washington—told the Meanderer that watermelons of medium size should be selling at retail for as little as 35 cents. This marketer should know, for in one day this week he sold twelve carloads of melons.

The watermelons that Washington has consumed so far have been coming from Florida. Next week Georgia is expected to supply some of them; while in July Virginia and Maryland will bring in watermelon crops to the Washington market.

Clambakes, so popular now as a vacation diversion, require little money outlay for the clams, the Meanderer decided, after seeing fresh clams for sale in the Municipal Fish Marked shops for as little as 20 cents a dozen. An expert on clambakes says be sure to include sugar corn on the clambake menu, for it may be cooked in its husk as the clams cook. Sugar corn is less than 50 cents a dozen in some markets this week.

The height of the season for hard-shell crabs is here. Large, heavy, hard shell crabs sell at three dozen for $1 in one market the Meanderer visited. Crab meat, too, is lower than ever in cost, the large lump flakes selling for 50 cents a pound, medium lump meat selling for 40 cents a pound and the smaller flakes for 30 cents a pound.

Wholesalers of the later crops of strawberries are receiving this week $3.50 and $4 for a crate, double the price the earlier berries brought. Blackberries reach their peak shipments this week, bringing $2.50 and up for a crate, with the retail price as low as 10 cents a box.

The June arrivals in peaches at the local market stands bear surprisingly low prices, approximating only 50 per cent of the price for peaches this time last year. This week peaches are selling for 10 cents a pound in almost all market stands.

Fresh, particularly delectable individual, spice cakes made by a Frenchman with an established reputation for his baked delicacies are for sale for 30 cents a dozen at a downtown market, centrally located. Patty shells that are from the same baker's hands are much in demand at the same market.

Berries—black, huckle and, shall we say, razz—are among the most appealing of the fresh fruit offerings in the retail markets. Blackberries sell for as little as 10 cents a quart. The lowest price on raspberries the Meanderer noticed was 20 cents a quart for the black raspberries in a central downtown open market. The red raspberries sell for 35 and 40 cents a quart.

New alligator pears from Florida, selling for 25 cents each, are a choice offering in the local market. The new Florida avocadoes are green in color, but are as ready for use as are the darker colored California variety.

Library Receives 12,068 Books in Fineless Period

During 10 days of the Public Library fineless period, 12,068 volumes have been returned, according to Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian.

The library has remitted $1,421.31 in fines, and released 660 cards on which fines had accumulated. The "conscience box" at the entrance of the central library has collected 321 books. The fineless period ends today at 1 p. m. Dr. Bowerman urges all readers having books overdue to bring them in, and so utilize their last opportunity to escape the penalty of fines.

MRS. LYON WINS $5 FOR 'HEAVEN' RECIPE

Banana, Pineapple, Orange and Marshmallows Put in Whipped Cream.

The celestial touch must be one of flavor in the recipe which was awarded this week's Post $5 prize.

It was submitted by Mrs. Frank Lyon, of McLean, Va. She calls it "Heaven."

If the "heaven" is not in the taste, it must be in the ethereal quality of the whipped cream in which the many fruits are blended.

To be eligible for The Post's weekly prizes, recipes which are sent in should include some ingredient which is advertised on the Saturday Food Page of The Post. The recipe is:

Whip stiff desired amount of cream, sweeten to taste. Into this whipped cream fold lightly the equal parts of cut-up pineapple, bananas, oranges and marshmallows (Piggly-Wiggly); serve in parfait glasses with angel food cake (Sanitary Grocery).

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

A SHOWER FOR THE BRIDE-TO-BE.

THIS shower I am suggesting will appeal to practical brides; it's a grocery shower. The shower includes canned goods—chicken and ham and tongue for the emergency shelf, and small-size-cans-for-two for those first meals in the new kitchen.

But let's begin at the beginning. The ladies of my staff have planned a bridge luncheon for the shower. The main course of the luncheon includes salmon mousse and cucumber sauce; Saratoga potatoes, that is, potato chips, and hot rolls and butter. The dessert is rhubarb meringue tarts. After the meal comes the afternoon of bridge. A can-opener is the guest prize; then there are two other prizes—a knife sharpener and an egg-timer.

The guests would probably see that such important kitchen gadgets went to the bride. Then, after the bridge games are over and the prizes are awarded, the shower begins. In a big market basket—a good-looking green and white one—the bride finds all kinds of canned goods, each gift inscribed with an appropriate verse. Now how's that for a practical shower for a bride-to-be?

Here is a list of the canned foods a young couple setting up housekeeping would be mighty pleased to receive as a gift. Canned vegetables, of course, and soups, mushrooms, tomato juice and canned fruits, half a dozen or so cans of fish—salmon and crabmeat and lobster; tuna fish, sardines, shrimp and anchovies; pickles and olives. (Plain olives and stuffed olives.) Then an assortment of spices, in bright new containers—cinnamon and nutmeg and cloves; and pepper and mace and thyme—I don't know what all.

Flavorings, too, would make nice gifts—bottles of vanilla and almond extract and lemon and orange. There's a mint extract, too. I imagine a bride would appreciate getting something as unusual as that. And we mustn't forget jellies and preserves and marmalades. And some honey and maple sirup for those first waffles cooked on the new waffle iron.

Menus for Week-End Include Frozen Cherry Salad

SATURDAY, and the need of recipes for the completion of our Sunday dinner looms before us. We have many to include today, among them being a very delicious frozen cherry salad, so, without further comment, we shall proceed with the business of the day, except to say that we hope a pleasant week-end is in store for you.

Roast Duck.

Clean, wash and wipe the duck very carefully. Stuff and sew up as usual, reserving the giblets for gravy. If tender, it will not require more than an hour to roast. Baste frequently and skim the gravy before putting in the previqualy cooked giblets and thickening. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with parsley and slices of sweet, green pepper.

Pan-Fried Apple Slices.

3 large tart apples
3 or 4 tablespoonfuls bacon fat
¼ cupful sugar
Cinnanmon

Core but do not pare apples. Cut in slices across, one-quarter to one-half inch in thickness. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixed together. Heat fat in frying pan. Fry slices very slowly until brown on both sides (about five to ten minutes). Drain well and serve hot.

Frozen Cherry Salad.

½ cupful diced pineapple
½ cupful stoned ripe cherries
6 marshmallows, cut in pieces
3 tablespoonfuls pecans, chopped
½ cupful mayonnaise
1 tablespoonful tarragon vinegar
½ cupful cream, whipped

Mix together the fruits and marshmallows, and let stand an hour. Add the pecan nuts and the mayonnaise mixed with the tarragon vinegar. Fold in the whipped cream and freeze in the refrigerator tray. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with cherries.

Floating Island.

1 quart milk
½ cupful sugar
4 eggs
1 teaspoonful vanilla
1 tablespoonful cornstarch

Scald the milk in a double boiler. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and put them, a few spoonfuls at a time, on top of the scalding milk. Let cook one minute and then remove with a skimmer. Dissolve the cornstarch in a little cold milk or water and add to the scalded milk. Cook from ten to fifteen minutes or until the taste of the raw cornstarch has disappeared. Beat the yolks of the eggs with the sugar until light and add gradually. Stir for a few seconds and take from the fire. Add the vanilla and set aside to cool. When cold, pour into a glass dish, heap with meringues, dot with bits of currant jelly; dust, if desired, with powdered sugar and serve.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: Will you please tell me why spices and other high seasonings are objected to? Vinegar, for instance, and salt. I can not see why, since they make the foods we eat taste so much better, they should be harmful.

Enjoy your column very much, and thank you for your advice.

RITA C.

"Vinegar and spice and everything that's nice"—so runs the old quotation—showing that at one time or other vinegar and spice were not all wrong. They are not all wrong today, either, just so long as their use is not abused. Taken in moderation, all condiments tend to aid digestion and loss of appetite by increasing the flow of the digestive juices. Pungent and appetizing, they encourage us to eat, and enjoy our foods. The danger, however lies in too highly seasoned foods. Our stomachs, overstimulated and craving excitement, finally break down, digestion is impaired and weakened and, lo and behold, we find ourselves dyspeptic. You know how, sometimes, after a very delicious dinner, you complain of too much sage or onion in the dressing—you "could taste it for hours afterward!" We have all of us had that experience with one food or another and have possibly blamed the poor sage or onion, when in reality, if more moderately used, they would have aided rather than hindered digestion.

Vinegar, good vinegar, that is preferably that made of fermented apple cider, is very often useful in the diet. It tends to soften the cellulose of cabbage, cucumbers, onions, &c., and also acts upon the fibers of meat.

The same is true of salt, which if taken wisely, is an aid to digestion. Most people, we are told, use much more salt than they really need. Not content with the good judgment of the cook, they sprinkle it generously over vegetables and meat, without even pausing to taste and see whether it is needed or not.

BOY, 17, IS INJURED AS TRUCK HITS AUTO

Driver of Vehicle Is Arrested After Highway Accident in Clarendon.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Harold Coppage, 17, of 639 Murray avenue, Virginia Highlands, Arlington County, is in Emergency Hospital, Washington, suffering from injuries received when an automobile, said to belong to Miss Neda Reynolds, of Virginia Highlands, was struck by a truck operated by Russell Wagner, of Connecticut.

According to police, the boy was asked to start the automobile, and pushing the machine into the road, it started down the hill on Frazier avenue and crossed into the Washington-Richmond highway, when it collided with the truck.

Police report that Mrs. Edgar Garner and Mrs. Allen Powers were in the car at the time, and Mrs. Powers is said to have made an effort to bring the car under control. As it started down the hill, Coppage jumped on the running board and attempted to steer it.

He was taken to the hospital by the Jefferson Fire Department Rescue Squad.

Wagner was taken to the county jail by Policeman Edward Duncan. He was later released on bond pending a hearing Monday.

Sayers and wife, of Washington, by James Reece Duncan, trustee for the estate of the late Mrs. Amelia Burson. The purchasers will recondition the property and make it their home.

The house is one of the oldest in Alexandria. It was occupied by Mrs. Henry Lee in 1818, after the death of her husband, Light Horse Harry Lee, the parents of Robert E. Lee. Gen. Lee lived there also while attending the old Alexandria Academy.

REPEAL CONSIDERED TEMPERANCE MOVE

Alexandria Women Against Prohibition as Breeder of Lawlessness.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Rufus S. Lusk, executive vice commander of the Washington Battalion of the Crusaders, was the principal speaker last night at a meeting in Armory Hall, sponsored by the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, the Association against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Crusaders.

Mr. Lusk questioned what would happen after the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Both wets and drys, he said, are worried about the conditions that may exist if the amendment is repealed. He said 33 States have prohibition statutes on their books. States that want to stay legally dry may resort to the Webb-Kenyon act, he explained, as the Supreme Court has ruled that act was not repealed by the eighteenth amendment. He said only ten States carry an appropriation to enforce prohibition, all the others having left enforcement to the Federal Government.

He said the country wanted the Federal Government to attend to Government business and urged that we "get back to the Constitution as it was when it was adopted by our forefathers 144 years ago."

Mrs. Ben E. Cain, jr., chairman of the Alexandria branch of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers.

Gardner L. Boothe, head of the Alexandria Crusaders, said Mrs. Emma R. Bissell, 72 years old, who has been working for temperance all of her life, had now declared in favor of repeal, saying there is no better way to work for temperance. He said he objected to organized crime, and that millions of dollars are placed by gangsters in safe deposit boxes instead of in circulation.

Mrs. Julian Keith, of Warrenton, State chairman of the woman's organization, said she had been a lifelong advocate of temperance, and for a long time shut her eyes to the state of intemperance after the passage of the eighteenth amendment. Women are now working for temperance for the protection of the home, she said, and for the eradication of lawlessness. She urged women to go after the politicians and get what they want, repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Elks Pilgrims in Alexandria.

The Elks Magazine pilgrims, three in number, who are on a good will tour through the different States from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico, were entertained yesterday afternoon by a delegation from Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, composed of J. Owen Lynch, chairman; C. C. Carlin, jr., and Park A. Kersey. After luncheon the visitors went to Mount Vernon and then to Arlington National Cemetery.

BETHESDA CRASHES INJURE 9 PERSONS

Woman Being Transferred to Hospital and Mate Seriously Hurt.

Nine persons were injured yesterday in two accidents near Bethesda, Md. The most seriously injured were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Brewer, of Huntington Terrace, who were injured when their car was overturned at Battery lane and Old Georgetown Hospital while carrying Mrs. Brewer, an expectant mother, to the hospital.

The Brewers were riding south on Old Georgetown road when their car was in collision with a car driven by Denzel B. Owen, 26, of 2308 Wisconsin avenue northwest, which was proceeding east on Battery lane, causing the Brewer car to overturn. The couple was taken to Georgetown University Hospital by A. B. Crawford, of Bethesda. Both are in a serious condition, Mr. Brewer, 40 years old, suffering from fractured ribs, internal injuries and lacerations on the right leg, while Mrs. Brewer, 38, has lacerations on the leg and severe shock.

Owen was arrested by Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, of the Bethesda Substation, Montgomery County police, and charged with reckless driving.

The others were injured when a car driven by William R. Rye, jr., of 1231 Pratt avenue southeast, was forced from the Bradley boulevard about 1 mile north of Wilson lane, by an unidentified driver. They were Miss Mary Long and Miss Jane Long, both of Bethesda; Miss Getrude Harris, 1208 G street southeast; Miss Viola Gray, 1112 Fourth street southeast; Norman Thornton, 615 East Capitol street, and Charles B. Hilton, 311 Quincy street, Chevy Chase, Md. All were treated for minor injuries by Dr. E. G. Bauerfeld, of Bethesda.

Farm Talk Heard By Manassas Club

Howard Miller, Runner-Up in State Contest, at Kiwanis Session.

Howard Miller, of Nokesville, Va., runner-up in the oratorical contest sponsored several weeks ago by the Future Farmers of America, last night again delivered his prize-winning address before the Kiwanis Club of Manassas, Va. Mr. Miller, who gained second place in the State finals at Blacksburg, Va., was winner of the Northern Virginia semifinals.

Mr. Miller's address was entitled "Agricultural Depression—Its Challenge and Opportunities Offered to the Future Farmers of America." He was introduced by Jack P. Pullem, agricultural instructor of Prince William County. Edwin F. Hill, president of the Washington Kiwanis Club, invited members of the Manassas club to attend a meeting of the Washington unit on the U. S. S. Constitution on July 14.

Others on the program of last night's meeting were Mrs. Rose Rice Gray, who gave a number of readings, and Mrs. Stuart Pattie, who sang several solos, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Smith. George H. Winslow, secretary emeritus of the Washington club, and William F. Smith attended with Mr. Hill.

Stimson Denies He Asked $400,000 for Embassy Wine

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson, in a letter to the Senate yesterday, vigorously denied a statement attributed to Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, that "there was a recommendation for an appropriation for the Sate Department of $400,000 for wine for foreign embassies."

The letter was read by a clerk at the request of Senator Jones (Republican), Washington.

Secretary Stimson said the statement made by Senator McKellar on June 20 was "wholly without foundation and may completely mislead the public."

He wrote that never in the recollection of any official of the department has a recommendation been made to Congress for an appropriation for "wine or other intoxicating liquor for any officer of the department abroad."

There have been no expenditures by the department for wine or alcoholic beverages, Stimson reiterated.

McKellar, in his speech, had said: "There was a recommendation for an appropriation for the State Department of $400,000 for wine for foreign embassies. It was said that ambassadors and ministers of the United States in foreign countries appeared to better advantage when they had wine at ther dinner parties. So we had a wine bill of $400,000."

Secretary Stimson said the reference apparently was to the department's "representation allowances" of $125,000, and not $400,000. These by executive order, he said, are expressly forbidden to be used for purchase of alcoholic beverages.

Arlington Rushes County Road Work

140 Men Working Twelve Hours Daily to Finish Projects by July 1.

A force of 140 men are working twelve hours a day to complete the required grading on all streets included in the program for improvement by the Arlington County board according to Roy S. Braden, county manager. Four sets of road equipment are being used and eighteen cars of stone are being spread daily.

This work is being rushed, Braden explained, due to the fact that the county will come under the provisions of the Byrd road act July 1, at which time all county work will stop. This, he said, will result in the entire road force of more than 140 men losing their jobs.

The election, August 9, will decide whether they will remain under or withdraw from the Byrd road act.

How to Be Beautiful

Expert Answers Readers' Queries

Bleaching Superfluous Hair on Legs.

BETTY LOU: You can indeed bleach the hairs on your legs and make them so light that they will be scarcely perceptible through the silk stockings. Add six drops of ammonia to six teaspoonfuls of peroxide and pat on the hair on legs, allowing to dry. Be sure the peroxide is fresh, as it deteriorates very quickly. Better yet, ask your druggist for a strong solution of peroxide. You can remove the hair by shaving or by liquid paste or powder depilatories, or the wax epilators on the market. Of course, it will keep coming back, but the feeling of meticulous daintiness (particularly in the summer in a bathing suit) is well worth the trouble.

Bulges on the Hips.

"Brownie:" To reduce the bulges on your lower hips, the running in place exercise, rolling and squatting are excellent. My reducing regime includes a special group of exercises for the hips. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

Dimming Freckles.

"Constant Reader:" There are any number of women who feel with you that "getting their share of fresh air and sunshine means more than their share of freckles." The best thing to do is to protect your skin against the freckles by using a finishing cream or lotion (cream if your skin is dry and lotion if it is oily) and plenty of powder. Wear a brimmed hat or carry a parasol, if necessary, when you plan to be in the strong sun for any length of time. As for bleaches to dim the freckles, you may use peroxide and ammonia, buttermilk, diluted lemon juice or a ready-prepared bleach. My bulletin "Freckles—How to Deal With and Dim Them," may be had for a self-addressed, stamped envelope. It gives many recipes for home-made bleaches.

Oil Treatment for Overbleached Hair.

S. R. S.: First thing I would advise you to do is to put the bottle of peroxide where the mischievous young sister won't get at it to pour over your hair. To counteract the overbleached look, oil treatments are the best I can suggest. Olive or crude oil may be used for the purpose. Then the hair shampooed the next day. If the streaks are very apparent, consult with a hair dyeing specialist. Have a good, vegetable, darkening, nonirritating dye used, to restore the natural color of your hair. It will not be necessary to continue the dyeing process, because as your hair grows out it will be your natural color. If the streaks are not too apparent, there are many harmless vegetable rinses you can use in the last water after shampooing your hair to tone down the streaks and restore your hair's natural color.

PANAMA AND SANITATION.

THERE are no flies in the Panama Canal Zone, and not many in the Panamaian cities located near the zone. Several factors contribute to that end. There are plenty of ants and a good many spiders and other more or less inoffensive household insects, and these eat flies and fly larva and eggs whenever they get a chance.

Garbage is kept in clean pails and boxes and collected daily—sometimes oftener. There is comparatively little fly food available, and the odors through which flies find their food are not in evidence.

After being collected the garbage is disposed of on well-kept, flyproof garbage dumps. These are so placed as to fill up musquito-breeding marshes and ponds. The garbage is dumped in well-regulated piles and covered by paper and other material that flies and their larva can not penetrate. The garbage ferments and makes heat enough to kill any fly eggs, larvae and pupae that are present. The surface is coated with enough petroleum oils to drive flies away and to kill any larvae that might escape the fermentation heat.

Another important contributing factor is the handling of manure. All manure from stables and street sweepings is placed in fairly tight boxes and then closed and left for seven days. Fermentation causes much heat to develop. This kills the fly eggs and larvae. After it has cooled down it is found that the fermented product can be used as a fertilizer without becoming a good site for fly breeding, provided it is rather thinly spread over the ground, and provided the weather is suitable for sunning and drying.

However, these are rather too many qualifying needs to satisfy the exacting health officer, Dr. J. F. Siler, and his associates. They are now experimenting with the Beccari method, as first used for garbage disposal in Florence, Italy, and now used in many other places. It is also a composting method, but in this method the fermenting substances are given air. In Panama they first seal the boxes and let them ferment without air for seven days. They supplement this with about nineteen days of limited aeration.

The cells are then left to themselves for several months. All of this must be done under cover and the fermenting material must be kept dry. In the case of garbage the end product is a dry, fairly near powdered product, inoffensive, easily handled, and with high fertilizer value. Flies will not breed in it, nor will rats eat it. When manure is treated in the same way the results are not as good as had been hoped, but the process is being tried further in the hope that it can be improved.

PROUD FLESH.

S. H. writes:

1. Can proud flesh be cured?
2. What is the cause of it?
3. Which is the best method to cure it?
4. Is sun ray beneficial?

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. Proud flesh means that the usual healing by granulation has gone wrong for some reason. In some cases dead bone is the cause, or a foreign body of some other kind in the wound. A fingernail or toenail may cause proud flesh to develop in a nearby wound. Infection of a wound may cause it.

3. It is often necessary to clean out the dead bone or other foreign matter. In some cases the wound needs to be scraped and partially sterilized. The maggot treatment is very helpful.

4. Yes. It aids materially in the cure.

HEADED TOWARD TROUBLE.

Rex writes:

One of the old, grandmotherly cure-alls was to take half a teaspoonful of Epsom salts every morning. Do you consider the practice harmful if adhered to continuously? I am 52 years old.

REPLY.

I do.

Any person who has contracted the cathartic habit is headed for trouble. Among the most harmful cathartic habits is that one in which Epsom salts or some similar saline is used daily.

WEIGHT OF A BOY.

M. S. writes:

I am a boy 19 years of age. I weigh 160 pounds and my height is 5 feet 10 inches.

Are these the correct height and weight for my age?

REPLY.

The average for boys 19 years old is somewhere about 5 feet 9 inches in height, and 152 pounds in weight. Remember, however, that height and weight depend on race, size of bones, and type of build, and that we may, therefore, make mistakes when we apply the same standards of measurement to all people.

CRACKING JAWS.

Mrs. E. A. B. writes: I am 35 years old. For the last few years my jaws crack every time I chew. I have never had this trouble before. It does not hurt, but it is very annoying.

REPLY.

This is a mild arthritis. You will probably find that other joints are affected. The probability is that the jaw joint trouble will do no more harm than it is now causing.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Dah-ray designs to copy for embroidery or applique!

NEW YORK, June 24.—Cotton does not confine itself to evening gowns—oh, no! It has come into its own again, after all these years and years, for lingerie!

Cotton panties! How that used to sound. And oh, the luxury, the ineffable snobbery that silken undies once inspired in most of us! Little did we think when we were 16—and stepped into our first silk teddies—that the day would come when cotton lingerie would inspire in us an ultra sort of feeling that we were miles ahead of our friends in taste and elegance!

But it does, and is. The plot seems to be that 'most any one can wear silk lingerie, but it takes a "loidy" to wear cotton—and get away with it. Consequently, lingerie of the cotton or linen family has more attention paid to its construction, more fine stitches put in it, more style, than any other. And a whale of a lot more price tag, my deahs!

There is certainly something to say for cotton nightgowns, at that. If I never had any cotton lingerie but my sleeping wear—I would certainly wish to have it for that, these summer nights. Stepping into a cotton nightie is like being 16 again. Girlish—naive, unsophisticated—it positively takes twenty years from one! It should—when you consider the price. But what mere husband can be expected to realize that the cotton nightie you wear costs three times as much as your silk ones?

And for traveling, too—cotton, or lawn, dimity or linen, or swiss or voile are so nice for sleeping wear. They cool and keep one cool—and though they muss, what doesn't? All in all, I'm for cotton lingerie—for summer wear. Especially nightgowns.

* * * *

How would you like to make some Rue de la Paix cotton nighties for your own use for the summer? Just by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for a leaflet you can take a pseudo trip to Paree, and come back with a whole lingerie box full of aristocratic cotton lingerie. Nightgowns are our specialty in the leaflet—several different and easily made designs. And directions for the amount of material to use, how to cut it, how to sew it and how to trim it. Better send for it.

* * * *

We're just full of Dah-ray designs nowadays, aren't we? I almost sketched a lovely lady wearing a cotton nightie for you today—but thought better of it, and thought you would prefer to see their design instead, which you can cut out and save and copy for the trimming of the nightgowns you make from the leaflet. It's half the finished design, you know. Trace one-half over the whole.

* * * *

White bathing suits lead in popularity this year. Of course, bright blue—and in fact, all sorts of bright colors—are popular. And the brassiere suit, sometimes allowed, sometimes not, is seen, and very popular wherever it is allowed.

* * * *

Time out for loveliness. Saturday is our loveliness day, you know—and woe betide the lovely lady who lets too many Saturdays go. For our clothing needs constant attention, if we would be elegant and lovely at all times. Little snags here, a loose button there, which will fall off and be lost and may be impossible to replace—all these things the elegant woman goes over on her Saturdays. It only takes an hour or two, you know—and how many hours does it prolongs the life of a garment?

* * * *

Couple of leaflets left telling you how to make two practical and simple girdles. If you send your envelope for them right this minute, that is.

Au revoir.

Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WOULD like to move my lily garden. When should I do it and what preliminary work should be done in the new location before taking up the bulbs?

WILLIAM J. S.

A well-established lily bed should not be disturbed. When for any reason you feel that you must relocate a lily bed it should be done in the spring or fall. The ground of the new bed should be dug two weeks in advance of planting. Enrich the soil with plenty of well-decayed cow manure. Be sure you look up the depth at which the bulbs must be planted. Too shallow planting is frequently the cause of failure with lilies. Each variety is a law unto itself.

Please tell me how to coax a Christmas cactus to set buds. My plant used to bloom without coaxing, but of late it has never set a bud.

SADIE D. B.

Keep the plant in a sunny place on your porch and water it every other day. Keep the soil open and when it shows signs of growth give stimulation in the form of liquid manure or other plant food.

Please tell me how to get rid of small black insects which have taken possession of my nasturtiums.

ANNA N. G.

Spray your plants with any nicotine solution. You will have to spray twice a week until the pests are eradicated.

Please tell me when I can safely transplant a clematis.

MRS. PAUL H.

You can transplant a clematis in the spring.

How often should tulip bulbs be removed? I do not especially have to lift them, because I need the room for I find I can plant petunias in the same bed without injuring them, but I know occasionally they should be transplanted to keep them from becoming too crowded.

MRS. JACK R. E.

Tulips should be lifted and separated about once in three years.

Every year my bleeding heart dies down. Is this a natural condition? It always blooms beautifully.

LEWIS M. C.

As a rule, as soon as bleeding heart has finished flowering the foliage dies down.

I have two peonies which I bought last year from a reliable nursery and to my surprise neither bush has bloomed, though both bushes are seemingly healthy.

MRS. THOMAS F. W.

Peonies rarely bloom the first or second year after being transplanted. They may bloom the second year sparsely, but the third season they should bloom profusely.

Please tell me how to get rid of snails in my garden. I know that salt will kill snails, but I want a more humane way.

MRS. CHARLES P. L.

A handful of bran poured over the snail will smother it. Then it can easily be turned under the soil.

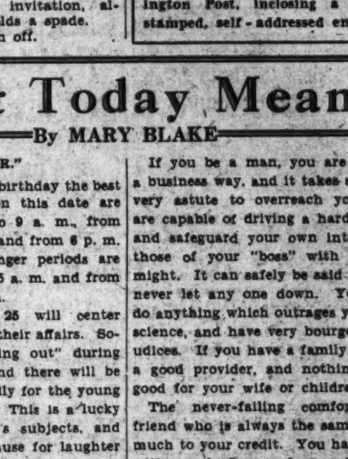
INHIBITING A LEAD.

THE practice of bidding a suit to prevent an opponent from leading it sometimes works very effectively, although more frequently alert opponents can detect the bluff nature of the bid, and thus go ahead and lead the suit anyhow. Against strong opposition, such bids have probably less than a 50 per cent chance of attaining their object. There is inherent in these bids always the danger that partner will take the bid seriously and that a contract will thereby be reached which is unattainable.

Mr. Milton Unger, of Boston, recently sent me a hand on which he secured a most unusual result through the use of this bid.

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	3◇	Pass
3♡(1)	Pass	3♠(2)	Pass
3NT(3)	Pass	5♡(4)	Pass
5NT(5)	Pass	6♡(6)	Pass
6NT(7)	Dbl.(8)	Redbl.(9)	Pass
Pass	Pass

I give Mr. Unger's notes on the bidding:

1—A psychic bid, hoping to discourage the lead of hearts if played at notrump.

2—A decided Slam invitation, although North holds a spade.

3—An attempt to sign off.

4—Believing the heart bid to have been sound.

5—"Partner, use your head!"

6—"You evidently did not hear my bid of five hearts!"

7—"You fool, now do you understand"

8—Anticipating trouble.

9—"You got yourself into this; now play it!"

West opened his singleton diamond, being unwilling to lead from his tenace situation in spades or clubs and feeling that a heart lead, in view of the strong bidding of that suit by North and South, would also be dangerous. South now took the heart finesse, and when it held, followed with two more rounds of hearts, discarding two small clubs from his own hand. Five rounds of diamonds then followed, upon which South discarded one club, and the 10 and 9 of spades. A spade was then led from the Dummy and won with the Ace in the closed hand. West was then forced into the lead, when South returned the Queen of spades, and was compelled to lead away from his minor tenace in clubs, permitting South to make the redoubled contract, a most fortunate result, it must be admitted, although the hand easily makes six diamonds, which can be reached by natural and normal bidding, and would not have required the end-play to make. However, nothing succeeds like success, so why should I quibble?

TODAY'S POINTER.

Bids to inhibit the lead by opponents are not ordinarily effective against strong opposition. These bids have a further danger in that partner, who is also surprised, may take them seriously.

(Copyright, 1932.)

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF June 25 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 7:25 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1:45 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:35 a. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Events on June 25 will center around relatives and their affairs. Society will be "stepping out" during the evening hours and there will be many parties, especially for the young ladies of the family. This is a lucky period for all today's subjects, and there will be more cause for laughter than tears.

The child born on this June 25 will have an orderly mind and will be fussy about its person and work. It will not be easily influenced nor devoid of initiative. It would make a good teacher, secretary, business executive or a professional man or woman. There will be very little of the artist in its make-up.

Born on June 25, you have a very kindly and lovable nature and there are few people who do not like you. You seem to find nothing too much trouble if you can thereby oblige some fellow man. You are fully aware of all your own good points, but your self-satisfaction is too ingenuous to cause resentment and your conceit too childish to be obnoxious.

If you be a man, you are keen in a business way, and it takes some one very astute to overreach you. You are capable of driving a hard bargain and safeguard your own interests or those of your "boss" with all your might. It can safely be said that you never let any one down. You never do anything which outrages your conscience, and have very bourgeois prejudices. If you have a family, you are a good provider, and nothing is too good for your wife or children.

The never-failing comfort of a friend who is always the same is very much to your credit. You have it out with people face to face and are not in the habit of backbiting. With all the lavish, color-loving powers of your nature, it is not surprising that you do not like economy. You have too much common sense, however, to forget the possible "rainy day" and you will always try to provide for the future.

Successful people born on June 25:

Edward Holyoke, Congregational clergyman.
Olive Thorn Miller, author.
Ralph Waldo Emerson, essayist.
McClintock Young, inventor.
Charles T. Yerkes, capitalist.
William H. Ward, Congregational clergyman.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Family Squabblings.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Will you please write something on the subject of family squabblings? Every member of our family reads your column, so no chance that your remarks will fail to register. And oh, what I hope for as a result of seeing themselves as they really are! In the first place I am a girl one year out of college, and I can hardly stand my life at home. I suppose they always went on as they do now, but before I went away to school I did not notice it so much. Now, however, after four years away among people who live civilized lives, in harmony with others—or at least with sufficient respect for the rights of others to use some restraint, I can truthfully say I have lost all respect for my family. Let one member of the group start any subject of conversation and there will be some insult forthcoming from some quarter to start the usual daily riot. These battles start so suddenly that I often do not even know who started the onslaught or who is at fault.

As an example. My kid brother brought in the paper last night. He bought it on the way home to read in the train. He was in the best of humor, threw it on the table, and greeted the family. My sister—7 years older—remarked upon his "generosity" bringing a newspaper as a "donation" to the family. He laughed it off, saying he just got it to read and "forgot to throw it away." But could he be let go on in peace with his dinner? No. She then said he was so "constituted" he would rather throw away anything than share it—even a used newspaper. The boy is just 18, and far from stingy. But he stood her remarks for a while, until she had worked herself up to taunts about his uncertain working schedule. (He works only three days a week.) This was so unjust, and the boy so bewildered by her sudden attack, I could not help taking a hand to defend him, and in less time than it is taking me to write this, the entire family was involved, and I was being told to pay back "loans" made me by the way of gifts by this sister when I was at school. I paid her back there and then in cash, although I was amazed that she had been all these years holding the thought that I owed her the sum of these small gifts. I do not mind paying her. What appals me beyond my power to express is this atmosphere of suppressed hate that bursts out in these tongue lashings. It is a daily occurrence, and parents taking a part instead of stopping the outrage. In this instance, my brother got up from his dinner, and for the first time spoke his mind. He told them that in his opinion they were a "bunch of lunatics," and left the house, remaining away all night, the first time he has ever done that. I feel disheartened. My sister especially resents the fact I went to college. She has a good position, but does not like her work. I am not crazy about my work either; but am not taking it out on others. I teach in an undesirable neighborhood and then come home to this bedlam. Who is to blame that we can not have one single meal in peace? And what can I do?

TEACHER.

Your brother was not far wrong in his diagnosis. People who seek emotional relief in scenes such as you describe are people in whom there is a lack of normal balance. They "fly off" on slight provocation, and after the emotional explosion are quite calm for some time.

Your course it to make your home elsewhere. And that is what your brother should do. Incidentally, this dignified protest against their savagery would bear fruit. Life is too short to spend in such turmoil as even your handwriting reveals. Seek serenity. That is the answer.

Christian Science Churches

"Christian Science" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from I Thessalonians 2:13: "When ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God!" (Isaiah 40:9).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "A book introduces new thoughts, but it can not make them speedily understood. It is the task of the sturdy pioneer to hew the tall oak and to cut the rough granite. Future ages must declare what the pioneer has accomplished. Since the author's discovery of the might of Truth in the treatment of disease as well as of sin, her system has been fully tested and has not been found wanting; but to reach the heights of Christian Science, man must live in obedience to its divine Principle" (page 7 of the Preface).

RKO-KEITH'S

"BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE." RKO-Radio's release of Van Beuren Pictures Corporation picturization of Frank Buck's book of the same name, with running comment by the author. Filmed in the Federated Malay States under the direction of Clyde E. Elliott. Previewed Tuesday midnight.

By NELSON B. BELL.

There is no nature-faking in this unique camera study of the jungles of Malaysia. Neither does it pretend to be an epic of human adventure, or anything else that it is not. "Bring 'em Back Alive" is a realistic and vivid record of the natural and unmolested pursuits of wild beasts in their native habitat and the means by which they are captured for exhibition in more civilized parts of the world.

The film, by its very preface, betrays its own freedom from falsification and subterfuge. The characters of the story—monkeys, elephants, tigers, leopards, crocodiles, pythons and the other terrifying denizens of tropic streams, forests and plains—are introduced by fading into official requisitions for a specimen or two of each, to be captured and "brought back alive" to various zoological societies, circuses, pet stores and private owners.

Frank Buck launches his expedition to fill these orders and that is precisely what the picture does—with some of the most astounding sequences of animal and reptile combat ever recorded by a motion picture camera; scenes without parallel or precedent.

The introductory shots of the approach to Singapore by water, and the preparation there of the safari into the jungle country, are fine examples of colorful and picturesque photography, but the thrills of the picture do not begin until the crude camp in the brush is established and Buck starts his hunt with lenses instead of lead.

There have been many "animal pictures" that have revealed a wider variety of birds, beasts and reptiles than this, but never before one which has so honestly and so intimately set forth the actual life of the jungle and its inexorable law of the survival of the fittest.

It is, of course, not all combat. Interspersed among the breath-taking battles between most unexpected adversaries are deft touches of comedy—supplied for the greater part by a cute little honey bear and a quizzical little white gibbon, Percy—and an interesting and minute exposition of exactly how even the most ferocious of the predatory animals are captured and caged without injury either to them or their captors.

This latter business all looks very simple and easy, but only because Frank Buck by long practice and experience has perfected his skill almost to the point of a fine art!

But even so, the great "kicks" of the picture are its bitter feuds and the battles royal that are fought without benefit of stage management or photographic trickery.

There are many of these. The first is between a black leopard—as mean looking a customer as ever slaughtered an unwary baby boar—and a tiger. Not long, but fast and vicious while it lasts. A tiger stages a short bout with a crocodile, by way of killing an idle moment; a python engages the crocodile in a shallow stream and leaves him with a broken neck and splintered back after a tussle so furious that it is difficult to follow with the naked eye. Other minor engagements mark the busy days in this pristine No-man's-land.

Once time out is taken to attend a native water festival, to lend the momentary variety of brief human activities.

But the blood-chilling climax of the film's entire footage is the prodigious and ghastly battle between a tiger and a 30-foot python. Here is epitomized the sublime terror of nature's most primitive existence. That fabulous battle between the mongoose and the cobra is mere butterfly chasing in comparison!

Although the fight is abandoned and renewed no less than three or four times, neither combatant is rendered null and void. In fact, after it is all over, neither is half so limp as the audience!

Appropriately enough, Mickey Mouse provides one of the short-reel antidotes for the jungle's tense excitements in "Mickey's Revue," one of Walt Disney's quaintest conceits. A Masquers Comedy, "The Engineers Daughter, or Iron Minnie's Revenge," peopled by a crowd of stars, and a new issue of the Pathe News are additional supplementaries of a feature that demonstrates conclusively that truth is not only stranger, but infinitely more thrilling than fiction.

"LENA RIVERS." Tiffany picturization of the novel by Mary J. Holmes, featuring Charlotte Henry, Beryl Mercer, James Kirkwood and Morgan Galloway. Directed by Phil Rosen. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Whatever it was that Mary J. Homes wrote into her time-tested novel, the picture version of "Lena Rivers" seems to lack. What we have here is another Kentucky horse racing picture wit hlittle to commend it to the discriminating cinemaddict.

The principal claim to one's attention here is that attached to the title role and the interpretation that Charlotte Henry places upon it. Considering that Lena Rivers' paternal parentage is somewhat nebulous, that she is accepted into the home of her maternal uncle and that he gives her a horse which finally wins the Kentucky Derby, she does not have much with which to work.

In spite of the obvious limitations, Miss Henry is the dominating personality of the picture, even overshadowing the sterling Beryl Mercer, not so much through superior work as because Miss Mercer's role of the grandmother is particularly negligible.

The story of Lena's nativity is finally told, though not before it is guessed. Jame Kirkwood is the father, whose parents' strong-arm methods militated against the announcement of his marriage.

Morgan Galloway is the ward of Mr. Kirkwood and divides his time between Miss Henry and Joyce Compton, finally requiring an auto crash to bring about the final reconciliation with Lena. Betty Blythe, John St. Polis, Russell Simpson and Clarence Muse are adequate in their supporting roles.

"The Animal World of Make Believe" takes the lead in the line of supporting attractions, with Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, describing some of the strange animals and nature's more-than-successful application of camouflage.

In a cartoon that has all the earmarks of being made before the era of sound, "Tee Time" offers the well-known feline, Felix, in a not-so-amusing comedy. Louis John Bartels, demonstrating "A Perfect 36," endeavored to sell corsets to Hollywooden south-sea islanders.

The Paramount News completes the line-up.

"RED HEADED WOMAN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Katharine Brush, adapted to the screen by Anita Loos, featuring Jean Harlow and Chester Morris, with Lewis S. Stone, Leila Hyams and Una Merkel. Directed by Jack Conway. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

There is a legend, it seems, that certain qualities are possessed by red-headed women which make all men their natural prey. Once they set out on a campaign of conquest there is no stopping them. Nor even giving them pause!

Such a girl was Lil Baldwin, office stenographer, who took her red-headed temperament seriously. When Lil fixed her eye on a social position and the big money, she blazed through a meteoric career like fire through a tinder box, scorching everyone with whom she came in contact, finally even touching off a consuming conflagration among the susceptible old dodoes around the French race courses and walking off with the silver cup—while her chauffeur lover drove her and her carful of new victims home!

There is not much excuse for this Katharine Brush "heroine" on the screen. But there she is, big as life and twice as alluring, mistaking lust for love and vanity for virtue like all get out. So what?

So we shall skip lightly over the moral shortcomings of this human holocaust and come to the matter of how Jean Harlow plays her.

Miss Harlow, if you must know, plays her right up to the hilt! It is not a pretty character, this, in which the platinum blonde—transformed into an even lovelier creature a few tones darker—encounters her most important opportunity to date before the camera, but that does not hamper either the resourcefulness or the vigor of her performance. Lil was a no good gal and Jean Harlow plays her that way. Sweet, subtle and seductive one minute, she is storming, stony and savage the next, blasting honest loves, wrecking happy homes and raising the devil generally in the lives of those about her.

Miss Harlow has come to life to accomplish all this. She has cast away the boredom that seemed to characterize much that she has previously done up there on the silver sheet; scrapped entirely all earlier methods. As Lil, she tears in, hammer and tongs, and pounds out a portrayal that is interesting, variegated, vibrant and full of the rich promise of greater things to come. Restraint is cast to the winds and a brick-top nature brought vividly into high relief to the greater glory of a young actress who apparently has only been awaiting the chance to demonstrate the possession of qualifications beyond a picturesque wardrobe and unusual hair. You may not care for Lil, but Jean is distinctly on her way!

It is an excellent supporting cast that has been assembled to round out Miss Brush's conception of what flaming sirens are like. Chester Morris as Bill Legendre, the first of the flamboyant enchantress' victims; Lewis S. Stone, as his father; Leila Hyams, as the wife to whom Bill returns chastened in the end, and May Robson as the junior Mrs. Legendre's aunt, all acquit themselves with characteristic skill. The role of Gaerste, the elderly object of Lil's later predatory instincts, is faultlessly played by that splendid character actor, Henry Stevenson, and Una Merkel, as Lil's roommate, provides a running fire of caustic comment and crisp comedy that makes her presence important.

"Red Headed Woman" may not be uplifting, very, but it is never dull.

One of Hal Roach's "Boy Friends" comedies, "Wild Babies," with Mickey Daniels, Mary Korman and the rest; a "Scrappy" cartoon comedy, "The Battle of the Barn," and a new issue of the Hearst Metrotone News supplement a feature in which it may be observed how a charming young actress gathers stellar momentum.

EARLE

"THE DARK HORSE." First National's picturization of a story by Melville Crossman, adapted to the screen by Joseph Jackson and Wilson Mizner, featuring Warren William, Bette Davis, Guy Kibbee and Vivienne Osborne. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

The Dark Horse turns out to be just donkey enough to make this a missed opportunity, in spite of the fun it does possess, but there's at least one smash, stop-the-show hit in the vaudeville program introduced by the attractive Miss Maxine Doyle, as compensation. That hit is the ingratiating appearance of Radio's Ballyhooligans, Charlie Jordan and Johnny Woods.

We had such hopes pinned on the dark horse, but it seems to have run out on us! Instead of satirical and skillful shaft-shooting at our political three-rings, so tragically current, this opus is told in a heavy-handed punning fashion. At this time of all times, knowing the obvious cracks by heart, we would welcome a little subtlety.

The progressive convention has been deadlocked on two candidates for the governorship, balloting night and day, shaving chins and changing shoes in the convention hall, when both factions suddenly decide upon a dark horse as the only solution, each hoping to split the other's vote. Both throw votes to Zachary Hicks, an unknown, with the most doubtful county and the most picturesque name on the list of delegates. And when the reckoning is "writ," lo, Hicks leads all the rest.

Even in this country, this day and age, Hicks is pretty impossible gubernatorial material, so the appearance of Hal S. Blake (S. for Sampson), publicist extraordinary, molder of public opinion and maker of governors, is welcomed with hosannas in the highest. Add an alimony craving ex-wife, and a most attractive prospective second Mrs. Blake to Mr. Blake's difficulties with the dumbest candidate on the face of the earth, and you'll get an inkling of the story's ups and downs.

Warren William as the human dynamo, Blake, succeeds as usual in being interesting and invigorating. Bette Davis is her crisp, likable self. Guy Kibbee seems, of all things, a trifle unintelligent in his dumb role. Vivian Osborne is excellent as the gold-digging wife, while Frank McHugh helps considerably as Blake's pal.

Now for the stage hit again. Young Woods and Jordan go most pleasantly about the business of kidding that kiddable radio racket, yanking all and sundry across the coals and through their mike. Woods being simply swell and amazing as Chevalier, Rudy Vallee, Helen Kane and Morton Downey, while Jordan is no slouch as Kate Smith, Tony Wons and Singing Sam.

Also on the stage, the Kitaros do exciting acrobatic stunts, their grace and sense of humor adding much. Herman Timberg completely clutters up the stage with freaks in his nut act, which has its share of moments, one beauteous Southern damsel, Audrey Parker, and the delightful dancing of Herman Timberg, jr. The Four Queens tap nicely and if you're tired of looking at dancing feet, they've four very, very pretty faces for you. Miss Maxine, incidentally, has four very, very pretty dresses for you.

A newsreel and cartoon comedy complete the bill.

Church Group Indorses Hoover Arms Cut Plan

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—President Hoover's proposal for a reduction in world armaments today was given the unqualified approval of the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches.

A formal statement urging church members affiliated with the council to "give the President their prompt, hearty and active support," was adopted at a meeting. A copy was sent to the White House.

LOEW'S FOX

"BACHELOR'S AFFAIRS." Fox picturization of the play, "Precious," by James Forbes, adapted to the screen by Barry Conners and Phillip Klein, featuring Adolphe Menjou, Joan Marsh, Minna Gombel and Allan Dinehart. Directed by Alfred Werker. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

A droll and delightful comedy of December wed to May here is deftly turned by a group of principals ideally chosen for their appointed tasks. While there are one or two explosive moments in the dialogue, "Bachelor's Affairs" is more immediately notable for the adroit manner in which it generates a steady flow of lines and situations that are continuously and not too farcically amusing. The level of interest and entertainment is held consistently high.

Adolphe Menjou is happily cast as the middle-aged man of wealth who is roped into a marriage with a glamorous but goofy little nincompoop out of pots and pans in Ypsilanti's biggest department store by her sapient and scheming sister. Aboard ship, where he met her, marrying her seemed a smart idea. Ashore, among his old friends, accustomed surroundings, indigestion and hardening arteries, it was not so hot!

So his partner invited him down to the country place, where a young architect engaged the interest of the bride, a few stray divorcees and near-divorcees happened in and things, altogether, got themselves into a bit of a mess. The faithful secretary, who misinterpreted a radiogram from shipboard and bought two hundred dollars' worth of fancy nightgowns, thinking she was to be the bride, the partner and Andrew Hoyt's bank account finally managed to set things straight.

As you can plainly see, "Bachelor's Affairs" is one of those frothy inconsequential, but wholly enjoyable things when well done, that you either like or you don't like. There is not much room for middle ground in an appraisal of anything so flippantly fashioned and so seriously played. It was a keenly diverting bit of pastiming to your reporter and is recommended as such.

Menjou, as the thoroughly disillusioned groom, whose bride sets a social pace that would wear down a Hercules or a horse, turns in a perfectly timed and humorously convincing portrayal of an aging lover for whom a pair of fireside slippers take on an ever-increasing charm. Joan Marsh, as the blonde half-wit he married, acts exactly like the blonde half-wit he married—which is a perfect score. Minna Gombell, as the sagacious sister, for the first time in months, has a role to which she is perfectly suited and to which she brings a high degree of smart and sophisticated effectiveness. Allan Dinehart, as the partner; Arthur Pierson, as the architect; Don Alvardo, as a dancing teacher, come to instruct the Hoyts in the snake-hip intricacies of the rhumba, and Irene Purcell, as the faithful secretary, render yeoman's service in completing the supporting ensemble.

On the stage, Benny Davis presents another group of juvenile performers in a new "Stars of the Future" revue that is far and away the best of the series he has brought to the Capital during the past four or five years. Benny's rich endowment of showmanship enables him to work each turn up to a smashing climax that makes the kids look probably better than they are and bowls the customers right out of their pews! If these aging ears caught the names, Sunny O'Dea, tap dancer; the Three Singing Ryans, Jack Starr, eccentric dancer; Jackie Green, a combination Eddie Cantor-Al Jolson; Sis and Buddy Roberts, acrobatic dancers; Martha Ray, singer, and Ray Saks, a dancing saxophonist, are the aces of Benny's current cast. Mr. Davis personally brings his shipdeck scene to a close with snatches of a long list of song hits of his own composition. What an act!

James A. Fitzpatrick's travel reel, "Over the Seas to Borneo;" a Mack Sennett comedy, "The Boudoir Butler," with Andy Clyde and Tom Kennedy; the Fox Movietone News and Phil Lamkin's "Atlantis" overture in four movements, complete a pretty swell opera!

Tear Gas Bombs Hurled On Strikers by Plane

A dynamite charge was set off near the power house of the Ohio & Pennsylvania Deep Shaft Mine, at Unionvale, in Harrison County, and a sniper opened up again with a single shot on workmen at the Blaine Mine of the Lorain Coal & Dock Co., in Belmont County. Two workmen at the Powhatan Mine, in southeastern Belmont County, were beaten, and seven arrests resulted.

Washington police were given a description of Davis who is believed to have $30,000 in his possession. Deputy Attorney General George Crowther, of Colorado Springs, issued a fugitive warrant for the banker and a Nation-wide search was started.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

MISS VAUGHN DE LEATH, the original radio girl and one of the country's most popular ballad and blues singers, will be present in person to headline next week's stage show at Loew's Fox Theater, according to word received yesterday afternoon from New York by Carter Barron, city manager of Loew's Washington theaters.

Miss De Leath will be presented as a special added attraction with the "Hell's Belles" revue, the stage unit with which Wesley Eddy was loaned to appear at the Century Theater in Baltimore this week, while Benny Davis holds forth locally with his "Stars of the Future" revue.

Vaughn De Leath comes by her title of the "original radio girl" honestly. It was she who climbed into an experimenter's shack eleven years ago, picked her way among an odd looking assortment of tubes and coils and sang into a sort of wired-up plate.

This was the first time a song was ever broadcast over wireless, as it was generally called in those seemingly remote days. Miss De Leath had no notion whatever that anyone outside the shack would hear her song and still less that the supposed medium through which she was singing it ever would become one of the greatest industries and most popular forms of entertainment we have.

It is said that Miss De Leath is coming to Washington with a bagful of new blues numbers, among them several selections that have never been sung over the air.

The newsreels are displaying divergent estimates of news values this week. In some of them, for example, the Sharkey-Schmeling fight in the Madison Square Garden Bowl at Long Island City last Tuesday night is given a higher rating than President Hoover's presentation of the National Geographic Society's medal to Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam for her solo flight across the Atlantic. About an equal number reverse the order of importance and give the President and Mrs. Putnam a break over Mr. Sharkey and the Teuton.

You'd be surprised who gets the most applause!

Manager Hardie Meakin has gone jungle at RKO-Keith's this week in honor of his picture, Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive." The top of the marquee, surmounting the entrance to the theater, has been converted into a patch of the wilds infested by one rhinoceros, the main entrance to the playhouse has disappeared entirely behind a false front, setting forth something of the atmosphere and the wonder of the picture to be found within, and the lobby has been transformed into a lurking place for all manner of ferocious beasts—not meaning the cash customers!

Reverting momentarily to those fight shots in the newreels, if you think Mr. Sharkey didn't take an eye home with him, you are approximately off your nut! Mr. Schmeling, by the time the picture was taken, didn't show a mark, although his English is still pretty badly mutilated!

Jean Harlow's performance in the title role of Katharine Brush's "Red-Headed Woman," current at the Palace, will surprise even her most ardent and most hopeful admirers. The girl cuts loose from all earlier restraint and really shows what she can do. Whether it was the director, the story or just one of her good days is something you can guess at as well as any one. Maybe it will turn out that Miss Harlow is merely an actress—something of which she has not always been seriously suspected.

The overture selection, "Atlantis," arranged by Phil Lampkin for this week's bill at Loew's Fox, is scoring an emphatic hit with enthusiastic audiences, keyed high by the excellence of the rest of the bill. It is in four movements—each short—"Hymn of Praise," "Court Function," "I Love Thee" and "Destruction." Special lighting effects are employed during the rendition of the number, but no interpretative scenes on screen or drapes.

With Jean Harlow starting fires in "Red-Headed Woman," it is too bad Collins and Peterson, stars of the "Keep Klowning" revue, at the Fox last week, are not here this week, too.

METROPOLITAN

"NO GREATER LOVE." Columbia Pictures filmization of the story "And God Smiled" by Isadore Bernstein, featuring Betty Jane Graham, Alexander Carr and Dickie Moore. Directed by Lewis Seiler. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Built upon the solid foundation of the natural human desire to help and protect those who are handicapped, "No Greater Love" rises to dramatic heights few films of its type have achieved. It is a triumph for two of the players in its cast, neither of whom has previously enjoyed cinema stardom—Betty Jane Graham and Alexander Carr.

Tears? Yes, and plenty of them. Laughs? Yes, scores of them. Love? All kinds of it. Mother love. The love of a priest for his parishioners. The love of a rabbi for his congregation. The love of a child for its playmate. The love of a doctor for his crippled patient. And above all, the love of Sidney Cohen, bachelor delicatessen owner, for Mildred Flanagan, orphaned cripple.

There is a love that is a love. A love which causes the storekeeper to sell all his worldly goods to obtain money for an operation on the child. A love which enabled him to turn the girl against him that she might be better contented in an institution where a machine-like, heartless charity worker has placed her, having taken her from Sidney's home of adoration and care. And a return of that love which brings the broken-hearted old man back from the brink of the grave until he lives to see the day his little girl can walk, run and play.

Little Miss Graham is as appealing, as Mildred, as any child star placed before the public in a long time. There is a decided resemblance to Lillian Gish in her features, particularly her eyes. The youngster carries through a difficult role with never a flaw in the performance. And as Sidney Cohen, the kind-hearted storekeeper, Alexander Carr is little short of magnificent.

In prominent parts are Dickie Moore, as Tommy, Mildred's playmate; Beryl Mercer, as Tommy's grandmother; Hobart Bosworth, the neighborhood doctor; Richard Bennett, the great surgeon; Alec Francis, the priest; Mischa Auer, the rabbi; Martha Mattox, the welfare investigator; Helen Jerome Eddy, the superintendent of the children's hospital.

Ruth Etting heads the list of those featured in auxiliary film attractions. She is the star of "A Regular Trouper," a rather sad sort of thing, in which she does two numbers beautifully. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Norworth are presented in another of the "Naggera" series, called "Movie Dumb," which has some laughs, and there are also an issue of Ripley's "Believe It or Not" and the usual Paramount Sound News.

Modern Life-Sufferers Advised to Study Stars

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Neurotics suffering from the high pressure of modern life were advised by Dr. Robert G. Aitken, California astronomer, today, to study the stars. To those who realize how immense is the universe, he said, mundane things seem trivial and unimportant.

Dr. Aitken arrived on the Leviathan from London, where he went to receive a gold medal from the Royal Astronomical Society for his work on double stars, and to deliver the annual Darwin lecture before the society. He is director of the Lick Observatory, at Mount Hamilton, Calif.

Nats Return For Boston Series

Crowder Faces Sox Today in First of 2-Game Set.

Johnson Retains His Faith in Coffman; Shy on Control.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

FOR an ordinary, every-day kind of a team, a fifty-fifty showing on a road trip is considered good, but for a team which has been talking pennant for some time, such as have the Nationals and their followers, their record of eight victories in sixteen starts in the West has not brought forth a gust of cheers. When Manager Walter Johnson and his men hied West early this month they were four games behind the leading Yankees, one game ahead of the third-place Tigers, and a little better than a game in front of the Mackmen.

Today they open a two-game home stay against the Boston Red Sox, with the Yankees eight full games ahead of them and with the Tigers and Mackmen between them and the leaders by a half-game margin. True, with the race just a little more than one-third over, the Washington Club can not be considered out of the flag chase, as it is possible for the Nats to jump back into the runner-up berth by winning this afternoon.

Crowder Faces Three Box Assignments.

"General" Al Crowder, rated as Washington's most consistent pitcher, will be given three chances to do his bit for the cause within the week. Johnson plans to use him against the Red Sox here today, with Johnny Michaels probably opposing him, and then will call on the General to face the Yankees in New York on Wednesday and the Mackmen in one of the two games listed in Philadelphia next Saturday.

One of the most disappointing features of the trip was the failure of Pitcher Dick Coffman to deliver. It is understood that the Nats paid the Browns more money, along with Carl Fischer, than they did to the Chicago White Sox for Alphonse Thomas. Coffman was given three trials as a starter and he failed in each.

Manager Johnson has not given up on Coffman, though, for the Nat catchers and some of the players who could see what was going on, declare that Coffman had plenty of stuff each time he toed the slab but that his control was off, forcing him to groove the ball too often, and that it was on these "fat" ones off which the hits which beat him were made. So extra time in the bull-pen has been prescribed for him in order that he can gain the control which he had during the latter part of last season and this year up until the time the Nats bought him.

"He probably has been 'pressing' too much trying to make good here," said Johnson last night. "I'm confident that he'll win lots of games for us before the schedule is completed."

Averill Ridicules Nats' Pitching.

Earl Averill, of the Indians, is doing a little ghost writing these days, and it is not doing his club any good. For instance, a recent story under his name said that the Nats were one of the poorest clubs in the league and would do well to finish fourth. He also added that the Washington mound corps was made up of nothing but "batting practice" pitchers.

Needless to say, from now on Johnson's club will be bearing down particularly hard when opposing the Tribe in the future, while the pitchers will take special efforts to prove Earl wrong about their ability every time he comes to the plate against them.

WOMEN'S GOLF TODAY.

The women's golf tournament postponed from last week will be played today over the course of the National Women's County Club. The test will be over the 18-hole route, medal play with a handicap. An invitation is extended to all women golfers who have participated in events of the Women's District Golf Association.

Walker Is Beaten By Johnny Risko

20,000 Watch Clevelander Win Slam-Bang Bout by Wide Margin.

Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, Ohio, June 24 (U.P.).—A bull-rushing, hard-punching Johnny Risko, Cleveland's baker boy, sidetracked the heavyweight championship aspirations of Mickey Walker by slamming his way to a 12-round victory over the "Toy Bulldog" here tonight.

While 20,000 fans roared their approval, Risko, the old trial horse, staged a sensational come-back. He slugged, punched and rushed his way to a clear-cut victory over the former ruler of the welter and middleweights, and the man who held the new heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, to a draw.

It was Risko all the way. Walker, appearing tired, fat and flabby, was unable to combat the slam-bang attack of Risko. Only in the tenth and eleventh rounds did the Toy Mickey display the class that made him a champion. Flashing a left hook and a right cross, he peppered Risko's midriff and had the Cleveland boy staggering. But Risko came back in the final round to clinch the decision —an unanimous one.

Walker went to the floor in the second round when Risko's left uppercut caught him under the chin, but got up without a count. Walker weighed 171½, Risko, 198½.

Maryland Meets Hopkins in Final

Lacrosse Game Today at Baltimore Determines U. S. Olympic Team.

Having reached the peak of its form, Maryland University's Lacrosse Team today engages Johns Hopkins in Baltimore Stadium in the final of the Olympic play-off series, beginning at 3 p. m. The winner will go to Los Angeles to represent the United States in the forthcoming Olympiad.

Hopkins, undefeated in the regular season and the series to date, holds the only victory checked against Maryland's record for 1932. In their earlier clash the Jays gave the Terrapins a sound trouncing.

Today Maryland sends into battle a team greatly strengthened on defense, and Coach Jack Faber is optimistic over the chances of his men. Hopkins' vaunted attack, he believes, will find worthy opposition.

Maryland will start the same lineup that participated in a 5-to-4 defeat of Rutgers in the semifinals last week. Hopkins' array will be the same that downed Crescent A. C. with the exception of Don Kelly, crack first attack, who is coming back to the wars after a lay-off caused by an ankle injury.

HOLE-IN-ONE FOR D. C. MAN.

Bedford, Pa., June 24.—Robert P. Smith, prominent Washington barrister, shot a hole in one on the seventeenth hole at Bedford Springs while attending the Penn Bar Association convention here today.

Boxing Body Suspends Jacobs

Conduct After Bout Detrimental, Says Commission.

Schmeling, Referee and Judges Are Praised.

NEW YORK, June 24 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission, sitting in judgment on the Sharkey-Schmeling championship fight, today indefinitely suspended Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling. At the same time the commission approved the work of Referee "Gunboat" Smith and praised the German fighter, both as a boxer and as a gentleman.

Jacobs, who charged Schmeling had been robbed of the decision by unfair officials named by the commission, was suspended as a manager and a second on the grounds that his conduct and actions were detrimental to the best interests of boxing. His suspension, however, does not affect Schmeling or other boxers in the Jacobs-Billy McCarney stable.

Muldoon Lauds Schmeling.

"We have nothing but praise for Schmeling," said Commissioner Muldoon. "Not only is he a 40 per cent better fighter than two years ago, but his manners and conduct, after losing the championship, were a credit to the ring."

Smith, appearing before the commission on his own initiative to ask if any complaints had been received on his work in the fight, was congratulated by Commissioners Muldoon and John J. Phelan. James A. Farley, chairman of the board, was not present, being in Chicago for the Democratic national convention.

"We have no fault to find with the officials," said Muldoon. "They performed their duty to the best of their ability. Nobody knew of their appointment, until a few minutes before the fighters appeared, except Gen. Phelan and myself."

Heard No Complaint Before Fight.

According to Commissioner Phelan, Jacobs never appeared before the commission before the fight to lodge any complaint against the appointment of certain officials. After the fight Jacobs said he knew several days in advance who would be the third man in the ring.

"The commercial end of the bout spoiled the fight for the fans," said Muldoon. "There was so much money involved that neither fighter was willing to open up and take a chance."

Schmeling, who sails for Germany tomorrow night for a brief visit with his mother, was given a farewell luncheon by Dr. Otto C. Kiep, German consul general, today.

There's a reason why the Grosner price for LINEN SUITS IS $15

. . . and that reason is simply this . . . it was just impossible to get the fine tailoring; the attention to detail; and proper style to sell our customers for any less; besides, we insisted on a linen sufficiently heavy to keep it out of the cleaners every time it's worn. We looked at scores of summer suit lines and found that the only suits into which we could sew our label with pride and assurance of satisfaction was a $15 linen suit. Of course, you can buy one for less . . . but NOW, you know the reason why we don't have them.

Harvard Boat Beats Yale 3 Lengths

Crimson Leads From Start to Win 71st Race in Upset.

Stroked by Cassedy, Crimson Draws Away Easily.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 24 (A.P.).—Down a narrow, shimmering lane of deep blue water, amid the pandemonium of half a thousand bursting sirens, a bull-chested young giant stroked a tremendously underrated Harvard crew to crushing victory over Yale tonight in the final grand gesture of intercollegiate rowing for 1932.

With every pull of his tireless arms, "Gerry" Cassedy lifted his husky crew down the historic Thames in the fading sun of a perfect summer evening to whip the highly favored Elis by three lengths, smash their hopes of American Olympic repetition and lift himself among the great names in Harvard rowing.

Greatest Harvard Day In 19 Years.

The Crimson victory in the 4-mile grind climaxed the greatest day in Harvard rowing in nineteen years.

Not since 1913 has Harvard's varsity triumphed over Yale in successive years and today's victory marked the first time Ed Leader in his ten years at Yale has seen two of his varsities beaten in succession. To add to the day of upsets, the varsity conquest made it two out of three for the day, as an equally surprising junior varsity beat the Elis by a length this morning after the Harvard freshmen had trailed Yale by three lengths in the opening brush.

With a mighty dash at a stroke of 41 beats in the first minute, Cassedy stroked his brawny fellows away from the starting line and to a lead of a few feet in the first hundred yards. Johnny Jackson, frantically lifted the Eli stroke in pursuit. The Yale beat went up and up and up and with it the Bulldog crew. At a quarter of a mile, Yale was even; at the half mile, a quarter length ahead.

Cassedy Begins Stroking Victorious Pace.

There it was that Cassedy, stroking his second victorious varsity, set the pace that smothered the Yale burst and went back to the fore never to be headed and scarcely threatened the rest of the winging way.

Not until the final marker was only 200 feet away did Cassedy let up. Then the coxswain lifted his arms, the oars came out of the water, and the crimson shell sped over the finish with two full lengths of open water showing. Yale, floundering a bit, but still pulling desperately, must have picked up half a length in the last 200 feet.

Harvard's time was 21 minutes 29 seconds, well above the record of 20 minutes 2 seconds set by Harvard in 1916. Yale's time was 21:42. The Harvard victory was its thirty-third in exactly 70 races over the 80-year period. Yale has won 37 times.

U. S. PLAYERS ADVANCE IN ENGLAND

Vines, Mrs. Moody, Miss Jacobs Near Wimbledon Finals.

By ROBERT C. DAWSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

WIMBLEDON, England, June 24 (U.P.).—Three United States stars advanced into the quarter-final stage of the British national tennis championships today.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs, both of California, in the women's singles, and Ellsworth Vines, also of California, in the men's singles, had comparatively easy times winning their fourth round matches.

Mrs. Moody defeated Mrs. L. A. Godfree, of Great Britain, 6—3, 6—0, while Miss Jacobs triumphed over Mrs. C. H. Jameson, British star, 6—1, 6—2.

Vines Beats Aoki In Four Sets.

Vines, one of the five Americans still in the running for the singles title, won from Iwao Aoki, of Japan, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2. The other four Americans—Sidney B. Wood, defending champion; Frank Shields, Gregory Mangin and Wilmer Allison—play their fourth round matches tomorrow.

Miss Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, was America's chief casualty of the day. She dropped her fourth round singles match to Miss Betty Nuthall, young British star. The scores were 8—6, 9—7.

Shields and Pat Spence, of South Africa, after winning their second round match from Nigel Sharpe and Pat Wheatley, of Great Britain, 6—3, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1, were eliminated in the fourth round of the men's doubles. Their conquerors were the French combination of Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon with the scores 11—9, 6—0, 6—2.

POREDA WINS FIGHT WITH SCHAAF

12,000 See Sharkey's Protege Outboxed in Ring Upset.

WEST NEW YORK, N. J., June 24 (U.P.).—Stanley Poreda, Jersey City heavyweight, scored a sensational upset tonight by winning a ten-round decision over Ernie Schaaf, highly touted Boston boxer, before 12,000 fans at the stadium.

Schaaf, a protege of Champion Jack Sharkey and regarded as the third ranking heavyweight, was completely outclassed by Poreda.

Schaaf won only one round; Poreda took five and four were even.

Poreda gave a masterly exhibition of boxing, completely bewildering the blond Bostonian. He kept Schaaf off balance most of the time with stabbing left jabs to the face and chin.

In the third round, Poreda followed a left jab with a hard right to the head that set Ernie back on his heels, and raised a goose-egg on his forehead.

Schaaf was sadly inaccurate in his timing; he was continually beaten to the punch with left jabs, and his only worth-while blows were a few right hooks to the body.

Stecher to Wrestle White Feather Here

Joe Stecher, former world's wrestling champion, will meet Chief White Feather in one of the feature bouts on next Thursday's mat card at the ball park. The chief has been suffering from a bruised hand since his match with Fred Grobmeier, two weeks ago, but is expected to be in shape for Thursday's encounter with the old-time scissors king.

In the only other bout arranged to date, Frank Brunowicz will tangle with Marshall Blackstock. Women will be admitted free, with paying escorts.

The new price scale is: Ringside, $2.20; grand stand, $1.65 and $1.10; all others, $1.

Foreign Pros Total 145 To Gain Leadership as Dutra Adds Poor Round

Perkins Breaks Par With 69 to Deadlock Argentinian Who Adds a 71; Jurado Seen as Growing Favorite to Win.

Dutra a Stroke Behind With Total of 146; Diegel, Hagen, Cooper, Sarazen and Wood Close Behind Leaders.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

FRESH MEADOW COUNTRY CLUB, Flushing, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—Olin Dutra, the California heavyweight contender for golfing honors, knocked himself right out of lead today in the second round in the United States open championship, leaving the battle wide open again, with two more regulation rounds to go tomorrow.

Four strokes in front, after his sensational first round of 69, still going strong for the first nine today as the weather gods finally favored the leaders, Dutra took 3 "long counts" on the incoming nine and wound up with a card of 35, 42—77.

The Californian's 36-hole total of 146 left him 1 stroke back of a new pair of pace setters—Jose Jurado, from the Argentine, now a thoroughly established favorite, and Thomas Philip Perkins, transplanted British star who lately turned professional as an economic necessity.

The slim, bespectacled Perkins, former holder of the British amateur title, shot the best round of the day, a subpar 69, to post a total of 145 that withstood the late afternoon challenges of all except Jurado.

South American Adds Card of 71.

The swarthy little South American, apparently perfectly at home under all conditions and any flag, consolidated his bid by adding a fine 71 to his previous 74 for another 145 aggregate.

During a day that saw the gale subside and scores come back rapidly to normal, after a hectic start, the effect of Dutra's semicollapse was to tighten up the race, leaving five stars within three strokes of each other and a dozen more within hailing distance.

Barring further sensational developments, it looked like a "five-star final" for the double round tomorrow, with Leo Diegel and Walter Hagen, two seasoned campaigners, fully prepared to contest every stroke down the stretch with Jurado, Perkins and Dutra in an international free-for-all.

Diegel Two Strokes Back With 74.

Diegel was two strokes back with 73—74—147, one of the few top notchers who failed to show substantial improvement today. Hagen, despite a costly seven on the 587-yard sixteenth hole, was only three shots off the pace with a two-day card of 75—73—148.

No one else "broke" for the first 36 holes, but among an even dozen within seven strokes of the leaders were a number of stars capable of shooting rapidly to the front, if they get the "breaks" tomorrow.

Although they still had an outside chance, the failure of the two ruling champions, Bill Burke and Gene Sarazen, to strike faster galts furnished a big surprise to the galleries. Paired together for the second straight day, neither showed improvement.

Mad Hatteras Colt Is Given Clever Ride by Richard.

The Crane, 50 to 1, Jolts Form Players at Aqueduct.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 24 (A.P.).—Hatteras, one of the wayward sons of the famous Mad Hatter, came to life after a series of disappointments today to win the feature of the day's card at Washington Park. So unexpected was his triumph that he paid $75.84 for each $2 ticket in the pari-mutuels.

Given a hustling ride by Jockey A. Richard, Hatteras lasted to win by a nose over Anita Ormont and Panchio, which finished in that order for place and show. The victor ran the mile and 70 yards distance in 1:42 2-5.

A large crowd, including many delegates to the Democratic national convention, watched the card, which returned favorites in the first four races.

The Crane Jolts Aqueduct Players.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 24 (A.P.).—A featureless but well-balanced program was offered this afternoon by the Queens County Jockey Club and the off-day card was well patronized. Form players started operations with rare success when favorites accounted for the first half of the six events.

The Crane, 50 to 1, gave the players a boot in the fifth event when he ran away with the purse. The Crane was neglected in the betting and in some places 100 to 1 was quoted against his chances. Gilbert had the mount and it made his second score of the day. The Crane was kept close to the early pace and when the field straightened out in the stretch for the run to the wire Gilbert drove him hard and, taking the lead, won by three lengths. Concord beat Westko a head for the place.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

Asbestos' bank roll was nicked $2.31 yesterday when Finnic lost and Inheritor could do no better than third. The sock is now $51.02, but the little fellow thinks he will get it back and then some more today. He's giving the code horse at Hamilton: 4, 1, 25, 7, 5, 20, 7.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: WASHINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, June 24.

After putting over the winners of the first two races I lost complete control and it was not until the seventh race that I came back to earth with Haramzada, which won the nightcap and paid $18.22. I must have been getting in my stride, for I gave Rolling Sea, which finished second, as the contender.

Anita Ormont, my one best bet, was beaten a whisker in the last jump. At that the miss paid better than 2 to 1 to place. Bill can't get back any too soon for me, Al. This responsibility is getting my nanny. Here's hoping. Yours, MIKE.

FIRST RACE—BEAT MORSTUFF and get all the money. FIDDLER and LA GOLONDRINA are as good as any in the balance of a large field.

SECOND RACE—Don't get excited about this bunch of mavericks. Anything can happen and probably will. If you must have action try OLD JUDGE, WAYWARD LAD and DUPEE.

THIRD RACE—The BRADLEY ENTRY, BRITISH THRUST, to go, with ROYAL BLUNDER and LAVAAL to follow.

FOURTH RACE—PEACE LADY should repeat, while TYPHOON and GUNFIRE will be the contenders.

FIFTH RACE—GALLANT KNIGHT, the Big Train, should grab the $10,000 handicap. LADY BROADCAST and the consistent SPANISH PLAY will be fighting it out at the end of this mile-and-a-quarter journey.

SIXTH RACE—CHICON has an excellent chance to make it two in a row. WATERPORT and BATTLING ON for what is left.

SEVENTH RACE—BLUE LAW was only beaten by a neck in his last race and should defeat this field easily. SAD KNIGHT and PETER PETER may finish in the money.

8 TEAMS SURVIVE NET PLAY

Navy Players Advance in Doubles

Godfrey-Farrin Win Mid-Atlantic Feature in 5 Sets.

Smith-Graham Beat Hunt-Buchanan in Fast Match.

TENNIS, not generally conceded to be a gruelling sport, takes on that guise today at Columbia Country Club when both the quarter-final and semifinal rounds of the Middle Atlantic doubles tournament will be played, entailing, in some cases, ten sizzling sets of championship tennis.

Eight teams survived yesterday's play, the majority of them seeded. Today's marathon of tennis will reduce the field to two weary combinations, which will fight it out tomorrow to see just which team will represent this section of the tennis terrain in the national doubles championship at Boston, late in August.

Markey and Mangan Win Easily.

One of the first teams to reach the quarter-finals yesterday was Bud Markey and Tom Mangan, the first tournament favorites, who put out Maurice O'Neill and Douglas Love in straight sets.

The winners worked exceptionally well together, in a match marked by Markey's fine all-around play. Neither O'Neill nor Love were at their peaks, however.

The Navy Leech Cup team of Lieut. Comdr. Vincent Godfrey and Ensign Jimmy Farrin won the best match of the day, beating out Lieut. McVay and Upshur Moorhead in five grinding sets, 12—10, 6—3, 6—8, 4—6, 6—3.

Although only two sets were played yesterday, the remaining three having been reeled off the day before, play was even more interesting than the day before, for errors brought more disastrous results. This hardly affected the clean hitting of the foursome. Farrin's volleying and the all-court play of Moorhead was outstanding, and the other two were little behind.

Team of Lieutenants Beats Hunt-Buchanan.

Fought out to a searing finish on an adjoining court, Lieuts. Gerry Smith and Roy Graham beat Gilbert Hunt and Bill Buchana: in a fast and furious match, 4—6 7—5, 6—3, 6—3.

The dark horse team of Barney Welsh and Ran Shields blasted another pair out of the tournament yesterday, beating Jack and Don Dudley without much trouble, 7—5, 6—1, 6—2.

SECOND ROUND.

Mangan and Markey defeated O'Neill and Love, 6—2, 6—1; 6—3; Welsh and Shields defeated Dudley and Dudley, 7—5, 6—1; 6—2; Hermann and Gould defeated Deck and Selde, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4; Farrin and Godfrey defeated Moorhead and McVay, 12—10, 6—3, 6—8, 4—6, 6—3; Smith and Graham defeated Hunt and Buchanan, 4—6, 7—5, 6—3, 6—3; Considine and Mason defeated Karrick and Garnett, 6—1, 6—2, 6—2; Staubley and Sendel defeated Doyle and Hill, 6—1, 6—1, 6—3.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

(All Matches at 2:30 o'Clock.)

Quarter-final round—Mangan and Markey vs. Hermann and Gould, Welsh and Shields vs. Farrin and Godfrey, Smith and Graham vs. Mason and Considine, Staubley and Sendel vs. Rutley and Ladd.

Trophies Necessary With Good Fish Yarns

A decline in the number and the wildness of fish stories circulated at Tilghman's Island each year is seen with the announcement that silver loving cups will be awarded the fisherman landing the largest catch of sea bass and bluefish, respectively. In the future when a disciple of Izaak Walton plunges into a tale of a battle with the "largest fish ever seen in surrounding waters," he can be stopped and asked for his credentials. If he can produce one of the cups his story will be accepted. If not, well, there's nothing like a good fish story.

Large catches of both varieties have been reported, including a 76½-pound bass.

PILOTS FACE THREE GAMES.

Three games will be played by the Washington Pilots in Baltimore tomorrow. A double-header with the Baltimore Black Sox is scheduled for 1:30 o'clock and a night game will be played against the same team starting at 8 p. m.

GRANT PLAYS SUTTER FOR NET TITLE

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 24 (A.P.). By scoring the most surprising upset of the tournament, Bryan Grant, of the University of North Carolina, today earned the right to meet Cliff Sutter, of Tulane, for the national intercollegiate tennis championship tomorrow at the Merion Cricket Club.

The small Southerner, battling for every point, took a thrilling four-set match from Keith Gledhill, of Stanford University, the defending champion, 6—3, 6—2, 1—6, 8—6.

It was by far the most exciting match of the week. Three times Gledhill reached the set point in the fourth set, but Grant withstood the assault. Finally in the thirteenth game Grant broke through his opponent's service and followed with a victory on his own.

Title Series Opens For Insect Teams

Two games will usher in the 1932 campaign of the insect division of The Post's Capital City League. The champion Washington Orioles tackle the Phoenix Athletic Club at 11 o'clock on the Rosedale Playground diamond, while the Nye House tossers will engage the Hawks at the same hour on the Hoover Playground field. The Ben Hundleys will idle this week.

The Orioles, with "Rip" Mills again at the helm, are favored to repeat their 1931 triumph. The team has been bolstered by recruits from the Wonder Bread Team of last season. With seven veterans of the previous campaign back in the fold, the club must be rated a slight favorite.

Nye House, managed by the redoubtable Johnny Goldstein, and the Hawks, with "Sparky" O'Brien in charge, loom as formidable contenders for the Orioles' title. Little is known of the strength of the Phoenix and Ben Hundley teams, but both have intimated that they will be in the thick of the fight for the gold baseballs offered the champions by The Post.

Harvey Defeated In Baltimore Golf

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 24.—B. Warren Corkran, Baltimore Country Club veteran, and Ernie Caldwell, Middle Atlantic champion, will play tomorrow in the 36-hole final for the Maryland amateur golf championship over the Hillendale course.

An all-Baltimore final was assured this morning when Caldwell administered a 3 and 2 defeat in the quarter finals to J. W. Harvey, jr., of Indian Spring, the only remaining Washingtonian.

Caldwell was 4 up on Harvey at the turn. The latter was in trouble practically throughout the first nine.

Harvey got a birdie 3 at the tenth to reduce his opponent's lead to three. They halved the remaining holes of the match, which ended at the sixteenth, when Harvey half-topped his drive and Caldwell found the trap on his second. Both were on the green in 3 and needed two putts each.

K. of C. to Organize Catholic Boy Nines

Plans for organization of a baseball league among teams composed of Catholic boys from the various parishes of the city were announced yesterday by Charles Reynolds, athletic director of the Knights of Columbus. The proposed league will be known as the Knights of Columbus Catholic Boys League.

Only boys who will not be 14 years of age before midnight, December 1, 1932, will be eligible. Each boy will be required to file a birth certificate, and each team will be allowed to carry fifteen players throughout the season. The franchise fee will be $5.

Reynolds has called the first meeting for Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the K. of C. Clubhouse. Representatives of all parishes desiring to enter teams are requested to attend.

LAUREL CLUB LISTS NEW BOUTS

Reed-Portney, Barry-Weiner on Card Next Wednesday.

COMPLETELY revamping his card as a result of the collapse of the Bob Tow-Bob Olin match, Promoter Charles E. Cornell last night announced a 34-round program featuring three eight-rounders for the offering of Twin City Arena, near Laurel, next Wednesday night. The date was changed from Monday.

In the eights, Jimmy Reed, a crack Jacksonville, Fla., junior welterweight, will engage Jack Portney, Baltimore southpaw; Reds Barry, leading Washington heavyweight, will meet Herman Weiner, hard-hitting Baltimore star, and Ray Bowen, Capital junior welter, will encounter Henry Janco, of Lawrence, Mass.

Adams New Opponent Of Young Van.

A change in opponents was made in the six-round main preliminary involving Young Van, sensational Washington middleweight, with Johnny Adams, of Baltimore, replacing Joe Glazer, another Baltimorean, who recently suffered an injury in training. The card will be rounded out by a four-round clash between Young Jack Simpson, Jacksonville bantamweight, and Tommy Horn, of Baltimore.

The card now shapes up as one of the best of the outdoor season in this section. Reed and Portney boast national ratings and appear evenly matched. Barry and Weiner staged a slugging bout last winter. Janco figures to give Bowen a real struggle, as he has twice defeated Mike Sarko, split even in two bouts with Andy Callahan and fought draws with Paulie Walker and Arthur De Beve.

JURADO, PERKINS LEADING IN OPEN

Burke, the defending champion, added a mediocre 77 to his 75 for a total of 152, while Sarazen, having no luck whatever on the greens, posted a 76 for a two-day total of 150.

The scoring on the whole was still high enough, however, to permit 160 to qualify for the final 36 holes, making a total of 72 survivors. This was just half of the starting field.

Barely inside the fold were such stars as John Golden, Joe Turnesa, Jim Barnes and Horton Smith.

Two former champions, Johnny Farrell and Willie Macfarlane, of the Metropolitan district, failed by a single stroke to qualify. Al Espinosa, 1929 runner-up, missed by three strokes and Tomekichi Miyamoto, the lone Japanese entry, by four shots.

Jurado played perhaps the soundest golf of the day, from tee to green, thereby strengthening the conviction that he will be more difficult to overtake than Perkins tomorrow in the fight the homebreds will have to make to keep the United States championship from going to alien hands for the first time since Ted Ray was the victor in 1920 at Toledo.

The little Argentine, runner-up for the British open a year ago, was rarely in trouble, only twice in traps and at all times manifesting the ability to play every shot in his bag ably.

The only amateur left in the finals is Johnny Goodman, the Omaha youngster who rose to fame as the conqueror of Bob Jones at Pebble Beach, in 1929. He added a 78 today to his previous 79 for a total of 157.

Capital Contingent In Open Eliminated

Special to The Washington Post.

Flushing, N. Y., June 24.—Washington's contingent in the national open championship was all but swept into general discard as the favorites rattled off par figures here today.

Al Houghton, Kenwood Club professional, alone remained in the running. Houghton was out in 39 and back in 38 for a 77, which brought his total to 159, 14 strokes behind the pace-setting Jurado. Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase Club, was one stroke without the vale of qualifiers, with 161. Gene Larkin, of Chevy Chase, had 165 and Archie Clark, of Congressional, 169. Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, picked up yesterday after taking 44 on the first outgoing nine.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A STROKE-BY-STROKE description of the more important matches in the final rounds of the national open golf championship will be broadcast over WRC during the day. Alex Morrison will go on the air at intervals giving the latest developments and telling where the various players stand.

Suggested by the action of Station WOR, Newark, which recently eliminated the names of announcers from all programs because it felt their identity is no longer essential, the N. B. C. has decided to try a less drastic experiment. Names of announcers will no longer be given at the end of 15-minute sustaining periods. On sustaining programs of longer duration the announcer may give his name, provided he has announced the entire period. Commercial announcer credits will be decided upon by the sponsor of the program.

Bert Lahr, Broadway comedian; Walter O'Keefe, pilot of the "magic carpet," and George Olsen and his music will join in presenting a rollicking Lucky Strike Dance Hour (WRC, 9 o'clock) tonight.

A LOT of people these days never heard of a papaw. Bond Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association, however, was born there—Paw Paw, Ill.

Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, will be heard during the broadcast of the Public Affairs Institute (WMAL, 9:15 o'clock) tonight. His talk, "What the Democrats Should Accomplish," will be in the light of a companion talk to last week's discussion by Jouett Shouse, who spoke on "What the Republicans Have Left Undone."

The Coral Islanders will include two lively hulas, a steel guitar specialty and a native yodel song in their fifteen-minute program tonight (WMAL, 9:45 o'clock).

"The Spy School," another authentic story of secret service operations during the World War, will be told by "K-7" in a broadcast over WRC at 7:30 p. m.

THE boys who are busy installing WRC'S new transmitter in the Riggs Bank Building, at Fourteenth street and Park road, had a little explaining to do to the police the other morning. Work can not be done excepting during the time the station is off the air—1 a. m. to 6 a. m.

Along about 2 a. m. the night watchman in the bank downstairs heard the terrific noise the boys were making tearing up the floor to lay the new conduits and thought some one was attempting to rob the bank. He promptly turned in an alarm and the police arrived on the scene. After explanations were made the work was recommenced. Incidentally, A. E. Johnson, chief engineer of WRC, promises it will not be very much longer before the new transmitter is in operation.

Street to Give Talk On Children's Home

Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, will give an intimate word picture of the Children's Country Home in the third of a series of radio talks on "Little Journeys to Homes of Great Services" over Station WRC today at 4:45 o'clock. Mr. Street's description of the Home, which is Washington's only institution for convalescent and undernourished children, will be based upon observations made during a personal visit.

In this new series of talks, the Chest director is endeavoring to paint for Washington contributors to the Chest the exact nature of the work being done through their gifts.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Its net income for the five months of the present year totals $1,962,269.42, and presents a gain of $10,837.98 over the corresponding period a year ago.

The division of the statement of Washington Railway & Electric Co. dealing with rail operations shows net income for last month aggregating $445,563.58, as compared with $446,053.31 for the same month in 1932. "Mortgage Banking in the Reconstruction Period" is the theme chosen for the nineteenth annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America to be held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., October 11 to 13.

This subject was announced following a meeting of the board of governors in Chicago last week, where it was decided that the coming convention might well devote its major time to the new problems of real estate management, refinancing and reorganization, which confront even the most conservative lenders as the result of disturbed economic conditions.

At the general sessions of the convention much time will be given to the consideration of current economic questions, since the payment of interest and liquidation of indebtedness depends so directly upon such factors as employment and commodity prices. The more technical phases of city and farm mortgage financing will be discussed at separate group meetings of urban and rural bankers.

KREUGER TRUSTEE NAMING IS DELAYED

New York Court Awaits Friendly Negotiations in Sweden.

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—A hearing before Federal Judge Julian A. Mack, set for today on the question of appointing a trustee for the affairs of the Kreuger & Toll Co., one of the firms controlled by the late Ivar Kreuger, was postponed until next Wednesday to permit attorneys to continue friendly negotiations toward liquidating the company's affairs in Stockholm, Sweden.

Most of the assets of the company are in Sweden and Samuel Untermyer, attorney for an independent protective bondholders' committee, has urged appointment of a trustee to represent the interests of American creditors. His suggestion has been opposed on the ground that such action might antagonize the Swedish authorities.

A motion for an injunction against the sale of 350,000 shares of Diamond Match stock by four banks, which held the stock as collateral on a $3,800,000 loan, was withdrawn today before Federal Judge John M. Woolsey, by counsel for the Irving Trust Co. as bankruptcy trustee for the International Match Co.

The block of stock was sold at auction yesterday, with the consent of the Irving Trust Co., to the Diamond Match Co., for $5,022,500. The banks which held the stock were the National City Bank and the Bankers Trust Co., of New York; the Union Trust Co., of Pittsburgh, and the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co., of Chicago.

Test of New Ship Fuel Is Declared Successful

London, June 24 (U.P.).—A successful experiment with a new fuel mixture which may be a boon to the coal industry was reported to the Cunard Steamship Line offices tonight by the S. S. Scythia. The vessel was trying out a new fuel in which oil and pulverized coal are mixed.

"All expectations realized," said the message to the Cunard offices. The British engineers said they expected the new fuel would have a far-reaching effect in rehabilitating the coal industry.

Americans' Safety In Chile Is Assured

New Protection Request Is Made Because of Recent Unrest.

Santiago, Chile, June 24 (A.P.).—United States Ambassador William S. Culbertson obtained reassurance from the new government of Carlos G. Davila today that American lives and property in Chile would be safeguarded.

Because of uncertainty among Americans here and elsewhere in the country regarding their safety, the ambassador asked the chief of the military garrison if the government felt it could provide all the protection necessary. The garrison chief assured Mr. Culbertson the government could. The Socialist junta, headed by Senor Davila, former Chilean Ambassador to the United States, considers itself master of the situation, the officer said.

While Chile was quiet today under martial law, after a series of revolutions, rebellions and extremist strikes since the overthrow of President Juan Esteban Montero on June 4, it was understood that other foreign diplomats also ascertained that their nationals likewise would be protected.

Steamer Egypt Yields $2,000,000 in Gold

Brest, France, June 24 (U.P.).—Divers from the Italian salvage ship Artigio plunged to the ocean floor many times today and returned each time with gold ingots and sovereigns from the sunken steamer Egypt. Tonight about 900 pounds of gold, valued at around $2,000,000, had been lifted to the salvage ship as the reward for some three years of labor.

A long, deep swell hampered the work of the divers, but they braved dangers of the deep to continue their work, bringing up many minted sovereigns in the iron claws of their lifting apparatus.

More Postal Rate Boosts Approved

Measures Estimated to Yield $10,000,000 Are Voted by Senate.

(Associated Press.)

Prompt approval was placed by the Senate yesterday on a number of House bills increasing postal rates for registered, insured and collect-on-delivery mail, which the Postoffice Department estimated would yield upward of $10,000,000 annually in revenue. The measures, if signed, become effective July 1.

The most important from a revenue standpoint was a measure increasing fees for registered mail to 15 cents for amounts up to $5 as against the present 15 cents for up to $50. The Postoffice Department estimated these new rates would produce an additional $7,000,000.

One measure provides for graduated increases in all but the minimum rates now charged, and adds a 30-cent rate for insurance up to $150 value and 35 cents up to $200. The present schedule stops at 25 cents for articles valued at not more than $100. The collect-on-delivery service rate is changed from 15 cents for collections up to $50 to 17 cents for collections up to $25, and 22 cents between $25 and $50.

Cherrydale Girl Is Wed In Savona, N. Y., Rites

Word was received in Cherrydale Thursday of the marriage of Miss La Mira Purdy, of Cherrydale, to James Moore Smith, formerly of Fairfax County, Va. The ceremony took place Thursday at the old home of the Smith family at Savona, N. Y., the Rev. M. E. Miller, of the Baptist Church, officiating.

After an extended tour through New York Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Washington.

RUSSIA CUTS RATION IN SUGAR SHORTAGE

Boost of Price Follows; Stores Charge 21½ Cents Per Pound.

Moscow, June 24 (A.P.).—A serious sugar shortage has resulted in a reduction of the sugar ration from 3¾ pounds a month for each person to 1¾ pounds for the white collar class and 2 pounds for the workers in Moscow.

Simultaneously the price has been boosted from 10 to 15 cents a pound in the Torgsin stores, which take only foreign money. In the ration stores the price remains unchanged at 21½ cents a pound.

Soviet citizens of Moscow cannot buy candy despite the recent removal of confectionaries from the ration category, indicating that the candy manufacturers are feeling the shortage.

No figures are available on last year's sugar beet production, but the newspapers acknowledge that there were enormous losses through carelessness in many sections and because of damage by insects. Added to this was the drain on the country's resources by the diversion of sugar to troops concentrated in the Far East and the necessity for using more sugar in the manufacture of industrial alcohol for basic war materials.

Rotarians Hear Banker Talk on Business Crisis

Seattle, June 24 (A.P.).—W. J. Spangler, Seattle banker, told the Rotary international convention today that world economic recovery is "certain as in the past," but we must expect many more business fatalities and several years to lapse before again gaining our poise."

Holden, Kans., was awarded the attendance trophy. Fairmont, N. C., was second and Walcott, N. Y., third. The registration committee gave a final report of 5,159 delegates. Of these 507 were from Canada, 17 from Hawaii, and 15 from Alaska. Delegations from Lima, Peru., and Mexico City presented the Seattle Club with the flags of their respective nations.

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Heavy engineering construction contracts reported for the week ended June 20 totaled $14,698,000, the smallest weekly volume since last February, says Engineering News-Record. The average weekly of contracts let so far this month is $22,599,000, compared with a June weekly average of $49,081,000 in 1931.

Demand for electrical equipment, especially the heavier types, has become progressively smaller thus far this year, and an early reversal of this adverse trend it not in prospect, says Standard Statistics Co.

New bond offerings formally marketed this week totaled $13,321,000, against $25,380,988 last week and $187,759,000 a year ago.

Reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate to 2½ per cent leaves an unusually wide spread between the local rate and those of the eleven other reserve banks, which continue uniformly at 3½ per cent. In banking centers it is expected that this disparity will be narrowed eventually by reductions in the rates of the interior reserve banks.

Directors of Sharp & Dohme Co. today declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the Class A convertible preferred stock, payable August 1 to holdings of record July 15. The company had previously paid 87½ cents quarterly on this issue.

Havana Electric & Utilities Co., controlled by American & Foreign Power, had net income of $4,153,238 in 1931, compared with $5,991,106 in 1930.

The next important date on Wall street's dividend calendar is next Tuesday, when the boards of American Can, Allied Chemical and Santa Fe Railroad companies are scheduled to act. There is a bit of uncertainty in market quarters over the course each will take.

Piccard Plans for July Trip Into Stratosphere

Brussels, Belgium, June 24 (U.P.).—On some calm morning, probably next month, when a light breeze is blowing toward the great range of the Alps, Prof. August Piccard will strap a parachute on his back and start an ascent into the stratosphere on the fringe of space. The famous Swiss scientist today announced the selection of Zurich as the starting point of his second balloon flight into the stratosphere—10 miles or more out from the earth.

"The flight will be made perhaps in July, or a little later," Prof. Piccard said. "It all depends on weather conditions and on the delivery of certain scientific instruments. When we do start, it will be very early in the morning, for the wind is most moderate at that time."

Relief Loans to Private Citizens Are Advocated

Cleveland, June 24 (A.P.).—The Railway Labor Executives Association decided today to get behind a plan for a new kind of reconstruction corporation to finance the "common man."

The association, made up of the heads of 21 labor organizations, urged legislation by Congress to provide "emergency loans" of not more than $500 to unemployed heads of households so they might purchase the necessities of life. The financing would be done by a Federal agency similar to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Business Improvement Obviates Plant Shutdown

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—Procter & Gamble Co., has experienced such a marked pickup in business that the company has decided to postpone indefinitely the annual shutdown for overhauling of plants, which usually occurs in the first half of July, it was reported in Wall street today.

The company's shipments for the week ended June 18 established a high record, it is said.

Thin, and Moderately Lower.

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—In the face of a feeble stock list, the bond market held up fairly well today. With the exception of a few specialties, which were under pressure, prices were only moderately lower at the close.

Although trading volume increased somewhat over that of yesterday, dealers described the market as still extremely thin with little urgent selling apparent.

Sales totaled $11,261,000, par value, and the average for 60 corporate securities was off two-tenths of a point.

Prices firmed all along the line in early trading, influenced apparently by the reduction of the rediscount rate to 2½ per cent by the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

The United States Government department advanced substantially, at first, with Liberty 2½s reaching a new high for the year. The Federals were unable to hold their ground for long, however, and most of them were fractionally lower at the close.

Some of the railroads, utilities and industrials also turned fairly soft, although the gains and losses were usually small and well distributed. Frisco 4½s were again the heaviest traded of the carriers, although they reversed their movement of yesterday and recorded a loss of 2⅝ points.

German Government obligations reacted around a point following reports of further uncertainties at the Lausanne conference.

CONFEREES' REPORT ON DISTRICT SUPPLY BILL PASSES SENATE

House Action Will Probably Await Return of Chairman Cannon.

$7,775,000 IS PROVIDED AS FEDERAL LUMP SUM

Total of Measure Is Slashed $2,544,106 Under That Originally Voted.

Without discussion, the Senate yesterday adopted the conference report on the District supply bill, carrying local appropriations estimated at $41,245,622.

House action on the measure probably will await the return of Representative Clarence Cannon, chairman of the House conferees, from the Democratic convention.

Federal Lump Sum Cut.

As passed by the Senate the bill was cut $2,544,106 under the amount originally voted by the Senate, but increased $1,331,812 over the appropriations total agreed to by the House.

The measure provides a $7,775,000 Federal lump sum contribution toward District needs, in contrast to the current fund of $9,500,000. It carried $350,000 for local unemployment relief, supplementing depleted local charity funds.

Byrns May Move Acceptance.

The measure was reported to the House yesterday by Representative Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, chairman of the House appropriations committee. Representative Byrns may move acceptance of the report if Representative Cannon has not returned by Monday.

Trolley Brake Is Blamed In $20,000 Injury Suit

Alleging that as he was about to alight from a Capital Traction street car at Fourteenth and T streets northwest, December 2, 1930, the hand brake was allowed to "unswing," hitting him and seriously hurting him, Harry Clifton King, 629 L street southwest, yesterday filed suit against the traction company for $20,000 damages in District Supreme Court.

Through Attorneys Franklin Yasmer and Crandal Mackay, Mr. King says that he has suffered permanent injuries.

Long Terms Given To Two Prisoners

One Slayer Is Sentenced to Life and Another 30 Years.

Two colored slayers were given long sentences by Justice F. Dickinson Letts, in the District Supreme Court, when they appeared before him yesterday.

Walter Mason, colored, who shot and killed James Carroll on April 5, at 71 Fenton street northwest, was given life, and William Turner, colored, who shot to death Maurice M. McCoy, colored, at 427 Delaware avenue southwest, drew 30 years.

Mason entered a plea of guilty to a charge of second degree murder after he had been indicted for first degree murder. Turner stood trial for first degree and was found guilty of second degree. Police said Mason shot Carroll for "putting the police on him" while Turner shot McCoy in a drinking bout.

Ax-Wielder Sentenced To Seven Years in Jail

Despite his own testimony that he "only hit him twice" with an ax, William Kinnard, colored, was given seven years in jail yesterday by Justice F. D. Letts, before whom he had been tried on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Kinnard said that Joseph D. Conty, also colored, attacked him with an ice pick in a fight near Third and C streets southwest. This testimony was denied, and additional evidence tending to show that Kinnard belabored Conty with the ax was offered. Conty was unconscious for fourteen hours. Physicians said it was a "miracle" that Conty lived, for he had been hit several times in the head with the weapon.

Driver Is Crushed Under Upset Cart

Milkman's Back Is Broken When Auto Crashes Into His Wagon.

Crushed beneath a pile of heavy wooden crates when his horse-drawn milk wagon overturned after being struck by an automobile early yesterday at Columbia and Ontario roads northwest, Robert Brisbane, 38 years old, of 2127 O street northwest, suffered a fractured back. He is in undetermined condition in Emergency Hospital.

Brisbane, witnesses said, had stopped his wagon near the corner and was loading milk bottles in a carrier for delivery. An automobile driven by Isadore Posner, 28 years old, of 2519 Ninth street northwest, crashed into the rear of the truck.

The impact overturned the wagon, pinning Brisbane under a pile of loaded milk crates. The horse, thrown to the pavement, broke away and ran several blocks before overtaken. The wagon was demolished.

Police did not arrest Posner and termed the accident unavoidable.

2 Robbers Get 10-Year Terms.

Samuel Elmer Cox and Lewis Edward Smith, colored, were sent to jail for ten years each yesterday by Justice F. D. Letts in the District Supreme Court on robbery charges.

Five Held in Taxi Robberies.

After questioning of two score Negroes taken yesterday in a round-up, members of the Headquarters Robbery Squad held five as suspects in recent taxi robberies and pocketbook snatchings.

PLAYGROUND STAGES FIRST DOG SHOW

Court Warns Strippers Of Parked Automobiles

Willard F. Nusbinckle, 19 years old, who said he lived in Hyattsville, Md., yesterday was sentenced to serve 45 days in jail when he was tried in Police Court on a charge of stealing a metal tire cover from a machine belonging to Frank Haverty, of 4539 South Dakota avenue northeast.

In sentencing Nusbinckle, Judge John P. McMahon declared persons who were convicted in his court of stealing from parked cars need expect little or no mercy.

Woman Is Cited For Shielding Son

Faces Contempt Action for Interfering With His Arrest.

Mrs. Alice T. Offterdinger, 1627 Kennedy place northwest, yesterday was cited by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, in the District Supreme Court, to appear before him Wednesday and show why she should not be adjudged in contempt of court for interfering with a deputy United States marshal, who sought to arrest her son, Fred Offterdinger, on a court attachment.

Deputy United States Marshal John R. East went to the Offterdinger home Thursday to arrest Fred Offterdinger, who had failed to appear in court in answer to a maintenance suit filed against him by his former wife, Mrs. Katherine Offterdinger.

When East started to search the upstairs of the house, it was alleged, the mother of the man he sought allegedly "forcibly" prevented him from going up. Attorney Raymond Neudecker filed the petition for contempt. Mrs. Offterdinger, the former wife, is seeking maintenance for support of a daughter.

Robber Discards Watch; Keeps $2

E. C. O'Dell's Valuable Timepiece Found Near Scene of Holdup.

The footpad who early yesterday assaulted and robbed Edward C. O'Dell, of Baltimore, as he walked through Potomac Park in the rear of the White House, apparently decided that his loot was not worth keeping. A valuable gold watch, taken from O'Dell, was found several hours later only a few feet from the scene of the holdup.

O'Dell told police he was crossing the Ellipse shortly after midnight. He was approached by a man, he said, who suddenly struck him over the head with a blunt instrument and robbed him of his watch and $2.

J. O. Coates, of 1741 Lanier place northwest, found the watch. The robber, however, decided to keep the $2.

The watch bore a Masonic emblem. Coates, who is a Mason, turned the watch over to police of the Tenth Precinct.

HINGED BRICK WALL FAILS AS RAID EXIT

On Second Descent, Police Guard It and 50 Are Trapped; 4 Held.

A hinged section of brick wall used on the second-floor premises at 725 Ninth street northwest as an "emergency exit" was effectively stopped yesterday by police, who arrested 50 men trapped within the alleged gaming establishment.

Four of the occupants were charged with setting up gaming tables. They were Charles Freleigh, 30, of 724 Fifth street northwest; Edward Marks, 30, of 6205 Twelfth street northwest; Raymond W. O'Neil, 40, of 315 Third street northeast, and Jacob E. Cohen, 28, of 16 Q street northeast. The remainder of the men were released after being served with summonses to appear at Police Court today.

The raid was led by Detective Sergt. H. E. Ogle and Detective J. K. Baker. No warrant was used. Police said they found equipment for race track gambling in the place.

On a previous raid police found the rooms empty by the time they had battered their way in. Examination revealed the section of the wall which swung back and led to a way of escape across the rooftops. This avenue was guarded yesterday.

Armed Robbery of $4 Charged by Taxi Driver

Horace A. Smallwood, a taxi driver, of 3013 Otis street northwest, yesterday reported to police that he was held up and robbed of $4 by two men who hired his cab at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Smallwood said the men hailed his taxi shortly after the 4:30 o'clock rush hour. They asked to be driven to E street between Canal and East Capitol streets. One of the men, Smallwood declared, produced a gun upon reaching the destination and demanded cash. After taking $4 the men fled on foot, Smallwood told police.

GOTWALS INSTALLS ECONOMY PROGRAM

Gives Orders to Scrutinize All Expenditures for Engineering Work.

A strict economy program was promulgated yesterday in the District Engineer Department by the Commissioners upon recommendation of Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner. Under the plan adopted all replacement items must be shown to be justified by comparison of such cost with the expense of maintaining the old structure, street or sewer.

"The general financial outlook for the District has forced the conclusion that an even more rigid study of expenditures is needed than has been given in the past," Maj. Gotwals told the Commissioners. "This study should be at once directed to new structures and particularly to replacements."

Maj. Gotwals proposed that even the new structures included in the 1933 District appropriations bill, still pending in Congress, undergo a reinspection before expenditures are made.

"As to replacements of any nature, whether streets, sewers, buildings, or any other facilities, I believe such work should be authorized only when a showing is made of annual maintenance costs of such structures clearly indicating the economy of replacement. For future estimates to go into the 1934 budget a similar action is now demanded."

The Commissioners recently instructed the newly created District economy committee to make a thorough study of municipal expenditures while examining departmental estimates for 1934 and to prepare recommendations for economies in either personnel or operation.

Firemen and Police Free 3 Self-Imprisoned Girls

The Police and Fire Departments are always ready to lend a helping hand—no matter what the emergency.

It took the crew of a fire truck and two policemen of the Third Precinct to rescue three small girls locked in a room of their home, 1733 P street northwest, yesterday afternoon.

Eleanore Rowles, 13, her sister, Pearl, 8, and Juanita Reeves, 11, went to a room on the second floor and locked the door from the inside. Then they tried to get out. The lock refused to budge. Frantic cries brought their parents.

The Fire Department was called and they in turn notified th Police Department. Policemen R. B. Rector and J. L. Rochford were first to reach the scene. With the help of firemen, the door was soon lifted from its hinges and the three frightened youngsters were liberated.

RETAIL CREDIT MEN SCORE ATTACKS ON COMMERCE BUREAU

Policies of Department Are Upheld in Resolutions at Closing Session.

REDUCTIONS OF PRICES URGED TO END SLUMP

Savings Accounts Protection by Federal Legislation Is Advocated.

Resolutions adopted at the concluding session of the Retail Credit Men's Association yesterday condemned attacks against the activities of the Department of Commerce.

The association resolved that the policy of the department "has always been found to be most helpful and effective in its relationship to retail business and to all American business."

The organization went on record in reference to the cause of the economic depression, stating that the condition is the result of "a long-standing unbalance between increasingly efficient production and a practically static consumption." The policy favored by the credit men urged distribution of merchandise at the lowest possible cost to the consumer.

Price Reduction Urged.

Reduction of prices, a resolution stated, would "materially accelerate recovery" and bring about a maximum absorption of manufactured goods within the current income of the consumer.

Contending that bank savings accounts should be properly protected as a security to business, the association recommended protection of the accounts through Federal legislation.

The statement said: "Whereas certain institutions should be identified to the public as being especially safeguarded against the ordinary risks of commercial banking and an acceptable method should be devised by the Federal and State governments to protect and insure savings depositors in such institutions against loss of savings or delay in withdrawal of such funds when required, be it resolved that we recommend that savings banks be placed in such a category that no depositor will ever lose any of his savings and will be able to obtain his funds as he may desire."

Other Resolutions.

Other resolutions adopted extended thanks to Representative Edith N. Rogers for her cooperation with the association in its campaign to educate the public to budgeting income and offered means to aid the credit situation in retail business.

Awards in the contest for "Best Credit Sales Plan" were presented to D. Ashby, of Iowa; P. H. Carr, of Minnesota, and A. C. Wehl, of Wisconsin. Kenneth Clapp made the presentations.

The invitation extended to the association by Senator K. D. McKellar to convene in Memphis, Tenn., for its annual sessions in 1933, was accepted by the organization.

W. A. Cory made the concluding address.

STRICT OBSERVANCE OF TRAFFIC IS URGED

Eldridge Warns Children Against Skating and Playing in Streets.

Termination of the school term makes a more careful consideration of traffic regulations imperative, M. O. Eldridge, assistant to the director of traffic, said yesterday in a radio broadcast.

Commenting on the various regulations which prohibit playing in the street, he said, "It is obvious to every thinking man and woman, and it should be obvious to every boy and girl of school age that under present conditions our public streets are not a safe place in which to roller skate or to play games."

Mr. Eldridge cited the number of accidents during the past year as evidence that the traffic regulations were not observed and that the accidents were in great part due to a lack of parental care and neglect in educating children to the dangers of playing in the street.

Other important traffic problems discussed by Mr. Eldridge were the necessity of locking automobiles, the dangers of smoke emission from exhausts and the making of unnecessary noises.

BLAINE AGAIN BARS HOPES FOR PASSING TRACTION MERGER

Need of Important Changes Blocks Action on Bill, Senator Declares.

4 DISTRICT MEASURES APPROVED AT SESSION

One Authorizes Commissioners to Close Useless Streets in Capital.

Hope for passage of the traction merger bill at this session of Congress faded yesterday, when the measure again was blocked by Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin.

Senator Blaine, coauthor with Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, of a minority report on the measure, afterward expressed doubt the bill will pass Congress unless its advocates make important concessions.

Firm in Stand.

Neither himself nor Senator Capper will budge from their stand for universal street car transfers, 100 per cent Public Utilities Commission control of electric current and other provisions of the minority report, he said.

Under consent rules, Senator Blaine can continue to prevent passage by simply voicing objection when the bill comes up on the calendar.

Four District measures, including one giving the Commissioners general authority to close useless streets in the District, were approved at yesterday's session.

Other Bills Approved.

Other bills approved would give the District of Columbia the same power of condemnation now held by the Federal Government, make the District procedure for bonding contracts on public works conform with the Federal practice.

They would also amend the charters of the Female Orphan Asylum in Georgetown and the Washington City Orphan Asylum, so that they may come under recent legislation removing restrictions on the amount of income they may receive.

Two Get Five Years On Larceny Charges

Precluded from receiving probation because of prior criminal records, James R. Sheehan and Charles C. Murray, who entered pleas of guilty to two indictments charging them with housebreaking and larceny, yesterday were given five-year sentences by Justice F. D. Letts in the District Supreme Court.

Sheehan has served time in many institutions, while Murray has been in three. They were caught leaving a chain grocery store which had been broken into. Merchandise belonging to that store was found in their possession, and a second charge was placed against them when another chain store was found to have been entered.
